Mayor James A. Sheets and conservation managers of the MWRA recently launched Operation Watersense, a cooperative water-conservation program designed to help Quincy homeowners and renters save thousands of gallons of water each year.

The program's winter schedule includes installing low-flow showerheads, faucet aerators, toilet dams and leak detection with no charge to customers, in about 8,000 units of multi-family dwellings.

The program began in December in Quincy Housing Authority buildings. With the cooperation of the South Shore Rental Association, it is underway in other multi-family units.

In May, a similar program will be offered to more than 23,000 Quincy households in one, two and three-family neighborhoods. Homeowners will be notified before crews arrive in the neighborhoods.

Crew members will carry photo identification cards and Quincy organizations will be asked to help publicize and advocate the campaign.

MWRA Director Paul Levy noted Quincy is the first community in the authority's water district to participate in the program.

"This program has targeted the direct installation of conservation devices and the provision of leak detection materials to more than 30,000 Quincy families during 1991," Levy said.

first city helping our citizens save water in this very practical way," Sheets added.

Operation Watersense is the first effort by a state agency to directly provide and install water-saving devices. Plans call for the program to be offered to 730,000 households in the MWRA service area.

The program is part of the MWRA's long-range water supply proposals which will take the system into the 21st century. Rather than undertaking any extensive and expensive searches for new supplies, the MWRA Board of Directors has chosen conservation and protection of local and existing sources. It is emphasizing leak detection and repair of pipes and public education for commercial, industrial and domestic water users.

Sheets To Keynote Fiscal Problems, Progress At Mid-Term

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James A. Sheets will officially begin his second year in office when he delivers his Mid-Term Address Monday, Jan. 7 at 10 a.m. in the Council Chambers of the James R. McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall).

Sheets said his address will mainly be upbeat, focusing on the progress and accomplishments he believes his administration has made the last year. He will also discuss Quincy's financial problems in 1991 and how the city must deal with them in 1992.

Bright spots the mayor is expected to include in his message are the success of the expanded recycling program, the stabilization of Quincy Hospital's finances and plans for a $250,000 federal grant earmarked for downtown revitalization and tourism.

Speaking on tourism, the mayor said Quincy, with its rich heritage, has the potential for international tourism. He said the city could be linked to Boston's historic sites, thereby attracting tourists in "Beantown" to the "City of Presidents."

Sheets will also likely mention his "Quincy Plan." The plan, which will contain proposals and strategies for the redevelopment of Downtown Quincy, will be revealed in full in February.

Among the issues the plan will address are: parking, retail character (such as attracting factory outlets to the area), and perhaps a hotel. Sites mentioned include a parcel of land on the site of President Park and the Hancock Parking Area across from the Quincy District Court.

As the mayor looks ahead to 1991, he said he is "surprised" and "satisfied" by the progress his administration has made in 1990.

"I think we've made tremendous progress this year. I'm surprised," he said, mentioning the raising of $105,000 in private funds for 42 historical light fixtures in Quincy Square and the defeat of a proposal for a hazardous waste incinerator in East Braintree near the Quincy line.

Despite the fiscal chaos at the state and national levels, Sheets said his administration has been able to "keep the city financially afloat."

"I'm satisfied. I'm really amazed that we accomplished so much in such a short period of time."

One thing the mayor will not be mentioning is his political future. At the last Mid-Term City Council meeting two years ago, former Mayor Francis X. McCauley dropped the political bombshell of the year by announcing he would not seek a fifth term. Sheets, mid-way through his first term, said he will seek re-election this fall but will wait until February to make it official.

"I plan to be a candidate next year. I'll make it official sometime in February," he said last week.

McCauley, and three other former mayors, Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia and Arthur Tobin, have been invited to attend the Mid-Term ceremony.

City councillors, state legislators and other local leaders and officials will attend the mid-term council meeting.

After the meeting is called to order and a roll-call of council members is taken, Hank Bradley, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, will lead the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

Following Sheets' address, City Council President Ted DeCristoforo will likely be re-elected and take the oath of office for his second one-year term. No other councillor has indicated a desire to be president this year.

Jeanne Reardon, the council's clerk of committees, will be elected and sworn into office.

On Monday, Sheets asked a good friend, Dr. Cecil Paul, president of Eastern Nazarene College, to deliver the invocation and benediction. Sheets' staff was trying to contact Dr. Paul, who has gone white water canoeing and camping with the mayor in past summers, to confirm the request as the Sun went to press.

Two city councillors will be elected to the Quincy Hospital Board of Supervisors. Two members will be elected to the Adams Temple and School Fund.

No other business is on the agenda.

Council Favors Reducing Costs To MWRA Ratepayers

The City Council has voted to support legislation which would reduce costs to MWRA ratepayers.

The council wants the legislature to approve the transfer responsibility for the Clinton waste water treatment facility back to the state. Since 1987, MWRA ratepayers have had to pay a large part of the cost of the Clinton facility despite the fact that Clinton is not within the MWRA service area.

Quincy's share of the bill for the Clinton facility is about $150,000 for 1990.

In 1987 the legislature shifted the responsibility of costs for the Clinton facility from the state to the MWRA. The City Council's resolve supports proposed legislation to have the state fulfill its original obligation to Clinton.

"I think it is important that the city Council sends a message to our state legislators on Beacon Hill that we support this," said Councilor Michael Cheney.

Donates $5,471 To Local Food Banks

Stop and Shop Supermarket employees in Quincy have donated $5,471 to three local charities as part of the company's annual "Food for Friends" campaign, a program designed to feed the hungry.

In all, 58 supermarkets in Massachusetts raised more than $78,000 through creative fundraisers for food banks across the state.

The community campaign consists of a number of programs designed to support those who suffer from hunger. In October, every Stop and Shop supermarket adopted a charitable organization, and on a volunteer basis, the employees sponsored fundraisers such as bowl-athons, food festivals and car washes.

Stop and Shop Company and Stop and Shop

Foundation matched a portion of the funds raised by each store. In all, the company donated more than $165,000 to 118 charities throughout the New England area.

Locally, Stop and Shop Headquarters at Quincy Center Plaza donated $1,678 to the Quincy Crisis Center. Money was raised during a hot dog food festival.

Super Stop and Shop on Newport Ave. in North Quincy raised $2,863 through bake sales to the Friends of Long Island Shelter.

Super Stop and Shop on Southern Artery, Quincy, held an "Adopt-A-Ghost" fundraiser, donating $1,200 to DOVE.

"We are grateful to our shoppers who contributed in such an extraordinary way to our 'Food For Friends' fundraisers," said company President and Chief Operating Officer Robert Tobin.

BABY, IT'S COLD OUTSIDE

Most parents are very careful about dressing their children warmly on cold days, but may go out themselves without hats and gloves. The very young, the elderly and those with circulatory problems are most prone to frostbite, but extreme cold or prolonged exposure can affect anyone. Early stages of frostbite feature a tingling or numbing sensation in the affected area, usually a finger or toe. Skin becomes red or purple, then turns white and numb as it freezes. Chilblains can occur in relatively mild weather in people who have poor circulation, poor nutrition, or are wearing tight clothing or shoes. The affected extremity develops an itching, burning sensation, and becomes red and swollen.

Blisters may then form and break. Chilblains can easily become frostbitten if not treated. The affected area must be rewarmed quickly but gently, and never rubbed with snow.

P.S. Smoking constricts blood vessels and makes one more prone to frostbite and chilblains.

Now that winter is full upon us, it is important to remember to dress correctly when outdoors. Regardless of the season, you can only benefit from preventive medical care and healthful habits in all areas of your life. At COMPREHENSIVE CAR-LIAC CARE, we can help you develop a healthy lifestyle that's heart-smart. Call 472-2550 for more information. We're located at 101 Adams Street, Suite 24 in Quincy. Raymondi A Candidate?

Dan Raymondi leaves the Norfolk County treasurer's office this week amid speculation he will return to the Quincy political arena.

And, perhaps soon. Like this year's city election, maybe.

Political observers think he might make a run for city councillor at-large. Or, maybe, the school committee.

Raymondi has been both a city councillor (Ward 2) and a school committeeman before.

He was elected to the School Committee in 1971 at the age of 23 while attending Boston College Law School.

That was the year that there were 23 candidates for three open School Committee seats. The other two winners: Harold Davis who topped the field and Frank McCauley.

Interestingly, McCauley finished in the third spot behind second place Raymondi by 978 votes.

But that was no political barometer for the future as 10 years later, McCauley rolled by Raymondi to capture the mayor's office.

Raymondi was elected Ward 2 councillor in 1975 and served there until his unsuccessful bid for mayor.

He may have been the first School Committee member to run successfully for the City Council. Raymondi, who was appointed Norfolk County Treasurer in 1985, did an outstanding job in that office - an office that had been scandalized and left in a shambles by his predecessor who went to prison on embezzlement charges.

Raymondi restored respectability and credibility to the office and streamlined and modernized it to make it one of the most efficient operations in the state.

But 1990 was no year to be Democratic incumbent seeking re-election. He got swept out on the strong, angry anti-incumbent voter tide.

Well, will he return to the Quincy political scene? He hasn't really left it. He is still chairman of the Quincy City Democratic Committee.

But would he come back as a candidate for the City Council, School Committee - or sometime in the future in another mayoral bid?

He really isn't saying at this point. But he isn't saying "no."

"I like to stay active," he says. "I'm keeping my options open."

He should be pretty active as he returns to his private law practice.

But those who know him don't think that will keep him completely happy.

They note he loves the political field as much as he did the football field.

He'll be back, they predict. And, soon.

NOW, IF RAYMONDI did run for councillor at-large this year, that could be one of the best races in recent years.

Former Mayor Frank McCauley and former Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly are still considered potential candidates.

If all three got in, the three incumbents, Tim Cahill, Mike Cheney and Patricia Toland would be facing their toughest opposition.

There's been speculation that McCauley, who supported both William Weld and Joseph Malone might be in line for a state appointment. But he says he's not waiting by the phone. He's not expecting a call from either Weld or Malone.

If he did get an appointment that, of course, would take him out of the city election picture. But if he doesn't, you might just see him as a council at-large candidate.

He has said he would someday like to return to the City Council in "the role of elder statesman."

It's January now and now is the time for anyone planning to run for anything to let it be known.

Anyone running?

Why Create A New Board?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a Quincy voter since 1922, and having the opportunity to express opinion on current affairs in the local newspaper, I wish to express mine on the residency of the members on the License Board.

The License Board should be the city councils which all have city residence. Applying for a license, the ward councillor opinion is always required, and on many borderline cases a second councillor may also be needed.

There will be many cases which will require the opinion of professionals and the present license board should be retained to act as consultants. They are all professionals in their duties and their opinions are required in cases with their duties.

Why create a new board? The present board members were selected from Civil Service and from competition.

Women Give Special Attention To Hancock Cemetery Fence

By JANE ARENA

An old saying tells us that "history is not made by great men." Often though, history is not made by men at all.

The Hancock Cemetery next door to City Hall is one of the city's most prized historic sites and, while it may be filled with great men, it is surrounded by a decorative fence which was constructed through the efforts of Quincy women and has, through the years, been maintained through the efforts of women.

Formerly known as the Village Cemetery, the oldest headstone in the Hancock Cemetery is dated Dec. 10, 1666, for the Rev. William Thompson, who was minister of the Hancock Meeting House, (now known as the United First Parish Church), but the cemetery is believed to be older even than that.

Henry Adams, who was the first Adams in Quincy, was originally buried there when he died in Oct. of 1646. (he was later moved to the United First Parish Church across the street). John Adams and John Quincy Adams, the second and sixth presidents of the United States were also buried there before they were moved to the church across the street.

The site is also the final resting place of Col. John Quincy for whom the city is named. The Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence, is also buried there.

Originally the burial ground was surrounded by a simple wooden fence, but in 1884 the Womens' Alliance of the First Parish Church decided that the site was so rich in history that it needed something more elaborate.

The women raised the funds to purchase a wrought iron fence adorned with decorative urns, which still stands there today.

In 1976 Miss Marie Bass, also a member of the very same Womens' Alliance of the church, noticed that four of the urns were missing from the fence, either damaged or stolen, and decided to try and replace them.

Miss Bass contacted the Pneumatic Scale Company in Quincy and company President, Kendall Doble, arranged to have four of the urns molded and cast. The company did the job free of charge, out of a sense of historic pride in the city.

Once again the fence was complete.

However, last year, Doris Oberg, a lifelong resident of Quincy and a long time member of the Quincy Historical Society, noticed that three of the decorative urns were again missing from the fence.

With the city making plans for a major revitalization of the downtown area to highlight its historic treasures, Doris decided that the fence around the Hancock Cemetery should be revitalized as well.

She took it upon herself to contact the Pneumatic Scale Company to see if they could do the same job they had done 14 years ago.

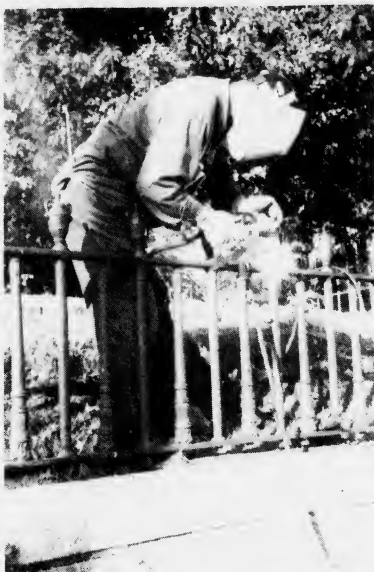

Kendall Doble informed her that the company still had the molds for the urns.

Although only three urns needed to be replaced this time, the company made four of them so that the Quincy Historic Society could have a spare.

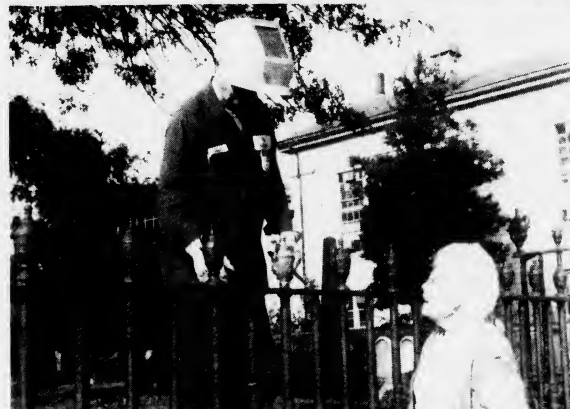

Afterward, Doris contacted the city's Cemetery Department who were more than happy to weld the urns onto the fence. The project fell right into place with the revitalization of historic Quincy Square.

Once again the fence was repaired by a woman.

"I did it out a sense of historic duty," she says.

ONE OF THE MISSING urns from the fence of the historic Hancock Cemetery is replaced by Richard Carnali of the City's Public Works Department. The urns were donated by the Pneumatic Scale Company of Quincy after Historic Society member Doris Oberg decided to try and have them replaced.

RICHARD CARNALI, A welder working for the city, attaches one of the historic urns to the cemetery fence under the watchful eye of Doris Oberg of the Quincy Historical Society.

"That fence ought to be beautiful...and women have always taken care of that fence," she adds, "everything is women."

How To Deal With Chronic Pain

By DANIEL S. KARP
Lic. Ac.

There are millions of people who suffer with chronic pain.

They are the veterans injured in wars, cancer patients, paraplegics, neuralgics, amputees, arthritics, patients suffering with migraine, disc diseases, tendonitis, muscle spasm, psychogenic pain and others.

Numerous methods are available to deal with pain. They encompass drug therapy, biofeedback, behavioral therapy, neurosurgery, nerve block, and electrical stimulation. All of these play an important role in pain management, but none is a universal remedy.

Evidence reveals acupuncture relieves chronic pain. Research shows that it has significant therapeutic potential. It is also free of side effects and toxic burdens which accompany the use of many modern drugs.

In a long-term study conducted by Prof. G. W. Waylonis at Ohio State University, it was concluded that "acupuncture appears to be of significant value in the symptomatic control of pain. From the standpoint of physical medicine it appears to be a modality which may be more effective than any other method of treatment. The duration of acupuncture's effectiveness was best and exceeded all other methods by a 6:1 ratio."

Another report from the University of Alabama Medical School Pain clinic concluded that acupuncture worked in more than 55 percent of the 300 patients in the study. The various types of pain problems treated had been present from one to thirty years and the duration of significant pain relief was as long as six months in some 41 percent in those treated.

Acupuncture has been a valuable part of Chinese medicine for 4,000 years. It is taught in the medical faculties of universities, is included in the medical curriculum, and is practiced by one million doctors in China.

When Choosing A Diet Program . . .

By BOB COLIA

With so many different programs to choose from in the weight loss country, where does one turn for effective weight loss and control? Fads come and go, and so do the pounds. Study after study has shown that an experienced counsellor, teaching nutrition and giving nutritional support, is the most effective way to lose weight, and even more importantly - keep it off.

Keeping the weight off is the key. Many can lose, few can maintain. The barrage of celebrity editorials is now coming to a screetching halt. The reason being that after the celebrities come off of the packaged food plans, their weight gain is very rapid and very noticeable. These paid endorsements, while initially a good advertising ploy, are now thought to be a bad investment. People can see the truth.

When choosing a diet program, look for the following:

1. A daily total of at least 1300 calories.
2. A personalized exercise program based on your basal metabolic rate (metabolism) and your lifestyle.
3. A weight loss of no more than 2 to 3 pounds per week.
4. Honest, experienced counselling.
5. Real food.

Retirement Party Jan. 17 Jackie Whitcomb Retiring At South Shore YMCA

Jackie Whitcomb, administrative assistant at the South Shore YMCA, is retiring from her work after 34 years at the Y.

Since many people have known Jackie throughout the years from her involvement at the Y, YMCA Executive Director Ralph Yohe invites the community to Jackie's retirement party Jan. 17 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, 26 Glendale Rd., beginning at 6 p.m.

Price is $25 per person. Women who were members of the YMCA's Tri-Hi-Y Club under Whitcomb's leadership as teenagers growing up in Quincy during the 1960s and 1970s are being sought by the South Shore YMCA.

The program was close to Mrs. Whitcomb's heart and a reunion of its participants is planned at the retirement party. Yohe asks that anyone with information to the whereabouts of these members call him at the YMCA at 479-8500.

"It will help us make a very memorable evening for Jackie," he added.

Whitcomb started her career at the South Shore YMCA, known then as the Quincy Y, as the Tri-Hi-Y coordinator in 1957. As coordinator, she was like a second mother to hundreds of girls at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools. She was also widely known throughout the city for the variety shows presented by the Tri-Hi-Y club every spring.

In 1971, she became assistant women and girls' director, directing Camp Stepping Stone and serving as assistant director of Camp Clark which still exists today. By 1975, Whitcomb had progressed to youth director for girls and boys programs.

She was named administrative assistant to the executive director of the building operation, and in 1983 became administrative assistant to the general director, a position she has held since.

Working at the South Shore YMCA, she has been a positive influence on many lives, both young and old alike, for 34 years.

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE SHOVELING SNOW

The storm that blew several inches of snow in our direction recently provides an appropriate time to offer a few suggestions on proper shoveling techniques. At the risk of sounding "like a wise guy" the best way to prevent problems shoveling snow is to avoid doing it altogether by using a snowblower or by paying someone to do it for you. Most importantly, any person with a history of heart problems or any person at risk of heart problems should ask their doctor for approval. If you absolutely must shovel snow, the following guidelines may be helpful:

1. Warm up prior to shoveling as you would do before exercising.
2. Pace yourself depending on the conditions. Shoveling heavy wet snow takes a heck of a lot more energy than shoveling fluffy white snow.
3. Use the proper shovel. Using a short, wide, flat bladed shovel may be perfect for pushing light snow, but could be disastrous in trying to shovel (the heavier wet snow). Generally speaking a long handled shovel, or better yet, a "back saver" shovel with a bent shaft, reduces the strain on your back.
4. Keep your back straight, bend with your knees and turn your feet and legs when "throwing the snow." This is crucial because it is usually the quick twist of your back while you are bent over slightly that causes most injuries.
5. Switch sides when shoveling so that you're not always throwing the snow in the same direction.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock Street, North Quincy, 773-4400.

During this special time of year when friends and family gather, we'd like to take a moment to thank our own friends and family. To more than one million customers, over 100,000 businesses and especially to the more than 12,000 dedicated men and women of Bank of New England, a sincere and heartfelt "thank you" for all that we've accomplished together in 1990.

Chretien Receives Fenn Award From JFK Library

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien recently presented the 1990 Fenn Award for political leadership at the John F. Kennedy Library.

Chretien, a two-term member of the City Council, has been instrumental in developing and mobilizing support for the city's extensive recycling program.

At 26, he made recycling his top priority while campaigning for the Ward 3 seat in 1987. For the past three years, he has helped manage the effort to bring a full-scale program to Quincy, a task some community leaders said could not be done.

The program began in May, 1988 as a bi-weekly collection of newspaper. During the program's first year, 3,038 tons of paper were diverted from the waste stream for a savings of $200,000.

Last August, the program expanded to a weekly collection of paper, glass and plastics. Through Dec. 7, some 2,356 tons had been collected for a savings of $93,500.

Besides saving city dollars, officials point to its environmental benefits.

A lifelong Quincy resident, Chretien is a graduate of Syracuse University College of Science and Forestry. He received his master's degree from Northeastern University.

Chretien received the award during a recent Kennedy Library conference, "American Politics: The Challenge of Change." The program was organized for young people who worked this year on political campaigns.

The award is named for Dan. H. Fenn Jr., the first director of the Kennedy Library. It recognizes an elected Massachusetts official, age 35 or under, whose actions and leadership have contributed to the solution of a tough problem.

The previous three award recipients are: Senator William Keating of Sharon; Medford City Councillor Patricia Doherty; and Representative Kevin Blanchette of Lawrence.

Auto Theft Prevention

Over a million cars were stolen in the United States last year. Millions more were vandalized or stripped.

A car doesn't have to be new and shiny to be tempting. One former professional car thief has stated, "I didn't care what kind of car it was, as long as it moved and was easy to steal." Even though your car is ordinary the professional thief may have his eye on it simply because his car-theft ring has an order for one like it or a ready market for the parts. And an older car is worth more these days - the market value for used cars is way up.

According to the FBI most cars are stolen by "amateurs." And they're stolen because they're easy to steal. Eighty percent of all cars stolen last year were unlocked at the time. Believe it or not, forty percent actually had the keys in the ignition. If you lock up and pocket the keys, most amateurs won't bother breaking in. It's easier to shop for another car.

Some prevention tips:

- Roll the windows up tight.
- Store spare keys in your wallet, not in the car. A professional thief knows all the hiding places.
- Replace standard door lock buttons with slim, tapered kind. They're almost impossible to pull up with a coat hanger.

• No matter how quick the errand, never leave your car running. Not even in your driveway. Many amateur thieves hang out at compact stores waiting for an unattended car with the engine running.

• Make it time consuming to steal your car and the thief will probably try his luck on someone else's car.

Anti-Theft Devices:

Kill Switch - Like have a second ignition switch. The car won't start unless the hidden switch is activated.

Alarm system - Loud warning alarm sounds an alert if car is tampered with or jostled.

Fuel switch - Closes a valve that cuts off the fuel supply.

Armored Collar - A metal shield that locks around the steering column and covers the ignition.

Crook lock - Bar locks steering wheel to brake pedal.

The "Club" or "Nightstick" - Mounts on steering wheel. Vehicle cannot be driven with this in place.

Lo-Jack - Theft and recovery systems. A tracking system is mounted in your vehicle. If it is stolen police can locate it easily. (Anti-theft device is also recommended with this system.)

Anti-theft devices work, if they are used properly. Use of this of anti-theft device as well as other precautions will make your car less of a target.

Hockey

Things Looking Up At Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN

The hockey scene is much brighter at Quincy this season and the Presidents are beginning to look more like the tournament teams of old.

The Presidents won just one game each of the past two seasons but last week won two games for the first time in more than two years to improve to 3-2.

Quincy defeated Marshfield, 7-3, last Friday as Scott MacPherson, who has nine goals and seven assists on the season, had three goals and three assists. Earlier this year he scored four goals in a game.

Jimmy Smith, Derek Mullen, Jeff Craig and Dave Mullen scored a goal each and goalie Scott Mann had another outstanding game. He had 22 saves.

Earlier last week the Presidents defeated Taunton, 7-3, as sophomore Sean McArdle scored two goals in the opening period and added two assists.

Smith also had a goal in the first period as Quincy took a 3-1 lead. Craig also had two goals and Scott D. MacPherson (not the high scorer) and Dave Mullen each had one. The high scoring Scott MacPherson had two assists. Mann continued his sparkling play in goal and had 28 saves.

"These kids have done just a terrific job," said Coach Bob Sylvia. "They are very small physically and are still inexperienced. It is amazing the way they can take hits from much bigger players. This is one of the hardest working and most dedicated groups I have ever worked with."

Quincy played Marshfield again last night (Wednesday), will play at Silver Lake Saturday at 6:45 and will host Weymouth next Wednesday night at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

The North Quincy hockey team improved to 2-1-2 last week with a 3-1 non-league victory over Durfee of Fall River.

The Raiders played at Taunton last night (Wednesday), will host Weymouth Saturday night at 7:50 at the Quincy Youth arena and will play at Bridgewater - Raynham next Wednesday at 7 o'clock.

Dan Savage, Mike O'Brien and Bill Lydon scored for North Quincy against Durfee (3-2) and Mike DesRoche and Sean Vermette each had two assists.

Dennis Ruggere had a fine game in goal for the Raiders.

In its previous game North had rebounded from a one-sided loss to Barnstable to tie Falmouth, 1-1.

Since the regular season is over, this was the last week of the football contest.

Richard Barry Golf Tourney Raises $3,405 For Cancer

The first Richard W. Barry Memorial Golf Tournament was a big success as it raised $3,405 for the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Mr. Barry, who died of cancer earlier this year, was a prominent Quincy attorney and a former city solicitor.

"Dick Barry was a wonderful person and we wanted to do something in his memory that would help in the fight against cancer," said Amy Webb, who along with Bill McPhee, organized the tournament.

The tournament was held in October at Pembroke Country Club with 144 men and women participating. Winners were Ronnie Shone, and Joy Hayes of Scituate, and Greg Webb or Norwell.

"The response was outstanding and we now hope to make it a yearly event," Webb said.

"We are extremely grateful to the organizers of and participants in this benefit event," said Barbara Sullivan of the American Cancer Society.

"This was a spontaneous and most generous gift and we pledge that the funds will be used to help fight cancer and to serve patients and their families on the South Shore," Sullivan said.

The South Shore Unit of the Cancer Society carries on a program of information, public and professional education and patient service in Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth.

Bogan Named To Globe All-Scholastic Team

Quincy's Mark Bogan was named to the 1990 Boston Globe All-Scholastic Football Team.

cepting four passes, bringing his career total to seven. The senior led Quincy to an 8-1 season. His best in 20 years. He finished with 17 touchdowns and five two-point conversions for 112 points. He also gained 1,275 yards rushing and marked 575 receptions. He hopes to major in business in college.

Basketball

North Quincy Falls To B.C. High

The Boston College High basketball team rebounded from a dismal first half and gained a measure of revenge Friday night when it defeated North Quincy, 53-40, at the Eagles' gym.

A year ago North knocked B.C. High, coached by Quincy's Brian Buckley, out of the Eastern Mass. Tournament with a late-season win.

The teams will clash again on February when they compete in the Red Raider Tournament.

North held a 22-21 lead at halftime but Mark Amorosino, son of former Quincy High coach Joe Amorosino and the Eagles' top scorer, led his team from behind in the second half as nine players scored for the winners. B.C. High is 2-3.

Capt. Brian Curran, as usual, led North (1-3) with 19 points, the first time he has been held under 20.

North Quincy played at Taunton last night (Wednesday), will host Silver Lake Friday night at 7 o'clock and will be home to Bridgewater-Raynham next Tuesday at 7.

Quincy, winner of two straight after losing two, has been idle for a week and returned to action last night against Plymouth. The Presidents will play at New Bedford Friday at 7 o'clock and will be at Taunton next Tuesday at 7.

North Girls Have Eyes On Tourney Berth

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, hoping to make the Eastern Mass. tournament for the seventh time in 11 years and the second year in a row, is off to a good start in that direction.

The North girls improved their record to 4-0 with a 43-25 victory over Somerville in the opening round of the North Christmas Classic.

North faced Winchester, a 38-24 winner over Marshfield, in the tournament final.

Ken Penaro's North girls faced Taunton last night (Wednesday), will be at Silver Lake Friday night at 7 and will play at Bridgewater-Raynham next Tuesday night at 7.

North featured balanced scoring in defeating Somerville as Tricia Hughes, Joanna Rugnetta, Kara Sullivan and Jen Santry each scored six points.

Meanwhile, the Quincy girls (2-3) snapped a three-game losing streak with a last-second 48-46 win over Arlington.

Senior Jennifer Dondoro was the hero as she had 12 points and seven assists, and hit two free throws with 19 second left for the win.

Junior Kim Marsden also had 12 points for Quincy.

Quincy played at Plymouth last night (Wednesday), will host New Bedford Friday at 5 o'clock and will be home to Taunton next Tuesday at 5.

Quincy Freshmen Rack Up 2 Big Victories

The Quincy boys' freshman basketball team, coached by Mike Dracchio, came up with two big victories last week, defeating Weymouth, 69-67, and topping North Quincy, 61-54.

Against Weymouth Joe Kelly and Mike Aupperlee scored 14 points apiece, Jim Cipriano 12 and Capt. Jon Gangi and Tom Malvesti 10 each. Don Goss, Joe Manton, Mark Furbush, Chris Swanton and Walter Spadorcia played strong defense.

Quincy trailed North Quincy by five points at the half but played outstanding defense to come from behind.

Cipriano scored 18 of his 20 points in the second half to turn the game around and also stood out defensively. Gangi had 17 points and stood out on defense, Malvesti had 10 and Aupperlee, Mike Dutton, Kelly, Furbush and Swanton all played fine two-way ball.

"I am proud of the way the boys came back against North Quincy," said Dracchio. "Cipriano was unbelievable in the second half. It was just a great win and a nice Christmas present."

Bob Johnston had 22 points and Brian Raftery 20 for North and Kevin Ross was outstanding defensively.

Essay History Contest On Women Shipyard Workers

An essay contest designed to collect a history of women shipbuilders from the Fore River and Hingham shipyards is underway.

Broad Meadows Middle School and the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor have teamed up to sponsor the "Winnie the Welders" essay contest.

South Shore residents are asked to interview women who worked for Bethlehem Steel's Shipbuilding division during World War II. The essay should include the woman's experiences, struggles, sacrifices and achievements at the shipyard and at home.

Contest organizers hope that ideally women will submit their own entries, telling firsthand about being a Winnie the Welder, and what that experience meant in her life.

Deadline for entries is Feb. 26, 1991 and should be mailed to: Winnie the Welder Essay Contest, c/o Ron Adams, Broad Meadows Middle School, Quincy 02169. For information call 944-8723 or 335-3647.

Entries may contain photos, diary entries or other memorabilia.

Students at Broad Meadows began researching the history of the Fore River Shipyard in 1985. Students shared their work through a Massachusetts Educational Television documentary "Quincy Pride: Quincy Shipbuilding," and a recently broadcast "Tour of the Old Fore River Shipyard".

The students hope to publish a booklet of contest entries by 1992, the 50th anniversary of the first women hired at Fore River as shipbuilders.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

It has been said that a smile costs nothing, but gives much. It enriches those who receive, without making poorer those who give. It creates happiness in the home, fosters good will in business, and is the countersign of friendship. It brings rest to the weary, cheer to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and it is nature's best antidote for trouble. Yet it cannot be bought, begged, borrowed, or stolen, for it is something that is of no value to anyone until it is given away.

Few of us realize the power of a smile. Many clergymen do as do politicians and salesmen.

But many who could benefit enormously by a cheerful smile seldom use it, or practice it.

Granted some are, naturally, shy - in our fast, loud world. Some are, understandably, burdened by problems and worries ... Others are under various forms of tension, pressure or emotion. So it is not always easy.

Nevertheless, practice smiling. The result will astonish you - in making new friends - making better friends - making better business relationships - and a better bank balance! ...

At QCA Housing Services

Quincy Community Action's Housing Services reports the return of its Landlord Counselor.

The counselor is available to answer questions on a variety of property management issues: landlord rights and responsibilities, fair housing law, lead paint, security deposits and more.

Educational workshops are held on a regular basis. Workshop topics have included Rental Subsidies, Energy Conservation & Weatherization, Tenant Screening and more.

Mediation is offered as an alternative to eviction.

Mediation is a process in which landlords and tenants meet with a neutral third party to resolve disputes. It is voluntary, confidential and the parties involved work out their own settlement.

Property owners should feel free to contact the landlord counselor for information or referrals at 479-8181, Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 8:30 to 1. Quincy Community Action's Housing Services Program is funded by the Executive Office of Communities & Development.

Sheets Moves To Tighten City's Belt No Layoffs, No Raises Level Funded Budgets For Police, Fire, Schools

MAYOR JAMES A. SHEETS delivers his State of the City Address at the Mid-Term Meeting of the City Council Monday in the Council Chamber.

Over $727,000 Owed Foreclosure Action On Back Taxes

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city is preparing to take foreclosure action on approximately 274 delinquent real estate tax titles if the taxes totalling $727,279 are not paid.

Deadline to pay the outstanding FY 1990 bills is Thursday, Jan. 24 at 10 a.m., said Tax Collector/Treasurer Dana Childs. Once the deadline passes, the city can take the first legal step toward foreclosure, Childs said.

"The next step is the actual taking of tax titles. From there, the foreclosure process begins at the land court (in Deudham)," he said. "We have had some foreclosures in the past," Childs added.

Last year, the city had approximately 300 delinquent tax titles totalling nearly $600,000. Of those titles, the tax collector filed 47 petitions of foreclosure.

The remaining titles were filed under Chapter 11 (bankruptcy) or a payment plan was devised, Childs noted.

The real estate tax titles range from homes and businesses to vacant lots and "some that are balances left when the taxpayer paid the original bill late."

Childs said.

A complete list of outstanding real estate tax titles is in the legal advertisement section of The Quincy Sun placed by the city. The titles are listed alphabetically on Pages 20-27.

Besides the delinquent real estate revenue, Childs said there is approximately $30,000 in water and sewer liens. "That amount is not unusual," he said.

Given the city's growing fiscal restraints, Childs said it is important to collect as much delinquent tax money as possible.

"Collecting the delinquent money absolutely means more now than before," Childs said. He explained that delinquent tax money which is collected can lessen the amount of revenue the city has to borrow.

The less money the city has to borrow, the more it saves on interest.

"If we don't have the money in our cash flow, we have to borrow and then pay interest. The money we pay in interest could be used for other things," Childs said.

Delinquent money also drains the city's free cash account.

"Any increase in

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Declaring the city will endure another fiscally grim year during fiscal 1991, Mayor James A. Sheets pledged to avoid layoffs and level fund education and public safety during his Mid-Term Address Monday before a filled City Council Chamber.

In his 23-minute address, Sheets remained upbeat despite the bleak fiscal forecast for the next fiscal year which will begin July 1. The mayor pointed to the successes of his first year in office as reason to believe the city will overcome the deepening financial crisis.

Specifically, Sheets said he would not close one city school or fire station while vowing to maintain the present levels of fire equipment and the number of Quincy patrol officers which he called "our front line against crime." He also pledged to avoid shifting different grades from one school to another while covering at least $718,000 on mandated school program cost increases, such as special education.

To obtain his budget priorities, Sheets said the remaining city departments would have to be cut by four percent.

Text Of Mayor's Address Page 15

"We hope to do this through natural attrition of personnel, retirement by incentives, cutting expenses and quarterly tax billing," he said.

Because fiscal restraints are tightening, the mayor said he would not propose a capital outlay budget. Instead, he said he will recommend to the City Council Jan. 21 a $1.9 million bond issue which will "allow us to meet a number of public safety and other needs both in the school system and the general government."

With all 21 city unions facing contract renewals this year, the mayor said the FY Sheets also said he would recommend approval of quarterly property tax bills instead of the present semi-annually mailing. Such a move would save the city between $300,000 and $500,000 on temporary borrowing, he pointed out.

Despite the fiscal woes, the mayor said the city will move toward creating a full-scale recycling center at no cost to the city, a national heritage park and an expanded "Cleaner, Greener" program.

Calling tourism the city's next major industry, Sheets said his administration will continue talks with the National Park Service in an effort to form a National Heritage Park in Quincy. The mayor said the city, which received a $250,000 federal grant for tourism last year, will again lobby for more federal money this year.

Lastly, the mayor said a

Mayor's Mid-Term Draws Praise

Reaction to Mayor James A. Sheets' Mid-Term Address Monday was mostly favorable and positive.

Several past and present city officials interviewed gave the mayor high marks for his leadership the past year. All said they support his fiscal 1992 budget priorities, most notably the school, fire and police departments.

However, some questioned whether the mayor can avoid layoffs and level fund education and public safety. Nonetheless, they all voiced their support for the course Sheets has charted for the city during 1991.

Senator Paul Harold: "The mayor's speech was well done. I think we can be confident that we have at the helm a strong and steady hand, someone who's knowledgeable not just in municipal finance but the priorities of city government—fire, police and education."

Asked whether Sheets' goals for no layoffs and level funding of education and public safety can be achieved, Harold replied, "I think it's realistic in that we're talking only about level funding, we're not talking about any pay raises or any new capital outlay equipment."

"I think it's realistic; it's going to impact other departments obviously if we're going to level fund those priority areas. But I've spoken to the mayor about state aid and I think level funding is realistic."

Asked what he can do on Beacon Hill to help the city financially, Harold said, "We're trying to point out that even though on paper Quincy is more affluent than other communities, we have to point out that we should be rewarded for efficiencies that we've made over the years and not be penalized for it."

"We're looking for local

LIFESAVER: QUINCY FIREFIGHTER/EMT Ralph Bucchiianeri is credited with saving the life of a one week old infant who was choking on formula. He was working on the 911 emergency line Dec. 26 when he received a call from Mrs. Salvatore Tortomassi of Mass Ave., who said her baby was not breathing. Bucchiianeri instructed the mother to place the baby upside down on her forearm, with his forehead in her palm, and to slap him on the back. The effort was successful and the baby was transported to the hospital for examination.

New Safety Posts, Warning Signs For Ward One

In conjunction with Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom and Police Officer Paul Curtin, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson announces safety posts and warning signs have been procured for use in high intensity traffic areas in Ward 1, including Sea St.

The four-foot high portable safety posts and warning signs were purchased from the Barco Company in Illinois. Kolson said he expects the visible signs will be more effective than the short cones.

Kolson said the measure is another step toward protecting the safety of students traveling to and from school in Ward 1.

'Evergreen Quincy' Success

Nearly 2,000 Christmas Trees Turned In For City Mulching

The city's "Evergreen Quincy" program has proven even more successful than anticipated, according to Honorary Chairman Leo Kelly, and could result in as many as 2,000 new trees planted throughout the city in the spring.

That's double Kelly's previously anticipated results.

The program, which was devised by Kelly, sponsored by the J.M. Cashman Company and supported by Mayor James Sheets and the city, is unique in the state as it couples recycling of Christmas trees with the planting of new trees which are crucial to the environment.

The "Evergreen Quincy" program asked residents who purchased a live Christmas tree this season to swap that tree for a smaller living tree after the holidays.

Residents who bring their trees to the city's Park and Recreation facility, 100 Southern Artery, to be mulched will receive a coupon good for an 18-inch evergreen tree which can be planted in April.

As of Monday of this week, Kelly said, some 1,700 coupons had been handed out with a full week remaining in the program.

Residents may bring their trees to be mulched through Jan. 12 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. and on Saturdays between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Those who do not celebrate Christmas or who did not purchase a live tree this year can get a coupon by bringing used wrapping paper to be recycled instead. Kelly said "a roomful" of wrapping paper has already been collected.

"Last Saturday we handed out 576 coupons for the live trees," he said. "It was an incredible four hours."

Throughout the day, he said, he noticed several parents explaining to their children the importance of recycling and of planting trees.

"There was a lot of nice feeling about the environment," he said. "People are concerned about it and are aware of the desperate shape it's in."

In April, when residents redeem the coupons for the trees, they may either plant the tree on their own property, or, if they do not have space for it, may plant it in an area designated by the city.

Many already have an idea of where they want to plant it, he said. Congressman Brian Donnelly has donated his tree to Father Bill's Place and his children plan to plant the tree at the shelter in April.

Ten residents of a condominium complex in the city plan to plant their trees on the grounds, Kelly said.

In addition, girl scouts and other organizations have participated and will be planting trees throughout the city.

In April, which is designated as National Environment Month, the city plans a full week of environmental events, including educational seminars and demonstrations city-wide, Kelly said.

Kelly said he is pleased to see parents and children participating in the program together as "Evergreen Quincy" is geared toward education about the environment.

"Hopefully young people can look at the planting of this tree as the beginning of their commitment to the environment," he said, "and that's a lifelong commitment. Hopefully they'll have it as an adult, an awareness and an involvement in the environment."

Jan. 30 Vote Expected Anselmo Vacancy To Be Filled At Joint Convention

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
A joint convention of the City Council and School Committee will likely be held Wednesday, Jan. 30 in order to fill a vacancy on the School Committee created after long-time member Frank Anselmo resigned last week.

On Tuesday, Mayor James A. Sheets said he would probably call the convention for Jan. 30 early next week.

Anselmo, 92, was first elected to the school committee in 1961 at the age of 62. Having served on the committee for 29 years, he was believed to be the oldest public official in the nation when he stepped down.

Anselmo, an education enthusiast and vocal supporter, said he resigned because of a physical disability. Five weeks ago, he was diagnosed with a damaged tendon in his left arm. Unable to raise his hand and get out of bed on his own, he decided to end his political career.

Although the movement in his arm has returned, Anselmo said Monday he will not withdraw his resignation.

The resignation, read by the mayor at last week's school committee meeting, was effective immediately. With his term set to expire in November, city councillors and school committee members will meet to fill the vacancy.

Among the names already mentioned are former school committee members Margaret Nigro and Daniel Raymond, former candidates Judith Brams and Gary Fine, and education activists Toni Kabilian and Joanne Bragg.

One City Hall source said Nigro has "the inside track" with four votes already locked up. She is friends with School Committee Member Mary Collins and Councillor Michael Cheney.

In the past, vacancies have been filled by the first runner up in the last school committee election. But that will change this year.

Quincy Patrol Officer Richard Crespi, who finished ahead of two other candidates but behind winners Ronald Mariano, Mary Collins and Frank Santoro in the 1989 city election, moved to Hanover two weeks ago. School committee members must be Quincy residents to sit on the board.

In the 1989 election, Crespi was fourth, Fine finished fifth and Brams sixth.

The last time a vacancy occurred on the school committee was the summer of 1989 when former member Christopher Kennedy died. At a joint convention, Robert Jarris was appointed to fill the vacancy until the November election.

Usually, city councillors and school committee members try to appoint someone who will be satisfied filling the vacancy and not desire re-election.

In the case of the Kennedy vacancy, Jarris did not seek election. The unexpired term was eventually filled by Mary Jane Powers who defeated Charles Sweeney at the ballot box.

Sheets, who will preside at the joint convention, said he would probably not vote, even in the case of a tie. A tie is realistic since nine councillors and five school committee members will likely attend the convention for a total of 14 votes.

In the case of a tie, more ballots would have to be taken until someone receives a simple majority.

In 1989, Sheets did not vote as a city councillor at the joint convention because then City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie said he would be in conflict. At the time, Sheets was on the faculty staff at Quincy College, a municipal institution.

Even though he is no longer employed by the college, the mayor still believes he should not vote. He also said he will not speak on any candidate's behalf.

SKIPPED BEATS AND EXTRA BEATS

Many people discover that by lying in a certain position, they can somehow hear or feel their heart beating. This is quite normal, but may be alarming, especially so if a beat is missed or an extra beat is heard. The patient may also be aware of a painless fluttering or jumping sensation in the chest. Although an irregular heartbeat can have many causes, most are not serious. Skipped beats or extra beats can be brought on by fatigue, tension, a cold, tea, coffee or chocolate, tobacco, and by many medications. They have no damaging effect on the heart. The physician should always be consulted to rule out the presence of serious heart disease. Treatment of minor heart irregularities usually consist of providing reassurance. A mild sedative may be prescribed, and exercise can often help make extra heart beats disappear.

P.S. If the problem persists, the doctor can prescribe a variety of medications to regulate the heartbeat.

It is important to pay attention to symptoms of irregularity or pain; this is your body's way of communicating imbalance or possible poor health. However, even if you feel great, nothing can beat a regular and complete check-up to help guarantee your continued health. We urge you to think preventatively. Call 472-2550 for more information. What About Other People's Rights?

City Council President Ted DeCristofaro is a firm believer in the rights guaranteed by the First Amendment.

He served with the Navy aboard a small corvette in the choppy, German submarine infested North Atlantic during World War II to protect those rights.

But he feels they are too often abused by some people who don't care one bit about the rights or feelings of others.

Like foul-mouthed individuals who spew four-letter words and other obscenities like a profane volcano under the guise of freedom of speech.

DeCristofaro, who doesn't use profanity, says: "Everybody has rights. But how about my rights, your rights and other people's rights. A mother, a wife, a daughter have the right not to be offended. What about their rights and other people who don't want to be subjected to foul language in public places?"

"Why is it that those who abuse the First Amendment get all the rights while the rest of us have to put up with it?"

DeCristofaro doesn't think the Founding Fathers had four-letter words in mind when they guaranteed freedom of speech.

Their idea of freedom of speech he feels is the right to express opinions and beliefs in public. But not to swear and offend other people.

The recently passed city ordinance banning profanity in public places in Quincy has gained attention throughout the country and from as far away as Australia. It is punishable by a $100 fine.

DeCristofaro, who with Mayor James Sheets and five other city councilors supported the ordinance, spent the Christmas-New Years holiday period on radio talk shows via telephone.

The shows were held in New York, Washington, D.C., Louisiana, Los Angeles and San Francisco. In addition, DeCristofaro was interviewed by an Australian video station.

"Seventy five to 80 percent of the callers on the talk shows were definitely in favor of the ordinance," he says.

"Fifteen to 20 percent thought the ordinance was good but were concerned about the First Amendment. But they were happy something was being done about profanity in public places."

DeCristofaro said there were eight callers (New York and California) "vehemently opposed" to the ordinance because of the First Amendment.

What about people here in Quincy?
"People I have talked with in Quincy say it is a good idea. That it is about time somebody did something to curb profanity in public places."

The ordinance was passed on a 6-2 vote with Councillors Mike Cheney and Tom Fabrizio opposed. Voting for it in addition to DeCristofaro were Lawrence Chretien, Peter Kolson, Charles Phelan, Thomas Nutley and Patricia Toland. Councillor Tim Cahill was not present because of illness.

Chretien and Toland now seem to have second thoughts and there may be a move for reconsideration.

Under City Council procedure, it would have to be someone from the prevailing side -- one of the six who voted for it -- to bring the matter back for reconsideration.

If it were reconsidered and the ordinance was killed or amended it would have to go back to Mayor Sheets who no doubt would veto the vote. It would then go back to the council where six votes would be necessary to override Sheets' veto.

"I will not change my vote," says DeCristofaro. "And I will not vote for reconsideration. I think it (the ordinance) is what people want. The direction in which they want us to go."

DeCristofaro is heartened by the radio talk show reaction and that of Quincy residents and a letter from a South Natick woman who said:

"This kind of speech (profanity) is the worst form of air pollution. Nobody objects to cleaning the air of smoke but I do see, to my dismay, an objection to your law. Bless you for taking a stand."

The debate between opponents of the ordinance including the Civil Liberties Union and proponents may actually be academic.

TED

Apparently overlooked in all the publicity about the new ordinance is the fact that there has been an ordinance on the books since 1978.

Chapter 13, Section 40, Order No. 454 says:

"No person shall behave himself in a rude or disorderly manner, nor use indecent, offensive, profane, lewd, boisterous or abusive language in any street, public place or public building in the city."

It carries a fine of up to $200.

Regardless of whether there is duplication between the new ordinance and the old one, DeCristofaro has one more thought:

"Profane language in a public place whether it be a park, a beach or building where a lot of people have gathered can lead to violence when someone uses profanity and someone else objects to it."

QUINCY'S FOUR FORMER mayors -- Walter

Hannon, Joseph

LaRaia, Arthur

Tobin and Frank

McCauley -- were special invited guests at Mayor

James Sheets' and the City Council's mid-term ceremonies

Monday. And, how times have changed.

Tobin and LaRaia who slugged it out in one of the city's bitterest mayoral campaigns in 1977 (Tobin the winner) and hardly spoke to one another for a long time afterwards, sat side by side in the City Council chamber and chatted amicably. Hannon and McCauley sat to the right of them.

LaRaia, however, dashed off right after the ceremonies as Sun photographer Tom Gorman was trying to line up a photo for posterity of the four former mayors with Sheets. So Gorman got three former mayors and Sheets instead.

JAMES D'OLIMPIO, former superintendent of maintenance for the Quincy Housing Authority, is interested in appointment to the QHA board of commissioners.

In fact, he has submitted an application to Mayor Sheets. Frank Kearns' term expires in February. Sheets can either reappoint him or name someone new.

D'Olimpio is no stranger to the Housing Authority having served 17½ years there, 10½ as superintendent of maintenance. He retired in August, 1988.

SAL GIARRATANI of Atlantic St., North Quincy, is thinking of making a run for the Ward 6 City Council seat now held by Tom Nutley.

Giarratani, 42, is a police officer with the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health in Boston. He's a Republican and was active in Joseph Malone's campaign for state treasurer.

Giarratani writes a political column for a North End, Boston weekly and keeps the Postal Service busy with letters to editors of other newspapers including The Sun.

Major concerns he sees are recent cutbacks in public education and public safety. And he thinks affordable housing is another issue that needs addressing at City Hall.

Quincy Partnership To Light Crane Library June 14

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
The Quincy Partnership, Inc. will mark Flag Day--June 14--with the outdoor lighting of the Thomas Crane Public Library, the second historical building to be lighted by a group of local business people involved in the "Light Quincy" program.

The historic Adams Academy building was illuminated last Oct. 30.

To help raise funds for the project, the group is sponsoring a dance on Valentine's Day, Thursday, Feb. 14 from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Galleria of Presidents Place in Quincy Center.

The theme of the benefit dance is "Quincy's Light Fantastic."

Edward Keohane, president of Keohane Funeral Homes, Inc., and partnership chairman, said many city business are donating their services for the project.

Presidents Place is donating the use of its atrium for the event and free parking in the complex's garage to those attending.

Coddington's Restaurant, located in the Galleria, will provide hors d'oeuvres and the Common Market Cafe Singers will entertain. Roger's Jewelry in Quincy Square is donating an item to be raffled at the dance.

Tickets are $25 per person and can be purchased at these businesses: Curry Hardware Home Centers in West Quincy and Norfolk Downs. Barry's Deli and Roger's Jewelry in Quincy Center, The Ink Spot in Wollaston and Doran and Horrigan Insurance in North Quincy.

Peacetime Employment Highest At Shipyard

John T. Wiseman, general manager of the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Boston district, said employment at the Fore River Shipyard had reached 8,000, a peacetime high, and was expected to increase to 9,500 in the next few months.

In Navy work, the shipyard was completing the cruiser USS Salem, converting a destroyer, converting the cruiser USS Northampton to a fleet command ship and had contracts to build two large destroyers.

Other work included completion of five tankers that had already been laid down, five other tankers to be started soon and contracts to build two ships for the American Export Lines.

Sam Wakeman, the shipyard manager, said Fore River also was ready to bid on a $30 million contract to build two passenger ships for the Grace Lines.

OLD COLONY RIDERS DROP

Alexander Purdon, executive vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, said a recent sharp decrease in commuters on the Old Colony Railroad was threatening the future of passenger service on the line.

"The hopes of retaining rail passenger service in the South Shore decreases in almost direct proportion to the drop in commuter patronage," he said.

The deadline set by the parent New Haven Railroad for abandonment of passenger service on the Old Colony line was only seven weeks away.

The Quincy Civic Association announced plans to hold a "practice" election under Plan E procedures at the Woodward School for Girls.

Practice is necessary, said Melvin Thorne of the QCA, "so that voters will familiarize themselves with the intricacies of the new system before the actual election."

Profanity Is The Least Of Our Worries

Editor, the Quincy Sun:
You know, with all the problems facing the city of Quincy such as affordable housing and quality public education, one would think the foolishness of an anti-profanity ordinance would be at the bottom of any public policy list, but not so in the City of Presidents.

Recently, Mayor Sheets endorsed the passage of the ordinance and the Quincy City Council blindly followed by passing such a political profanity by a 6-2 vote.

According to City Hall, anyone caught swearing can be fined $100 and face arrest, as if the police department didn't have better things to do with their time. The mayor is, apparently, concerned that hordes of tourists from across the nation will be so offended by youths hurling four-letter words, that they will stop getting off the T at Quincy Center never again to set foot on

McIntyre mall. Someone ought to tell the powers-that-be at City Hall to wake up from their delusionary dream world. Profanity is the least of our worries. Quincy citizens are far more concerned with the laying off of city teachers or fire fighters or police officers to balance budgets, and as rents soar in our city neighborhoods, many working-class families are swearing as they pack up and leave town in search of affordable housing. What a sad commentary for Quincy. New lamp posts in Downtown Quincy and new orange "Stop" barrels for intersections while people say good-bye and good riddance to Quincy politics.

Our pols would rather make quickie headlines pretending to be Siskel & Ebert while the city's infrastructure continues to crumble. Will the mayor and city council now start reviewing all movies playing at the Quincy Fair Mall and how about cable television? After all, a swear is a swear but then again, who's doing the defining here?

It is time for the mayor's office and city council to get on with the serious business of government. The city need politicians who see beyond headlines and silly slogans like "Cleaner, Greener Quincy."

The city needs elected officials dealing with issues such as decent levels of city services to all its citizenry from the Neponset bridge to the Fore River bridge and from Quincy's beaches to the Braintree and Milton lines.

Get off the anti-profanity bandwagon and start steering the city toward real political leadership.

Egg Plant And Cutlet Casserole

When my friend Barbara said she had never sat at our bar, I decided to have "luncheon at the bar" because a group of our friends were all heading to Florida.

Of course lunch did not consist of my favorite tuna sandwich or hot dog, but instead, eggplant casserole with cutlet. Here is an easy way to prepare it which I did the day before.

EGGPLANT AND CUTLET CASSEROLE

- 1 medium sized eggplant (cut in thin round slices)
- seasoned breadcrumbs mixed with cornflake crumbs
- 1 egg mixed with a little milk and some Romano grated cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Vegetable oil to saute eggplant rounds
- Tomato sauce
- Grated cheese and some shredded cheddar

After you cut the eggplant, place in the egg and milk mixture and then the crumbs. Saute, drain and set aside. Do the exact same thing with the cutlets whether they be chicken or veal. (Chicken is much cheaper). After the cutlets cool, cut them about the same size as the eggplant. This makes it much easier to serve and eat. Start in a slightly greased baking pan or casserole dish and place some tomato sauce, then the eggplant, then some grated cheese, then the cutlets and then some sauce. Continue this until all the ingredients are used and then top it off with grated cheddar cheese (or any favorite).

Bake covered in a 350 degree oven for about 20 minutes and then uncovered for another 10 minutes or so until its bubbly. We served it with homemade gnocchi that my husband made!

Hospital Wants Dunkin Donuts In Front Lobby

Quincy Hospital wants to place a Dunkin Donuts in the front lobby.

The License Board Tuesday continued the hearing on the request for two weeks.

According to a representative from the hospital, there is a designated area in the lobby of the new building at the hospital for a coffee shop. The original plans, which were reviewed by the City Council, included space for a professional coffee shop to replace the hospital's vending machines.

Albert Capraro, President of Cap Group, Inc., doing business as Dunkin Donuts, told the board the shop would be licensed under his name and not under the hospital. The shop would be a "satellite" Dunkin Donut shop, he said, and would offer employees and visitors everything that other Dunkin Donut Shops offer, including sandwiches and soups.

Fire Chief Tom Gorinan said, without disrespect to Dunkin Donuts, he feels the inclusion of the donut shop in the hospital would not promote "a good image."

More importantly, he said, the shop in the front lobby could hinder the Fire Department in the event of a fire emergency at the hospital.

Capraro said the shop would be hidden behind a marble wall in the lobby and would not be a hindrance as it would be located over toward the left of the lobby.

The members of the License Board will make a site visit to the hospital and evaluate the exact location for the proposed shop. Floor plans will also be submitted for review.

Head Lice A Problem But No Epidemic At Schools

By JANE ARENA

Although there have been some recent cases of head lice among Quincy School students, School officials say it is a normal and recurring problem and is not an epidemic.

The Quincy Sun contacted school officials after receiving an anonymous letter from a Quincy parent concerned about a possible problem.

"It is a reality, but it is not an epidemic," School Superintendent Dr. Robert Ricci told The Sun Monday.

Ricci said he received a "complaint" about head lice prior to the Christmas school vacation and notified School Nurse Director, Rosalie Barry, about it.

He said Barry reported cases in students at the Parker and Squantum elementary schools, and told him that the proper procedure had been followed.

When a child is found to have head lice, or, as it is known scientifically, "pediculosis," Barry told The Sun, the parents are notified and the child is sent home with a set of instructions for the parents. In addition, the school nurse will check fellow classmates of the student and any siblings. If the child has siblings enrolled in other city schools those school nurses will be notified, she said.

If three or more cases are discovered in one classroom, she added, the school nurse will send a mailing home to parents of everyone in the class and sometimes to everyone in the school.

Although at the time of the complaint only one child had been sent home from the Squantum School with head lice, Barry said she decided to send out a school-wide mailing just before vacation to tell parents what to look for and what to do if a problem is discovered. She also wanted to squelch any alarm that may have been caused through rumors about a head lice epidemic.

"Rumors fly," she said, "and it got built out of proportion...some people felt that there was an epidemic and they jumped to conclusions, but there was only one child that had been sent home that week."

Barry said the school had been receiving calls from parents concerned about an epidemic.

"Head lice is here and there, on and off in practically every elementary school in the city," Barry said.

She emphasized that head lice is a common problem, especially among younger children who tend to play together more physically, and one which is easily transmitted from one child to another.

"It is not an indication that anyone is dirty," she said, "that's an old stigma...people sometimes just get horrified and they don't want anyone to know about it."

However, Barry stressed the importance of parents letting the school nurse know if they discover head lice in their child so that it can be contained and other children checked. Confidentiality will always be kept, she said.

The most obvious sign parents should look for is a child's excessive scratching of the head, she said, although this can often be an indication of simple dry scalp or dandruff.

If head lice are suspected, parents should examine a child under a bright light and look at the hair, (section by section), neck and behind the ears for any signs of the actual bugs or the white silvery "knits" where the eggs are laid.

If a problem is discovered several treatment shampoos are available without a prescription in any drug store she said.

Parents are encouraged to call on the school nurse for any help in handling the problem and Barry noted the nurse will often pay a visit to the home to help if needed.

Under state law, Barry adds, a child is not readmitted to school, even after treatment, until he or she is checked by the school nurse for any sign of bugs or eggs. Many children return after one day, she said, while for others it may take several days.

"I know this is frustrating," Barry said, "but absolutely anyone can get it, and they can get it anywhere...there really is no stigma and I think that's what people have to understand more than anything else."

Golf Course Proposal Before ConCom

A proposal for a nine-hole executive golf course in Marina Bay was to be discussed at a Conservation Commission public hearing Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber.

The public was invited to attend.

The O'Connell Development Company on behalf of Boston Harbor Marina Company proposed to place clean fill and to construct permanent retainage upon a portion (less than 10 acres) of 23, Plot 50, Plan 6076E (66.43 acre parcel) for the construction of a golf course with parking, utilities and accessory structures on land, within the flood plain and wetland buffer zones. The lot is located southerly and easterly of the sideline of Seaport Drive (formerly known as O'Connell Way) and southerly of the sideline of Victory Rd at Marina Bay.

The proposal has been met with opposition from environmentalists and bird enthusiasts who claim the course would destroy a bird sanctuary in the area.

Proponents maintain the course would beautify the area which was once part of the Squantum Naval Air Field.

Also on the agenda was a notice of intent filed by Michael Solimando, Tree., Lyman Properties Trust for the alteration of 4,630 sq. ft. of bordering vegetated wetland and construction of a proposed access roadway as a limited project, with 7,500 sq. ft. of wetland replication, on land located off the Ricciuti Dr. extension, West Quincy.

At the meeting which followed the hearing, the two proposals were to be discussed.

A request for determination of applicability at 22 Nightingale Ave., Quincy, was on the meeting agenda. The land is located in a flood plain zone.

Reorganizes Captains' Positions Mullen Appoints 3 New Drug Detectives

Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen has appointed three officers to the department's narcotics unit.

The new drug detectives, Bradley Cole, Richard Savard and Patrick Glynn, replace the three officers Mullen reassigned from the drug unit to patrol duty five weeks ago.

Cole, Glynn and Savard, all former night patrol officers, will investigate drug, gambling and organized crime cases. The three were selected from 36 applicants.

The applicants, all from within the department, were interviewed. One female officer was among the applicants.

Mullen said he was impressed with all 36 candidates. He described the new drug detectives as good, steady, low-key policemen.

Cole, 43, is a resident of Holbrook. He is a 19-year veteran of the force.

Glynn, 31, is a Quincy resident. He joined the force in February, 1986.

Savard, 45, is also from Quincy. He is a 21-year veteran of the department.

Mullen said the new detectives will receive special training offered by the state for drug officers.

When he reorganized the narcotics division, he said he thought it would benefit from a few new members.

In other changes, Mullen reorganized the duties of two captains he shifted the day and night shifts of two sergeants.

Capt. Frederick Laracy, 53, a 29-year veteran of the force, is now in charge of the entire patrol division: day, night and traffic. He had been head of day patrol.

Capt. Walter Frazier, 60, another 29-year veteran, is in charge of administrative services. Frazier, who had been in charge of night patrol, will oversee records, computer services and maintenance of the police department cruiser fleet.

In explaining the moves, Mullen said, "We're down with personnel. An awful lot of administrative duties have fallen on my shoulders so I made some adjustments."

"I want to put captains where I see they're needed," he added.

The department, which began FY 91 with five captains, is down to two.

Captains Paul Nestor and William Murphy, who both retired, and Capt. David Rowell, who left the department to become chief in Pelham, N.H., have not been replaced.

Mullen said he would likely ask Mayor James A. Sheets to fill some vacancies when he submits his budget for FY 92 later this winter or in the early spring.

Besides the decline in the number of captains, there has also been a decrease in the number of lieutenants, sergeants and patrol officers since FY 91 began last July. During the last six months, the department has lost one lieutenant, one sergeant and five patrol officers, mostly due to retirements.

When the new budget began, there was funding for 10 lieutenants, 25 sergeants and 152 patrol officers. As of last week, there are nine lieutenants, 24 sergeants and 147 patrol officers on the force.

The department lost a lieutenant when Mullen was appointed chief in September.

As for the sergeant shift, Sgt. Angus McEachern, 41, a 20-year veteran, is back on night patrol after his request was granted. He had been on day patrol.

Sgt. William Falco, 42, a 19-year veteran, opted to go on the day shift. He was given the choice based on seniority.

The price of student lunches has been increased to $1.45 effective Jan. 7 at North Quincy High School.

Phelan Wants Fire Key Boxes In All Buildings

The City Council has proposed that all buildings other than a residential structure of less than six units contain a secure key box installed in a location accessible to the fire department in case of emergency.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, chairman of the Public Safety Committee, introduced the measure at the council's Mid-Term meeting Monday.

If approved, building owners who do not comply would be subject to a $100 fine and an additional $10 fine each day until in compliance with the ordinance. Boxes would be needed for buildings which have a fire alarm system or other fire protection system that transmits a signal through a private central station alarm company or directly to the Quincy Fire Department alarm system.

The ordinance would be enforced by authorized personnel of the Quincy Fire Department.

In introducing the ordinance, Phelan said the fire department is concerned about gaining access to property in response to an alarm when there are no supervisors or employees to admit them. He said the key boxes would enhance the department's fire alarm and protection service.

The key box would contain a complete set of building entry keys and keys to fire alarm control panels as well as other keys necessary to operate or service fire protection systems.

The box, its location and installation would require the fire chief's approval.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SOME THOUGHTS ON FRIENDSHIP ...

Someone said "God gave us our relatives; thank God we can choose our friends." No man is an island. We need each other. It is this give and take, the interactions between personalities that files down the rough edges and hones human nature into an amiable versatility. As the song says, "People who need people are the luckiest people in the world." Relatives die or move away, but friendships are formed where compatible souls find mutual trust and common interests. Lasting friendships are not negotiated; they are forged on the anvil of time. The tie that binds becomes deeper and stronger with the passing of years. Other relationships are damaged or destroyed either by time or distance. A young person comes home after college and finds that high school friendships have cooled. They have grown in different directions and there isn't anything to talk about anymore ... Then there are some people who use their friends. They exploit friendships instead of cultivating them. Often a relationship is shattered by the violation of a confidence, a betrayal, a broken trust. This is not the kind of friendship one should be interested in; a friend is a person with whom you dare to be yourself and that you care about and you trust ...

Shop License Suspended Over Taxes

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday suspended indefinitely the license of Mike's Auto Repair Shop, 231 Southern Artery due to delinquent personal property taxes owed from 1975 through 1986 totalling $4,114.42.

Under a forbearance agreement established by the board in September between owner Nicholas DeVincentis and City Treasurer Dana Childs, the debt to the city was to be paid in monthly installments of $685 for six months.

Childs told the board Tuesday not one payment had been made since the agreement was signed Sept. 18.

Nicholas DeVincentis purchased the establishment from his father, Michael DeVincentis in 1986. Michael DeVincentis, who operated the shop since 1947, was before the board Tuesday. His son, he told the board, was "upset at home."

Although the taxes are owed from a period when Michael DeVincentis owned the property, under License Board regulations the payment is the responsibility of the current owner.

Assistant City Solicitor James Timmins, who was also present at the hearing, explained that DeVincentis is seeking to sell the property and Timmins has agreed to help him locate a possible buyer for the business.

The delinquent taxes would have to be paid by the buyer of the license, Timmins said, with the city holding any deposit paid on the property.

However, he said, the issue of the taxes must be dealt with and "Mr. Childs, in this instance, must be supported."

Board members agreed, although they said they "sympathize" with DeVincentis, and opted to suspend rather than revoke the license in hopes DeVincentis will be able to sell the business.

Church News

Scottish Heritage Weekend At Point Church Jan. 19-20

The sixth annual "Scottish Heritage Weekend" will be held Jan. 19-20 at Quincy Point Congregational Church, Washington St. and Southern Artery.

In the early to mid 1900's, many of Scottish descent migrated to Quincy, largely to work as shipbuilders. Many of them made the Quincy Point Congregational Church their spiritual home, and do so to this day.

The pastors, Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon and Rev. Carol Atwood-Lyon, are also Scottish and have had a share in instituting the Scottish festivities.

On Saturday, Jan. 19, festivities will begin in the Social Hall of the church at 6 p.m. with fellowship and light snacks and punch. Glenn McGhee will be emcee. Mina and David McPherson will be guest musicians, and will also lead the audience in singing many of the familiar Scottish songs. Bobby Jack of Quincy will present the "Ode to the Haggis" and the reading of several of Bobbie Burns' favored poems. Pipe Major Iain Massie will play many favorite selections and pipe for dancer Laure Scott. The Scottish menu will include roast beef, meaty puddin', 'heaps and tatties, scones, trifle, and, of course, the Haggis!

Tickets for "Bobbie Burns Banquet" are now on sale to church members and friends and to the general public, and should be purchased soon for $10 per person. Tickets are on sale at the Church following the 10 a.m. services of worship and in the Church Office and at the Senior Citizen's Center at 1000 Southern Artery. All tickets must be picked up and paid for in advance of the banquet; no tickets can be held at the door.

The "Annual Scottish Weekend" will continue on Sunday, Jan. 20, with the "Kirkin' o' the Tartan" ceremony at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary. Everyone is invited. Infant care is provided for infants and toddlers so that parents of young children can enjoy the Scottish Service of Worship. During the service men, women, young people, and children are encouraged to wear their family tartans or to carry them forward during the service for a Blessing of the Tartans. Pipe Major Iain Massie will pipe the processional forward to the altar.

Following the morning worship service and the "Kirkin' o' the Tartan", the entire congregation is invited to regather in the Social Hall for a "Scottish Ceilidh", complete with Scottish desserts, delicacies and beverages.

Everyone is invited to all three events: the Bobbie Burns Banquet, the Kirkin' o' the Tartan and the Scottish Ceilidh. For more information, call the Church Office, between Monday and Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 773-6424.

'The Challenge of Peace' United First Parish Topic

"The Challenge of Peace" will be the focus of the Jan. 13 10:30 a.m. worship service at United First Parish Unitarian Church across from city hall in Quincy Center.

Rev. Sheldon Bennett, reflecting on the war and peace crisis in the Middle East, will argue that peace will never be achieved unless peace itself is made the means to the goal.

Readings will include passages from Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Music will be by Norman Corey, music director, and organist, and viola soloist Patrick Jordan.

Church school classes meet downstairs during the service. Level 1 (kindergarten - second grade) will celebrate the life of Dr. King with a friendship handprint wreath, and a cake. Level 2 (grades 3-5) will read a Chinese creation myth and learn the symbolism of the yin and the yang. Level 3 (middle school) will work on their panorama of Moses' life and model of the Ark of the Covenant. Nursery care is also provided.

Janet Allen will usher. Ruth Parrish will greet and hostess the social hour following the service. All are invited to attend.

The adult education series "Explorations" begins Jan. 13 at 7 p.m. in the parish hall, led by Rev. Bennett. By popular request, the first two meetings will focus on the suppressed early Christian writings and the reasons they have been excluded from the Bible, beginning with the Gospel of Thomas.

There will be a city celebration in observance of Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday in the sanctuary at 3:30 p.m., with an address by Elizabeth Rawlins of Simmons College and music by the Quincy Choral Society.

'Darkness Of Soul' Sermon Topic At Covenant Congregational

At the 10:45 a.m. worship service at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., Rev. Kathleen Graves, copastor will preach on "Darkness Of The Soul".

Snow Tires Or Radials?

Are radial tires effective in snow? What about so-called "all-season" radials? Are snow tires a good investment? How about chains?

The answers to these questions vary according to the type of car you drive, the tires currently on your car, and your budget, says John F. Paul, Manager of Technical Services for AAA.

One of the most common questions asked is: "Which type of tire is better for winter driving, snow tires or all-season radials?"

"Both have advantages and disadvantages," says Paul, "but the deciding factor may simply be the type of vehicle you drive and the kind of roads and terrain over which you drive."

For example, if you live and drive in an urban area, all-season radials should give you all the traction you need. But for rural areas with rugged terrain, it's probably better to opt for snow tires that provide the maximum amount of traction.

Use the following information to help you decide which tire best suits your needs:

All season radials. Advantages: Equal traction with all four wheels for stopping, starting, and steering. Quieter ride without additional maintenance or expense.

Disadvantage: Not as much traction as snow tires.

Snow tires: Advantage: Greater traction in deep snow and ice.

Disadvantage: Additional maintenance and expense (For front-wheel drive cars, most owners' manuals recommend installing snow tires on all four wheels to equalize steering and stopping characteristics. That's a four-fold increase in upkeep and costs.)

Remember, if you plan to use studded snow tires, they're permitted only between Nov. 2 and April 30 in Massachusetts.

A reminder: if your snow tires appear to be in good shape but are more than five years old, you should consider replacing them. The rubber dries out and cracks; therefore, a seemingly-good tire with adequate tread could be unsafe.

Remember, too, to check tire pressure periodically, but only before the car has been driven while tires are cold. It's a common misconception that lower tire pressure improves traction in the snow.

Underinflated tires actually cause the grooves in the tread to close up, limiting traction, affecting vehicle control, and creating excessive drag which wastes gasoline and wears out the tires.

Car 'Trunk Treasures' To Keep On Hand

It's time to open up the car trunk and take a quick inventory of safety and repair items. Here's what AAA suggests you keep on hand:

- Jumper cables
- Spray can of wire-drying agent
- Container of anti-freeze and water (50-50 mixture)
- Blanket
- Flares and flashlight
- Small snow shovel
- Ice scraper with long handle and brush
- Can of windshield de-icing spray

 • Extra jug of windshield washer fluid (anti-freeze type)

- Container of kitty gravel - better than sand
- Make sure your spare tire is properly inflated and you have the jack and lug wrench. And remember, it is a safety hazard to carry gasoline or other flammable products in your trunk, an empty can or jug is handy to have if you run out of gas and need just enough to get to a station to refill.

10-year master plan on the revitalization of the North Quincy, Wollaston and Downtown Quincy business districts will likely be released at the end of February. The plan, dubbed the "Quincy Plan" by Sheets, will include a number of components, including ideas for parking and road access to business, construction of an inn or hotel and the building of a cultural facility.

In discussing the city's financial future, the mayor said the prospects for FY 92 budget which will begin July 1 are equally as "grim" as FY 91. The current fiscal year will likely end with at least a $1 million shortfall, Sheets said, in part because of $3.1 million in uncollected real estate property tax revenue.

In FY 92, he said fixed costs will increase, such as the projected $4.3 million in pension and health care premiums. With new growth pegged at just $2.6 million, the mayor said, "crafting a budget will be difficult at best."

Nonetheless, Sheets said the city should continue to look for creative saving methods. He noted the expanded recycling program will save the city $500,000 during FY 91 and FY 92. Furthermore, the mayor expressed his optimism that the city will weather the fiscal storm as it has in the past.

"While several other sister cities have endured financial chaos and plunging revenues, we in Quincy have maintained both our fiscal stability and our credit rating. "We have not allowed a crisis of the budget to become a crisis of the spirit. We have not allowed a shortfall of revenue to become a crisis of resolve," Sheets said while thanking city councillors, school committee members and residents for their support.

As for accomplishments this past year, the mayor noted the defeat of Clean Harbors, the popular "Cleaner, Greener" program and the progress at Quincy Hospital. Noting the health care facility has expanded significantly the last 12 months, Sheets said, "I believe that Quincy Hospital will be the dominant health care institution on the South Shore within five years."

Mayor's Mid-Term Draws Praise, Support

aid based not just upon need, but based upon good management practices in the past. Former Mayor Francis X. McCauley: "I think it was a good speech. It followed the lines of a mid-term address by tradition, reviewing last year and then going on and looking forward to 1991 and some of the plans that he has and recommendations he has for Quincy. "I think it was a positive speech. I think we're fortunate in Quincy, despite the financial problems, this city is in better shape than many communities and there's a sense of community spirit here in Quincy that I think helps the elected officials, a lot of people pulling together. As for the mayor's goals of no layoffs and level funding in education and public safety in FY 92, McCauley replied, "I think that's going to be very difficult. If they're going to level fund state aid, that's not sufficient to deal with the situation because budgets do go up. "What the mayor has done is ruled out of bounds any cuts in police, fire and schools and they're the big ticket items. They amount for quite a bit of the budget and when you take them out, it's going to be very difficult to effect cuts, I would think, in other departments. "Many of the other departments are very small. They've already been cut over the past eight years. It's a challenge for the mayor. I have to assume that he has got some numbers that we have not seen yet and that he will be developing as the year goes on. But if you rule out any cuts in fire, police and schools, it's going to be very difficult to live within the goals he is setting." Rep. Steve Tobin: "I was pleased to hear the mayor's focus will be on preserving the quality of education and public safety because I agree those are our funding priorities. I hope we can all stay together because I think together, working hard, all the elected officials and concerned citizens we're going to be able to weather what appears to be a very strong storm. "I just hope it's as brief as can be and we can get things back on the positive side.

As for the mayor's no layoffs and public safety and education level funding goals, Tobin said, "I hope it can be done. I think we need to. I don't see where we can cut education and public safety." To help the city financially, Tobin said he would do all that he can to see that communities receive 40 percent of revenue generated by state income, sales and corporate taxes and the balance of the state lottery fund. The proposition was approved by voters last November. Council President Ted DeCristofaro: "I think he enumerated all of the positive things that have happened the last year and I give him credit for all of the things he has done in cooperation with the City Council. "I think his speech to me relates the kind of person Mayor Sheets is--he's just a very sincere person and the condition of the city of Quincy and all aspects of it is very important to him and I think his speech was a fine speech." DeCristofaro said he supports the mayor's objectives 100 percent. "I hope we can make all of those things come to fruition." School Committee Member and Norfolk County Commissioner Mary Collins: "I was very pleased. I think he has treated the school system very fairly as did previous mayor Frank McCauley. He realizes the importance of public education and the problems that would be facing if we did not get a level funded budget. "I'm just very happy and I'm sure every one in the school department will be also." Asked whether the mayor's school budget objectives can be achieved, Collins replied, "If everything stays the way it is, yes, we would not have to have any school closings or layoffs. "There is, of course, no money for collective bargaining agreements so that's a decision that will have to be made by the school committee. If in fact, there are raises granted then they'll have to come from existing monies which would mean changes in the existing budget." Councilor Michael Cheney: "I thought it was positive and upbeat. I was very pleased to hear (the mayor) is not looking to close any schools and no more layoffs. "On the down side, I believe his revenue shortfall predictions are low and I hope that I'm wrong. I think we're going to have plan for the worst case scenario so that we don't have shortfalls and find us having to lay people off three quarters through the year. Asked whether he supports the course Sheets has chartered for FY 92, Cheney replied, "Yes, I would be a little more aggressive in the downtown development. I view the downtown development planning stages should have already taken place. We shouldn't be planning for planning -- we should be doing it now. "The economic upswing is due to come sometime in the next six months to a year. At that time, we should have a shovel in the ground. "Overall, I think it's upbeat, I think we have a lot of work to do and I look forward to improving the quality of life for everyone in Quincy."

pleasurable." In other elections, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan were elected to the Quincy Hospital Board of Supervisors. Jeanne Reardon was re-elected as the council's clerk of committees. She was nominated by Councilor Michael Cheney. Hank Bradley, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, led the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance. Dr. Cecil Paul, president of Eastern Nazarene College delivered the invocation and benediction. Quincy Hospital Director Ellen Zane: "The mayor gave an excellent overview of all the terrific accomplishments that the city has experienced this past year and it's clear to me that he recognizes that there is a formidable road ahead but that he's more than ready to meet the challenge." In his address, Sheets noted Quincy Hospital has expanded its facilities and predicted it will become the premier health care facility on the South Shore within five years. Financially, Zane said the hospital is rebounding. The fiscal year should end with a projected deficit of just over $2 million, well below the $4-million figure administrators had anticipated. Although the hospital is not expected to break even until 1992 or 1993, depending on what the successor legislation is to the Universal Health Care Law, Zane said "all the vital statistics that we use are on the upswing." A CROWDED CITY Council Chamber filled with local officials, department heads and residents listen to Mayor James A. Sheets' Mid-Term Address Monday.

Text Of Mayor Sheets' Mid-Term Address

The text of Mayor James Sheets' mid-term address:

The City of Quincy is crowned with strength and character, with goodness and greatness, with pride and purpose. It seems that the very character of John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Josiah Quincy, John Hancock, Abigail and Luisa Catherine Adams has been etched in every generation giving each the strength, wisdom and determination necessary to meet the challenge of their day.

At no time was the strength more in evidence than over the past 12 months. The road has been difficult. To meet the economic crisis it was necessary to pass the Sewer Use Fee which is a burden to each of us as home owners and residents, but particularly to our senior population on fixed incomes. It was also necessary to make 6% across-the-board cuts which meant both a reduction in personnel and in programs.

While several other sister cities have endured financial chaos and plunging revenues, we in Quincy have maintained both our fiscal stability and our credit rating. We have worked together; we have shared creative ideas; we have not allowed a crisis of the budget to become a crisis of the spirit. We have not allowed a shortfall of revenue to become a crisis of resolve. We have all been willing to work together for the common good. For that I thank each of you on the Council and School Committee and the people of this great city. As Senator Harold said in The Globe on December 30 concerning Quincy: "Factions have not developed, everyone is working together, which is something we have not seen in the city for a long time."

However, I must tell you the financial crisis is deepening. It is now more national than local, but its impact is just as real. Some fiscal watchdogs estimate that 1500 banks will fail in 1991 and that the number of bankruptcies will continue to occur at an alarming rate. In this fiscal year alone in the City of Quincy, we will be unable to collect 3.1 million dollars in property tax. That circumstance will cause a deficit of at least 1 million dollars in the current budget.

The prospects for the FY'92 budget are equally grim. We have been told by the Department of revenue that even though Proposition #5 passed, cities and towns should plan their budgets around the level funding of local aid. With FY'92 fixed costs increasing, such as pension and health care premiums at a projected 4.3 million dollars and new revenues projected at only 2.6 million, crafting a budget will be difficult at best.

Some of our creative efforts of the last 12 months will be helpful. Our administration's having negotiated a first of its kind, revolutionary recycling contract with BFI, has led to a minimum savings of $250,000 in this year's budget and a reduction of $250,000 in the FY'92 budget - a total savings to the city of half a million dollars.

I will also be recommending to the City Council for their approval, the quarterly mailing of property tax bills. Quarterly billings should allow us to save between $300,000 and $500,000 in interest on temporary borrowing. It will help preserve city services.

It is my goal to provide a FY'92 budget which does not include layoffs. This will be extremely difficult to achieve and perhaps impossible. To balance this year's budget, I instituted 6% across-the-board cuts in all departments. We cannot repeat that action. While the functions of all departments are valuable and necessary, some are more fundamental and critical than others. To me, the most fundamental responsibility of government is to provide for both public safety and education.

Regarding schools: We must not close a single school. We must also avoid the unhealthy educational process of shifting different grades from one school to another. It is my goal to not only level fund the school budget at the FY'91 level, but to cover at least $718,000 of the mandated school program costs increases such as Chapter 766. Some cuts will still be necessary, however these must be accomplished without the closing of schools and the shifting of classes. I am certain that the newly formed city-wide task force on reductions will be most helpful in these difficult times. Indeed, to have such an educationally-oriented committee as this, chaired by a city councillor, is testimony to the kind of cooperation we have in our city today.

Regarding the Police and Fire Departments: It is also my intention to at least level fund the police and fire budgets. There can be no question that a further reduction in the Fire Department budget will result in the closing of at least one fire station. This is totally unacceptable to me at this time, and I believe to the people of this city. In the Police Department, we currently have fewer police officers than at any time in the last 20 years. In my opinion we cannot further reduce this, our frontline against crime.

Unfortunately, level funding of these three departments can only be achieved with at least a 4% reduction in other city department budgets. We hope to do this through natural attrition of personnel, retirement by incentives, cutting expenses and quarterly tax billings.

Once again this fiscal year I propose no capital outlay budget. To meet emergency capital needs, I will present to the City Council a request for a 1.9 million dollar emergency bond issue on January 21. This will allow us to meet a number of public safety and other needs, both in the school system and the general government.

Additionally, the FY'92 budget does not contain money for raises, the money is simply not there.

Nigerian Drummer, Dancer At Parker School

Nigerian drummer and dancer Onye Onyemaechi will perform for students at the Parker School January 14 for two shows.

Dressed in colorful garb, he will transform the school into an African Village gathering.

Students will be able to join in the celebration by wearing traditional African clothing, playing percussion instruments and dancing to drum rhythms. The festivities will end with a quiet but powerful chant.

An artist and educator, Onye uses African performing arts to dramatize important themes for children, such as self-respect, community responsibility and cultural sensitivity.

Onye was formerly a Boston resident and performer and currently resides in California. He is back in Boston after a performance with the Igbote Ensemble during the city's First Night celebrations.

A graduate of Holy Cross College, Onye received his MBA from Boston College and went on to found the Igbote Ethnic Dance Ensemble and also founded the Igbote Center.

He travels throughout the country performing at schools, libraries, festivals and retreats. Twice a year he visits New England to present performances and workshops for children and adults.

Onye has been recognized for his efforts with children by the Ronald McDonald Children's Charities which honored him with an Award of Gratitude.

The performance at the Parker School is sponsored by the Quincy School Department.

'Music And Politics Of 18th Century' To Air On Ch. 3 Jan. 14-16

"Music & Politics of the 18th Century," which was performed live by the Scarborough Chamber Players at the United First Parish Church in September, has been revived as a 60-minute television program.

The show will air on Continental Cable station Channel 3 Monday, at 7 p.m., Tuesday at 9 a.m. and again Wednesday, January 16 at 1 p.m.

The program is an historical account of the John Adams Family and the music and politics of their times. The result of extensive research, highlights of the program include performances of actual songs played by John Adams on the flute, as recorded in his diaries.

The program is part of a new series of cultural events to be performed live at the First Parish Church in the coming months.

The series is headed by Virginia Sindelar of Squantum, Artistic Director of the Scarborough Chamber Players, who is herself a performing artist, a free lance producer and entrepreneur in the arts. She and the Players have performed in Cambridge for several years.

She produced the televised version of "Music & Politics of the 18th Century" in an effort to generate interest in upcoming concerts in the series.

Future concerts include internationally acclaimed guitarist Berit Strong who will perform works of the Spanish masters at the Church Jan. 27.

The cost of the concert series has been kept at a minimum ($5 for adults and $3 for children and senior citizens) so that more of the community will be able to attend, she said.

All of the concerts include an educational aspect especially for children and teach about history, politics, composers and music all centering on the theme of freedom.

Sindelar hopes to be able to produce future television programs of upcoming concerts in the series and plans a major fund raising campaign to support the program as a whole.

"Most people don't realize that professional artists and video personnel cost money, lots of money," she says. "During these hard economic times, when so many are homeless, it's easy to forget that we all suffer spiritually without the arts."

Donations may be sent to the Cultural Events Series, First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Basketball

Quincy Can Now Think Tourney

By TOM SULLIVAN

At the start of the season, Quincy boys' basketball coach John Franceschini made a prediction that probably had skeptics smiling.

The Presidents were winless a year ago and haven't had a winning season for several years but Franceschini had high hopes when the current season got under way.

"If we can even go 3-2 in our first five games, four of which are at home, I feel we have a legitimate chance at making the Eastern Mass. Tournament," he said. It has been some time since the Presidents qualified for the tournament.

The skeptics are now not smiling as Quincy not only went 3-2 in those games but went one better with four wins in a row and took a 4-2 record into Tuesday night's game at Taunton.

The Presidents will host Silver Lake Friday night at 7 o'clock and will be home to Barnstable next Tuesday, also at 7.

Quincy took two of its biggest wins in many years last week, edging Old Colony League favorite Plymouth in overtime and handing New Bedford of the Big Three Conference its first loss after five wins.

Last Friday night the Presidents surprised New Bedford, which is joined by Brockton and Duffee in the Big Three, 71-62.

Quincy led by only a point, 44-43, at the half but pulled away in the second half thanks to a tenacious man-to-man defense which has played a big part in the team's success this season.

Quincy had displayed good defense in its first two games, losses to Falmouth and Bridgewater-Raynham, but the Presidents shot poorly both from the floor and from the free throw line.

"Our defense has been strong but we have to shoot much better," said Franceschini. "If we can just begin to score, we will do all right."

Against New Bedford David Jolley scored 27 points for the second straight game and took down 13 rebounds.

E. J. Nordstrom, who has scored around the 20-point mark in every game, had another fine game and scored 19 points in addition to grabbing 18 rebounds.

Joey Crespi, who has been playing outstanding ball both ways, added 17 points. Sophomore Robby Kane had another outstanding game on defense.

Earlier in the week Jolley had 27 points and 12 rebounds as Quincy defeated Plymouth, 88-84, in overtime.

Nordstrom had 19 points and an impressive 26 rebounds.

Nordstrom had three points and four rebounds in the overtime session and Mike Norton clinched the win with two free throws with 20 seconds left to play.

The Presidents led, 37-32, at halftime but the Blue Eagles, a heavy pre-season choice to win the league title, rallied to force the game into overtime.

"Virtually all of our players played in summer leagues and gained a lot of experience," said Franceschini. "And our Presidents Youth Program is beginning to pay off for us. I really think things are looking up in basketball after some lean seasons."

"Our rebounding has been outstanding and we are now getting some good shooting. Robby Kane has been strong defensively and Joey Crespi has been all over the floor. We have three outstanding captains in Nordstrom, Nonton and Ralph Bevilacqua, who are excellent leaders and are doing a fine job with our younger players."

Molloy Earns Third Letter At Wesleyan

Mark Molloy, a junior at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., and a resident of Quincy, earned his third varsity letter in football at the college, head coach Kevin Spencer announced recently.

Seeing action both in the secondary and on special teams for the Cardinals during the 1990 season, Molloy finished the year with six tackles, three interceptions and one pass broken up. He picked up 31 return yards from his three pass thefts.

Over his three seasons, Molloy has collected 16 tackles, broken up three passes and intercepted three.

The 1990 season was good for Wesleyan with a 6-2 record. Wesleyan ended the season ranked no. 8 in the ECAC New England Division III poll after being rated among the top 10 teams in the region throughout the campaign, reaching as high as no. 5.

The son of John and Betty Molloy of Overlook St. in Quincy, Molloy is a 1988 graduate of Boston College High School where he was a multi-letter winner in basketball and football. In basketball, Molloy was a team captain and league all-star at B.C. High.

At Wesleyan, Molloy majors in government and is a Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity member. A two-year veteran of the basketball program at the college, Molloy will be spending the spring semester of 1990-91 in Ireland.

North Snaps Losing Streak With Overtime Win

The North Quincy boys' basketball team snapped a four-game losing streak with a 51-49 overtime victory over Silver Lake last Friday night to improve to 22-4.

The Raiders hosted Bridgewater - Raynham Tuesday night, will be at Barnstable Friday night at 7 and will be home to Falmouth next Tuesday at 7.

Capt. Brian Curran, who has been outstanding in every game, had one of his best games against Silver Lake as he scored 25 points (he has had only one game under 20 points) and took down 14 rebounds.

Curran scored four points in overtime when North scored the first six points for a 49-43 lead.

Chris Olsen had 13 points and sophomore Sean Donovan, having another excellent season, scored 10. Tom Kemp scored 15 points and Neil Andrews 12 for the Lakers.

Earlier in the week North Quincy lost to Taunton, 86-72.

Curran had his biggest scoring night of the year with 32 points and Donovan scored 18. North trailed at the half, 38-35.

For Taunton Bob Greer exploded for 33 points and Tom Roberts added 29.

Quincy Freshmen In Split

The Quincy boys' freshman basketball team broke even in two games last week, edging Milton, 46-45, and losing to Plymouth, 70-49.

In the Milton win Tom Malvesti led all scorers with 13 points. Jon Gangi had 10 and down the stretch it was Joe Kelly's two free throws that put the game away for Quincy with 50 seconds to play.

Also having big baskets were Mark Furbish and Jim Cipriano.

Mike Bartlett, Mike Aupperle, Mike Dutton, Joe Manton, Walter Spadorcia and Chris Swanton all played strong defense.

In the Plymouth game poor shooting kept Quincy out of the game. "We couldn't put the ball in the ocean," said coach Mike Dracchio. "We missed 20 free throws and at least 12 layups."

Kelly and Gangi had 12 points each and Chris Anastos had six and played excellent defense. Also playing tough on defense were Cipriano, Furbish, Don Goss, Jim Menz, Manton and Dutton.

Quincy Ties Silver Lake, Extends Undefeated Streak

By TOM SULLIVAN
Quincy's hockey team, the youngest in the Old Colony League, continues to rebound following two straight frustrating one-win seasons and extended its unbeaten string to five games last Saturday with a 1-1 tie with Silver Lake.

The Presidents have a 5-2-1 record (3-2-1 in the league).

Quincy, with six sophomores, four juniors and four freshmen, faced unbeaten Weymouth last night (Wednesday), will play North Quincy Saturday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena and will host undefeated Barnstable next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

The Presidents turned in one of their most inspired performances at Silver Lake as it played without two first-liners, Scott MacPherson, the league's top scorer (14 goals, eight assists, 22 points) and Jimmy Smith.

"The kids did a remarkable job against a real physical Silver Lake team," said coach Bob Sylvia. "When you face a team like that on their home ice and without two first-liners, you expect the worst, but the kids did a great job. The defense was outstanding and goalie Scott Mann had another tremendous game with 23 saves." Mann has one of the league's best goals-against averages.

Sophomore Sean McArdle gave Quincy a 1-0 lead at 3:07 of the second period with Mark Gilmore and Shane Abboud assisting.

Bob Cole tied it for Silver Lake at 9:46 of the second period with Greg Scott and Brian Sullivan having assists.

Quincy has two other high scorers in McArdle (9-7-16) and sophomore Jeff Craig (5-7-12).

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Marshfield, 6-2, with Mann having a fantastic game in goal with 41 saves.

MacPherson had two goals and an assist. Dave Mullen had two goals, including the game-winner at 5:50 of the second period, and McArdle and the other Scott MacPherson had a goal apiece.

In their previous game the Presidents had defeated Taunton, 6-3.

MacPherson had his third hat trick of the season as Quincy jumped out to a 3-0 lead on two goals by MacPherson and one by McArdle in the first period.

Quincy added to its lead in the second session as Smith scored with MacPherson assisting. MacPherson made it 5-0 and McArdle scored his second goal into an empty net.

Mann had 21 saves as he gave up goals in the third period to Peter Heino, Mike Parent and Jeff Gallagher.

At the start of the season Sylvia was worried about the Presidents scoring, but in eight games they have scored 41 goals.

North Blanked By Weymouth

The North Quincy hockey team had a three-game win streak snapped last Saturday when the Raiders bowed to undefeated Weymouth, 2-0, in an Old Colony League game. The loss dropped North's record to 4-2-2 (2-2-1 in the league).

The Raiders faced Bridgewater-Raynham last night (Wednesday), will meet Quincy Saturday night at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena and will play at Plymouth next Wednesday at 6 o'clock.

"This was a terrific game and I am proud of the way we played," said North coach Tom Benson.

"I think Weymouth is the best team in the league and our kids played very well. Although Barnstable (also unbeaten in the league) beat us by a much larger score, that was our only bad game of the year and I honestly feel Weymouth has the better all-around team.

"We played well on defense and Matt Swierk, Duane Keegan and Mike DesRoche played outstanding games. Pat O'Donoghue (31 saves) was tremendous. We had our scoring chances but their goalie (Jay Brooks) was also outstanding. (Brooks had 16 saves for his third shutout of the year).

"O'Donoghue and Dennis Ruggere have been just great in goal for us and the defense has been excellent."

Bill Leahy scored both goals for Weymouth, both on breakaways in the second period.

Earlier last week North Quincy defeated Taunton, 4-2, with Bill Lydon's second goal at 7:57 of the first period proving to be the game-winner.

Mike Christopherson and Allen Murray had the other North Quincy goals. It marked Lydon's second straight two-goal game.

Mike Parent scored both Taunton goals.

Ruggere had a fine game in net for North Quincy with 25 saves, while Taunton's Tom Filipovich had 35 saves.

In their previous game the Raiders had topped Durfee for the second time, 5-2, with Mike DesRoche scoring two power play goals in the second period and adding an assist.

Christopherson also scored twice and Sean Vermette had three assists. O'Donoghue had 35 saves, giving up only goals to Doug Smith and Eric Brabdry.

Basketball

North Girls Win 7th In Row

The North Quincy girls' basketball team continues to roll along and took a 7-0 record into Tuesday's game at Bridgewater-Raynham.

The North girls will host Barnstable Friday at 7 o'clock and next Tuesday will be at Falmouth at 5:30.

There appears nothing can stop North from making the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the seventh time in 11 years and the second year in a row under coach Ken Panaro.

North, leading the Old Colony League with a 4-0 record, must win only five of its next 13 games to qualify for the tourney if it doesn't finish first or second in the league.

In their latest game the North girls squeaked by Silver Lake, 31-30, with Tara Miles scoring the last eight points.

Miles had 12 points to lead North, which held a four-point lead with eight seconds to play before the Lakers' Melissa Reeder hit a three-pointer.

Earlier last week North defeated Taunton, 41-23, opening up a 29-7 lead thanks to a 13-point run.

Joanne Rugnetta had 11 points, Cindy White had nine and Regina Murphy blocked five shots.

Previously North, with a great defense, blasted Winchester, 46-15, to win its Christmas Tournament.

Tricia Hughes and Miles had eight points each, Hughes also had six steals and Rugnetta and Alyssa Haidoups dominated the boards.

Hughes and Miles were named to the all-tournament team.

"We are in good shape right now and are right where we want to be," said Panaro. "It's definitely a team effort and even the bench has been great. I couldn't name an MVP right now."

North has four returning starters, tri-captains Rugnetta, Miles and Kara Sullivan and junior Hughes. Sophomore White has played well, averaging 11 rebounds a game.

Pee Wee House

Deli, Colonial In Finals

New England Deli and Colonial Federal will meet in the finals of the Pee Wee House League jamboree tonight (Thursday) at 7:50.

Deli edged Keohane's, 6-5, and Colonial Federal defeated Bersani Brothers, 5-2, in the semifinals.

John Manning had a hat trick for Deli and Jason Fennelly, Dan Flaherty and Chris Geary a goal each. Fennelly had two assists and Manning, Danny Stone, Jamie Murphy and Flaherty one each. Tommy Sullivan had two goals and Steve Barrett, Craig Cooper and Chris Grant one apiece for Keohane's. Sullivan, Robbie Callow, Scott Shepherd and Barrett had assists.

Jimmy Kelly scored twice for Colonial Federal and Rich Perona, Eric Griffin and Jeff Spear one each. Ken Burke, Griffin and Kelley had assists. Chris McArdle and Jason Healy scored for Bersani.

Mite Bs Come Up Short

The Quincy Mite B's youth hockey team has been playing well but coming up short in some close games recently.

In its last game the team was edged, 3-2, in a close checking game by Needham. Tom Sullivan and Nick Pizziferri scored for Quincy with Mike Sullivan and John Sullivan assisting. Quincy got a great all-around effort by the entire team.

Quincy was eliminated in two straight games from the Knights of Columbus Tournament. Duxbury edged the Mite B's, 3-2, and Braintree blanked Quincy, 3-0. Against Duxbury, Didier Alther and Chris Cullen each scored with Pizziferri assisting on both goals.

Previously Quincy lost to Westwood, 4-3, and Hyde Park, 8-2. Sean Haidul, Mike Sullivan and Tom Sullivan each scored against Westwood. Matt O'Connell, Pizziferri and Haidul had assists.

Cullen and Jeff Brophy had goals against Hyde Park and Haidul, Steve Goff and Shane Kabilian had assists.

Wrestling

Quincy In Slow Start

The Quincy wrestling team is off to a disappointing 2-6 start but several of the wrestlers have turned in fine individual performances.

"The record is no indication of some of the talent we have on the team," said coach Lou Venturelli. "We started with 30 boys but are already down to 14 or 15. I can't explain the lack of interest and we have drawn only one boy from the highly successful football squad. It is very frustrating."

Leading the way for the Presidents are three seniors and three juniors.

Junior Ally Sleiman (152 pounds) is 8-0 in dual meets and is closely followed by junior Greg Souza (140) at 7-1. Both placed third in the competitive Lowell Holiday Tournament. Souza also placed second in the Sanford, Me., Tournament.

Senior Tom Burton (189) is 4-0 in dual meets and placed sixth at Lowell and second at Sanford. Senior co-captain Matt Fratolillo (119) is 5-2-1 and placed fourth at Sanford. Co-Capt. Bob Santon (145) is 6-2 and was sixth at Sanford.

Junior Dave Cahill (103) has been impressive with a 5-3 record and a fourth place at Sanford.

"One positive aspect about having a small squad is that the young kids get experience quickly," Venturelli said. Most impressive has been freshman Peter Penwarden (112, 119, 125) who is 3-5, freshman Ashley Davis (130), freshman Tim Dowling (140, 145) and sophomores Mark Nutley (171) and Guy Schipellite (heavyweight).

Quincy will defend its team title in the West Springfield Invitational Tournament this weekend. The Presidents will host Lowell and Brockton Jan. 19 and will be home to Weymouth next Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Cooper one. For Granite Auto Shawn Manning had two goals and Eric Wood, Jon Haddad and Chris Wilkie one each. Tim Wood, Matt Lewis, John Barrou, Tom Wilson and Ryan Barrett had assists.

Burgin Platner made the semifinals as a "Wild Card". It was the loser with the fewest goals scored against in the first round.

Squirt House

Doran, Sun, Green, Burgin In Semi-Finals

Doran & Horrigan, The Quincy Sun, Green Environmental and Burgin Platner advanced to the semifinals of the Squirt House League jamboree.

The semifinals were played Tuesday night and last night (Wednesday) and the finals will be played Friday at 5:30.

Doran & Horrigan defeated Johnson Motor

Parts, 5-2, as Jason Smith scored twice and Andre Nagy, Bob Harvey and A. J. Quinn one each. Nagy had two assists and Smith one. Ryan Prada and Mike Powers scored for Johnson and Matt Allen and Pat Coughlin had assists.

The Quincy Sun blanked Burgin Platner, 4-0, with Jimmy Haddon having a hat trick and Mike Sullivan the other goal. Billy Connolly had three assists and Chris Haidul one. Goalie Matt Hill recorded the shutout.

Green Environmental topped Granite Auto Electric, 8-5, as Scott Cooper had four goals and Jim Sullivan and Kevin Regan two each. Mark Glynn and Billy Graney had two assists each and delinquent tax money is a drain on free cash. Any drain on free cash is a bad sign for the next budget.

"(Uncollected money) definitely has to be taken into consideration at budget time," he added.

In his Mid-Term Address Monday, Mayor James A. Sheets said the city will likely finish FY 91 on June 30 with a shortfall of $1 million. He said that is due, in part, to $3.1 million in uncollected real estate property revenue.

Childs said a lot of that money is protected under Chapter 11. Eventually the city will receive the money, he said, but added when is uncertain.

In the four and half years Childs has been in charge of the bills, this is the earliest the list has been compiled.

From 1983 to 1985, it took the city 800 days to prepare tax titles. Last year, the titles were prepared in 236 days. This year it was completed one day earlier.

"The sooner you take the action, the more you're going to have. A lot of people will hand on until they absolutely have to pay."

The real estate payment notice procedure is a multi-step process.

First, the formal bill is mailed out. If left unpaid, a second notice, or demand, is sent out which adds a $5 charge and 14 percent accrued interest to the original bill.

Next, a final notice is mailed. The notice has no additional fee but includes the demand charge and additional interest.

Advertising delinquent titles with the official deadline for tax payment follows. After the deadline which this year is Jan. 24 at 10 a.m., foreclosure can begin.

Childs said taxpayers can avoid foreclosure by paying their bills as soon as possible. He said a fee would be assessed to those who pay after the Jan. 24 deadline.

In addition, interest on the bill increases after the deadline from 14 percent before it goes into tax title and 16 percent after.

Childs said he hopes all delinquent taxpayers come forward with payment soon. He noted the frequent notices and advertising help the city's collection efforts.

For example, last Nov. 30, there were 557 outstanding titles totalling $1.8 million. A second notice was mailed Dec. 7. At the end of December, there were 452 titles totalling $1.5 million.

The FY 90 bills were due last May 25. The first warning was mailed in July.

Childs also pointed out that taxpayers who have filed for abatements are still required to pay the tax bills. "The fact that someone filed for an abatement doesn't release them from their obligation to pay their taxes."

"It doesn't preclude the taking of the tax title."

Taxpayers who pay their bills and then receive an abatement will be issued a refund with interest, he said.

"If you haven't paid and you don't get a refund, you must pay with interest," Childs added.

Delinquent real estate tax revenue has been common over the years.

In fact, there are 287 titles totalling more than $2 million still open dating from the 1940s through 1989. The pattern seems to be continuing. Childs said there is $3 million worth of delinquent revenue for the first half of 1991.

If we are to meet these new economic challenges, we must meet them together as we have in the past 12 months. While these fiscal problems are painful and real, we will successfully resolve them and they will pass into history. As I said in my inaugural, their character is fleeting and temporal. The truly lasting issues are Quality of Life issues. Those are issues that affect generations, our children and our children's children. These are the legacies of importance. This administration has been meeting the challenge to build those legacies.

Together with the people of the impacted communities we defeated the Clean Harbors. We defeated the planned toxic waste incineration plant for the Fore River Basin. They had their tens of millions of dollars and we had faith in our cause.

We have continued to carry our fight to the MWRA. Our lawsuit still stands and all MWRA attempts to date to have it dismissed have failed. Indeed, one of the largest fines ever paid by the MWRA - $10,000 - was paid to the City of Quincy for violating our conservation laws and fouling our marine environment at Nut Island. We will continue to fight the MWRA until all avenues are exhausted.

Our recycling program has been an enormous success. Nurtured by the Recycling Committee, given life by the McCauley Administration, we were able to expand it at a no cost increase, a weekly curbside program including the pickup of glass, paper, plastic and leaves. Shortly, I will be recommending to the Recycling Committee the creation of a full-scale city recycling center. This center will be a public-private venture that will include a redemption center, capacity for recycling in commercial buildings and multi-family dwellings, a locus for the deposit on a daily basis of household hazardous waste, and a number of specialized recycling programs. With this recycling center, the City of Quincy will be in the national forefront as having one of the most progressive and innovative recycling programs. Negotiations are currently underway with a number of companies to accomplish this objective. This objective will be accomplished without any use of city funding.

The next major industry in Quincy will be tourism: The foundation of tourism is the recognition and promotion of our rich historical heritage. Quincy is second only to Boston in the number of historical sites, yet we rank eighteenth in the state in historical tourism visits. Our efforts in Washington D.C. to make Quincy's case were indeed successful. The inclusion of $250,000 in the U.S. Department of Interior's budget for planning America's history in Quincy was a gigantic step forward. We will be meeting later today with the National Park Service and will present to them our recommendation for a National Heritage Park. That recommendation will include the construction of a major visitor center in downtown Quincy and the creation of a National Heritage Park in the heart of downtown which will include: The United First Parish Church, the Dorothy Quincy House, the Adams Academy, the Woodward School, the Hancock Cemetery, old City Hall, the Thomas Crane Library, Freedom Park and the Adams Mansion. Our next objective is to be included in the Department of Interior Federal budget in October.

The installation of the 42 historical lights and the uplighting of the Adams Academy by the Quincy Partnership is a demonstration to the Interior Department that there is a true public-private commitment to the historical richness of Quincy.

Then of course there is cleaner-greener: A n unqualified success. Over 1500 people became involved in the cleaning up of our community. Over 50 organizations helped provide the volunteer leadership. That spirit has caught on and expanded. Such new programs as "An Evergreen Quincy", "Adopt A Sidewalk" and our new "Pride Patrol" will keep the momentum moving forward in the year ahead. The beautification of downtown Quincy will also continue. It is our intention to expand these programs to a number of new sites including the area around the Ross Parking Garage.

Yes, we look better and feel better about ourselves as a city. However, this is only the prelude to the introduction of the Quincy Plan. This plan will provide for the revitalization of North Quincy, Wollaston, and downtown business districts within an historical context. The Quincy Plan will include a number of component parts: the historical (which is already well on its way), tourism, the creation of at least two development partnerships, the completion of an infrastructure plan which will deal with parking and road access to the business areas, the construction of an inn or hotel, the revitalization to the areas with design review standards within an historical context, and the construction of a cultural facility. It is our intention that the broad framework for this massive ten year plan will be ready by the end of February.

As we continue to reflect upon the past year and look to the future, nowhere is progress more evident than at Quincy Hospital. With the appointment of Ellen Zane, the new director, we rolled up our sleeves and went to work. I can now tell you that I believe that Quincy Hospital will be the dominant health care institution on the South Shore within five years. Look out, here we come.

What has happened: In January: The new emergency rooms opened with their specially trained physicians and staff

In June: Operating rooms renovations started and are 65% complete

In August: In the maternity area - 8 labor/delivery rooms were started and are 80% complete.

In September: The new 20 bed adult geropsychiatry unit opened. It is only one of two such units in Massachusetts and the only one south of Boston... it achieved 100% occupancy within 6 weeks.

In November: The City Council approved the lease for an M.R.I. Quincy Hospital will become the only community hospital in the state with a full-time on-site M.R.I. service.

In Community Outreach: The hospital has created the following new programs: Wellness Wednesday, Medical Watch, Health Screenings, and Community Rounds.

In Asian Services: The hospital has engaged the Peach Corporation, a consulting firm with expertise in Asian Health Services. The AT&T Language Line has been installed which provides round-the-clock telephone translation services in the 140 languages. The hospital has participated in internship programs for Asian students from Boston's Chinatown training center.

So successful has the hospital been, that the Business Of The Year Award was made to Quincy Hospital by the Quincy Business News.

The past 12 months have been challenging and exciting. Next year will even be more challenging and exciting. Let me say I am proud of the performance of each of our departments and the increased spirit of cooperation with the unions who represent our workers. Together we will continue to search for solutions to our economic problems. We will continue to grapple creatively with the real Quality of Life issues.

Please allow me to remind you of something I said at the close of my inaugural speech in January, 1990. As the older Mariner would say, whether we succeed or fail, will depend not on the force of the gale, but the set of the sail, not on the intensity of our problems but on our response to them. If we have been successful in our recycling program, if we have been successful in the defeat of the Clean Harbors incinerator, if we have been successful in cleaning up and beautifying Quincy, if we have been successful in securing money to move Quincy into its rightful place in America's history, and if we have been successful in moving Quincy Hospital forward as a growing and effective health care institution, then we have been successful because we have learned the secret of leadership - that the hopes for our future rest not on the grandness of our plans but in the character of our people.

If we have succeeded, it has been through the combined efforts of the citizens of Quincy, the business commitment and my colleagues in government. If we are to continue to succeed in the months and years ahead, it will simply be because we know that trust is more important than the exercise of power, that leadership must be conscientious and accountable, because we listen before we act. If we continue to succeed, it will be because we drink at the well-spring of public life - caring about others. Let us continue working together right now.

For Outstanding Community Service

Gerald Gherardi Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Gerald (Jerry) Gherardi, 78, of Quincy, a long-time humanitarian who has contributed to innumerable charities and service organizations for more than a half century, has been selected the 1990 Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year."

Gherardi, of 115 Piermont St., who remains active in several local human services since his retirement as a Quincy school guidance counselor in 1982, was selected from among 41 nominees submitted by Sun readers.

A nine-member panel, representing the community, made the final selection from those 41 nominees.

Gherardi, who provided community services as a volunteer to many local organizations from 1935 to 1982 and still contributes to four service groups, is the sixth award recipient.

The award was established in 1985 to annually honor an individual for outstanding community service or for a special achievement.

Prior winners are Anthony Siciliano, deputy Civil Defense director; Ruth Wainwright, long-time community volunteer; the late Richard J. Koch Sr., a leader in community and charitable causes; Martin Finnegan, Quincy school athletic director and coordinator of Project Impact, an innovative program which trains teachers and community adults to help youngsters deal with substance and other problems; and Clara Yeomans, long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission.

Gherardi was nominated by his wife, Frances, who noted his more than 50 years of humanitarian service to his profession and community. The couple, married for 55 years, has lived on Piermont St. since 1945.

Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth congratulated Gherardi for his distinguished and dedicated humanitarian service. After being informed he had been selected the Sun Citizen of the Year for 1990, Gherardi said he is very excited to receive the honor.

"It's a big, big surprise," he added.

Bosworth also congratulated the other 40 nominees.

Up $2.9 Million Sheets Sees $123,623,581 Budget

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he will likely submit a budget of $123,623,581 for fiscal 1992 be level funding fire, police and education while cutting all other departments by four percent.

The budget, which will be submitted to the City Council for approval the first week of April, does not include money for capital outlay or raises for employees in the city's 21 unions.

In his Mid-Term Address 10 days ago, the mayor gave the school, police and fire departments top funding priority for FY 92 which will begin July 1. He told an overfilled City Council Chamber that he would not close one fire station or school as a means of saving city dollars. Instead, he said he would maintain the present levels of fire equipment and number of patrol officers.

Sheets also pledged to avoid shifting different grades from one school to another.

If all of the mayor's calculations are correct, a $123,632,581 municipal budget for FY 92 would leave the city with a $648,762 surplus. However, Sheets said he will order the four percent cuts within the next week as a way to build up the city's free cash account.

Four percent cuts in all departments other than school, fire and police would save the city between $500,000 and $750,000, the mayor estimated.

Sheets said the city must have at least one million in reserve in order to fund emergencies or cover revenue shortfalls. He noted the Central Middle School underwent nearly $1 million in repairs after a structural defect was discovered in the school roof several years ago.

Sheets said he hopes to avoid layoffs through attrition, retirement incentives and quarterly tax billing. The latter, he said, could save the city between $300,000 and $500,000 an

Anselmo Willing To Return To Board

Former School Committee Member Frank Anselmo, whose resignation two weeks ago touched off a small political controversy regarding a successor, offered a solution to the issue of filling his seat Tuesday.

In a phone interview with The Quincy Sun Tuesday morning, Anselmo, 92, who resigned because of health concerns Jan. 2, said he would finish his term if the city permitted him.

"I would finish the term if I had the legal right to withdraw my nomination. With my experience and guts, I still think I could do some good," Anselmo told the Sun.

FRANK ANSELMO

However, Anselmo will not get the chance. Because his letter of resignation was signed and received by City Clerk John Gillis, Mayor James A. Sheets said the resignation could not be withdrawn. Gillis, who contacted the state for a ruling, agreed.

"I think (Frank's) gesture was a magnanimous one, given his physical condition. It's always a volatile process to fill a vacancy," Sheets said.

"It's almost like a mini-election condensed into two to three weeks. It becomes spirited," the mayor added.

After learning the ruling, Anselmo said he was not disappointed. "They showed good judgement," he said with a laugh.

Anselmo's unexpired term will be filled at a special joint convention of Tree Recycling Success 2,614 To Receive Small Evergreens In April

By JANE ARENA
Thanks to a community-wide effort involving city officials, the business sector and private citizens, a total of 2,614 new evergreen trees will be planted throughout Quincy next April.

Leo Kelly, Honorary Chairman of the city's "Evergreen Quincy" program, reports overwhelming success.

Quincy residents were asked to bring their Christmas trees to the Park and Recreation Facility to be mulched, and, by doing so, they received a coupon redeemable for a small live evergreen tree next April. In the spring they may plant the tree on their own property or, if preferred, in an area designated by the city.

The program, devised by Kelly, is unique in the state in that it takes the now common practice of recycling Christmas trees one step further, pushing it into the future.

Not only does the mulching of the trees save dwindling landfill space and create a usable product which in itself benefits the environment, but the planting of new trees promotes a healthier environment for future generations.

Addreses of participating residents indicate new trees will be planted in virtually every neighborhood in Quincy, Kelly notes.

On Saturday, the final day of mulching, Kelly reports 161 Christmas trees were brought to the facility, despite poor driving conditions after Friday's snow storm.

"It was one of the most miserable days weather-wise," Kelly said, "and it really shows that people have a major concern for the environment...people came with the trees on the roofs of their cars, in the trunks...and even on that day people had absolutely nice things to say about the program, very positive and upbeat."

Residents will be able to redeem the coupons for live trees in April when the city plans a full week of environmental events in conjunction with National Environment Month.

From April 29 through May 5 there will be environmental seminars, demonstrations on composting, events in the schools, and, of course, the planting of 2,614 evergreen trees.

In addition, Kelly says, a 20-foot tall fir tree will be planted at McIntyre Mall in Quincy Center as a symbol of the city's "long-term commitment--past, present and future--to the environment."

The "Evergreen Quincy" Program was entirely funded by the J.M. Cashman Company, who paid for everything from the printing of the coupons and advertising costs, to purchasing the new trees.

Kelly has no estimate yet as to the total cost of the project.

Fore River Basin Health Meeting Jan. 31

A newly formed citizens group will hold a strategy meeting regarding the Fore River industrial basin

Thursday, Jan. 31 from 7 to 8:45 p.m. at the Tufts Library, 46 Broad St., Weymouth.

The group, called CORE/WATER, will discuss strategy to educate the Quincy-South Shore region on the existing health problems in the Fore River basin which members agree makes a health risk assessment important before the siting of the Boston Edison Edgar Station.

Interested citizens are welcome. For more information, contact Suzanne Anderson at 749-0624 or Lisa Stevenson at 335-0699.

$1.9 Million Bond Issue Before City Council Jan. 22

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
A $1.9 million bond issue, mostly capital outlay requests made by department heads, will be submitted to the City Council at its Jan. 22nd meeting by Mayor James A. Sheets.

Because the FY 1992 budget will not include money for capital outlay, Sheets said a bond issue could fund the requests and other emergency needs.

Because of the Martin Luther King Day Holiday, the Council will not meet Monday, Jan. 21. Instead, it will meet Tuesday, Jan. 22.

This will be the third straight year the city has gone without a capital outlay budget, the mayor noted. The last time was FY 89 when former Mayor Francis X. McCauley earmarked $202,965 for capital outlay requests. They included $39,000 for new fire equipment, $15,000 for a new station wagon for the building department and $9,000 for park equipment.

Sheets, who has not yet finalized the requests to be funded by the bond issue, said the total will not go above $1.9 million. He pointed out the school department has asked for more than $1 million to cover such expenses as masonry, fire alarm and roof repairs, asbestos removal and a new boiler.

Among the other requests are:

- $200,000 to repair the dampers of the fresh air monitoring system at new City Hall.
- $60,000 for a new boiler and $30,000 to remove asbestos at the John F. Kennedy Health Center.
- $56,000 to the fire department for new equipment such as hoses, helmets and boots.
- $50,000 in wiring work at the Wollaston Fire Station.

• $20,000 to $30,000 for new police weapons and another $20,000 for new police radios.

• $40,000 to remove the concrete blocks at McIntyre Mall outside new City Hall. The request was made by the City Clerk's office. Employees said several senior citizens have fallen after tripping on the blocks which tend to become uneven from frost heaves.

Sheets said the blocks are a liability and should be replaced with grass and a smooth, cement walkway.
• $15,000 to replace stolen equipment at Civil Defense headquarters on Sea St.

"All these requests are legitimate," Sheets said, adding he will add them up and keep the total under $1.9 million. He also noted some requests, like police weapons, may not be covered by a bond issue.

Dunkin Donuts Shop Approved At Hospital

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday gave its approval for a Dunkin Donuts Shop to open inside Quincy Hospital, providing the shop complies to conditions set by the Health Department and to signage restrictions to be established by the Building Department and the Hospital Director.

The shop would be operated by Albert Capraro who also operates a Dunkin Donuts in Weymouth. The shop would be licensed separately from the hospital, and would operate as a satellite shop, offering the same foods and beverages as other Dunkin Donut shops.

Ward Councillor Lawrence Chretien told the board he would support the proposal provided the donut shop does not seek to serve the general public which could create a traffic and parking problem at the facility. He said he does not object to the shop serving only hospital employees and visitors.

Chretien said he has discussed his concerns with Hospital Director Ellen Zane.

The request, from the Cap Group Inc., doing business as Dunkin Donuts, came before the board last week and was continued for two weeks. However, because two board members were able to report on site visits to the hospital, the matter

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action during Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

* Granted a request from Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan Pratt of Maganda International Foods (formerly Phil-Am), 417 Hancock St., for a common victualer license, providing they comply with Health Department conditions for upgrading.

* Granted a request from Peter Palmer of Petar's Automotive, Inc., 330 Quincy Ave., for a Motor 2 used car license to sell used cars at the site.

* Took under advisement for two weeks a request from David Tarbox of D.W. Tarbox and Sons, 85 Liberty St., for a Motor 2 used car license to sell used cars. The board asked Tarbox to meet with neighbors and the ward councillor to discuss the proposal.

* Granted a request from Alfred J. Grazioso, Jr. of Grazioso's Deli Shoppe, 69 Huckins Ave., to extend his license to include two tables with seating for four to eight people in the shop.

* Continued for two weeks a request from John Blythe of Footprints, 1515 Hancock St., for a license to install three under-sized pool tables and one hockey table game in the establishment. The board requested detailed architectural plans on the exact locations of the tables and its effect on occupancy level.

$10,500 Does A Lot

Peter Kolson doesn't collect a penny of his $10,500 salary as a city councillor, but he does a lot with the money.

He gives it all back to worthy causes and community and school projects in his Ward 1.

Kolson is superintendent of maintenance for the Quincy Housing Authority which comes under the state and by state regulations he cannot take both the state QHA pay and city salary as a councillor.

His QHA job pays $42,000. Naturally he opted to keep that salary which is his livelihood and not the $10,500 city council salary.

But he also decided not to let his council salary just sit there on the municipal books. He decided to spread it around in Ward 1. To do some good with it.

Kolson, who just completed the first year of his first term as a councillor, is making a report to the people of his ward this week informing them where his money went.

It went to quite a few places benefit ing quite a few people. For example:

- Some $4,000 of it went to school programs and PTOs at Broad Meadows, Atherton Hough, Snug Harbor and Merrymount Schools and the Friends For A Better Quincy High School.

- Among other things, the money was used to purchase a copier machine and table at Broad Meadows, books at the schools, athletic equipment and scholarships through the QHS Friends.

- And it also financed a program at Camp Massasoit for teachers and students from Broad Meadows organized by teacher Harold Crowley.

- Fifteen hundred went to camperships including a day care activities program at St. Boniface Church for nearly 100 youngsters.

- And, a two-week camp program for about 50 older youngsters at Derby, N.H. Both programs are arranged through the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

- Seventeen hundred went for recreational purposes at area parks and fields including a new basketball court at LaBrecque Field and new basketball hoops and backboards at Brill Field in Houghs Neck.

- An old tennis court behind the Snug Harbor School was converted into four individual street hockey courts for spring-summer-fall use. And Kolson is now making arrangements to have them flooded for ice hockey this winter.

- Twelve hundred was used for upgrading and repairs at the Merrymount School including the restoration of exterior doors.

- One thousand dollars went to the Manet Community Health Center for doors with buttons that can be easily reached by the handicapped and for paint. Houghs Neck Troop members painted the interior-three of the scouts working toward their Eagle badges. Other monies went for such improvements as:

- Sidewalk weed control along Sea St.
- Flower box plantings at traffic islands along Sea and Palmer Sts. with other islands to be done this spring.

- A new flag pole at Baker Beach.
- Allocations to the Adams Shore, Baker Beach, Houghs Neck and Merrymount Associations and the Gull Point Yacht Club for July 4th activities for youngsters.

- Elephant grass in the Broad Meadows and Post Island marshes and other areas was cut -- an effort literally applauded by residents of nearby homes which have been threatened by spreading marsh fires in the past.

Kolson doesn't see any of his council salary. He does his good deeds through a voucher-like arrangement with the city.

At the end of the year he had only $50 of his $10,500 salary left.

"This will be added to my $10,500 salary this year for allocation," Kolson says.

Among this year's projects, he hopes, will be a mosquito control program.

Kolson doesn't resent the fact he cannot collect his council salary. He has resisted suggestions that a home rule petition be filed in his behalf so that he could pocket the money.

"I would have run for the council if there was no salary," he says. "I ran so I could serve. But as long as there is a salary, I don't want it to just sit there. I want to give it back to the community -- to the people in the community where it will do some good."

He is used to serving without pay. He has been a long-time community activist and volunteer.

Does he have any political aspirations beyond ward councillor?

"Probably," he admits with a smile.

Like councillor at-large? "Well, someday maybe."

What about mayor? "Would I like to mayor? Sure, some day. And if anyone tells you he would never want to be mayor, he's kidding you."

But right now, Kolson is happy being Ward 1 councillor. And happy spreading his salary around.

A HIGHLIGHT of Mayor James Sheets mid-term address was the disclosure he will unveil in late February a 10-year Master Plan for revitalization of the Downtown Quincy, North Quincy and Wollaston business districts.

Ten years. That equals five two year mayoral terms.

Does that mean he is planning on five terms? "Well," he grinned, "You never can tell."

ANOTHER QUESTION: Is Leo Kelly really going to run for city councillor at-large?

Well, he must be pretty serious about it.

Two political observers reportedly recently bet that when it comes down to a final decision he won't run. Kelly reportedly took the bets.

OBSERVATION: One thing about a lot of slush and rain puddles on the streets. It really lets you know who all the jerks are -- the ones that speed through it all splashing pedestrians. Wouldn't you like to find them further down the street with their cars disabled from wet wires and other cars splashing them?

"Kids, Mother and I have decided to get a place of our own!"

A Darling Little Dog

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

This is not the most important letter that you will receive but I hope that you find space for it.

It may solve a mystery. It may set someone's mind at ease.

Ten years ago in November we found a little silver furred dog with black ears. She could have been terrier-poodle. She was starving and had been abused.

Originally she must have had a good home for she was well trained.

I called every animal shelter within a 50 mile radius but could find out nothing.

UNMITIGATED GALLSTONES

Stones in the gallbladder or common bile duct are commonly called gallstones. They occur four times as frequently in women as in men. The typical gallstone patient is often described as "four F's": female, fair (Caucasian), fat and fortyish. Causes of the disorder are not clear, but may be related to diet and obesity. Some people have no symptoms, while others develop considerable flatulence, indigestion, mild jaundice, a rapid pulse, and discomfort after meals.

When a stone finds its way into the bile duct, the symptom is excruciating pain from the upper abdominal area to the back or right shoulder. Patients with gallstones should avoid eating fried or greasy foods, pastries, and gas-forming vegetables including cabbage, brussel sprouts, turnips, broccoli, and cauliflower. Other raw fruits and vegetables should be tested for tolerance.

P.S. Surgery is the standard treatment for gallstones, although non-surgical approaches are sometimes recommended.

temporary borrowing.

However, if the unions demand pay hikes, Sheets said there would be layoffs. Reducing the payroll would be the only way to fund the raises, he explained.

The mayor said the city and fire union have been meeting regularly and are nearing a settlement. He said the new contract could be for one year with no salary increase.

There are been preliminary discussions with police union officials. "It's my hope to begin more intense negotiations with the police within the next two weeks," Sheets said.

The school committee will ultimately determine whether the teachers' union receives a pay increase. Sheets said he has informed Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci that he will submit the FY 91 school budget of $36.7 million for FY 92 to the City Council. That budget will not include money for teacher raises.

However, the School Committee can vote to grant the hikes. In that case, the budget would have to be amended and money for the raises would be taken out of the budget.

Fiscal difficulties, which the mayor confronted throughout his first year in office, appear to be following him as he begins his second year. Faced with a $15 million shortfall for FY 91 last January, Sheets persuaded the City Council to pass a $9.5 million sewer user fee. He also ordered six percent across the board cuts in all city departments, resulting in 47 layoffs.

According to the latest figures, the city has a $1.3 million deficit for FY 91. Sheets said the "major culprit" is $3.1 million in delinquent property taxes, about half of which is tied up in bankruptcy.

Last year, the mayor blamed the state for the city's fiscal woes. This year, Sheets said the lagging national economy is tying up the city's purse strings. "The banking situation and real estate foreclosures is driving people into Chapter 11," he said. If all delinquent property tax money were collected, Sheets said the city would have a $1.5 million surplus, not a $1.3 million shortfall.

In fact, the city would be in a much stronger financial position if all the delinquent real estate money protected by Chapter 11 were paid to the city. Some $10 million in outstanding money from previous tax years is in bankruptcy.

The city's free cash account is also presently in the red. The account, which soared to the $10 million mark during the real estate boom and tenure of fiscal conservative former Mayor Francis X. McCauley, is presently at minus $77,805, Sheets said Tuesday.

Savings which will help the city wipe out its red ink include $250,000 to $300,000 from the recycling program and $1.5 million that was budgeted but not spent on the capping of the West Quincy landfill. The city is also anticipating $180,000 in veterans' benefit reimbursements from the state.

The FY 92 budget is predicated on the state level funding the city $34,157,935 and $1 million in new growth.

Last year, the City Council approved a FY 91 budget of $120,665,106.

Deegan Resignation As City Manager Stuns Party Goers

William J. Deegan Jr. stunned a dinner party at the Neighborhood Club that included five city councilors by announcing his resignation from the $16,000 a year post of city manager.

Deegan, the first city manager appointed after Quincy adopted the Plan E form of government in 1950, had served five years and 11 days. His resignation would be effective Feb. 21.

Deegan said he planned to go to work for the Agnew Foundation for Municipal Research to develop the idea of building schools with private capital and leasing them to municipalities.

CITY UNIONS NEEDED

Kenneth J. Kelly, legislative agent for the State AFL, told the annual banquet of the Quincy Firefighters Association that unions are now a necessity for public employees.

"I only wish school teachers and other city workers would take a page from the Firefighters Association's book and attempt unionizing. It would help their economic lot," said Kelly.

"I have seen at the State House an effective organization of other groups, such as the taxpayers, selectmen, chambers of commerce, tending to stifle the legitimate aspirations of city workers."

Anselmo Willing To Return

the City Council and School Committee Wednesday, Jan. 30. Candidates include former school committee members Daniel Raymondi and Margaret Nigro, and school activists Robert Jarnis, Toni Kabilian, Joanne Bragg and Judy Brans.

The vacancy has forced several officials, including the mayor, to decide whether their vote would be a conflict of interest. Whoever is appointed could end up voting on teacher contracts.

Sheets, who was a member of the faculty at Quincy College before becoming mayor, said he will abstain. Two current members, Ron Mariano and Frank Santoro, and Councilor Ted DeCristofaro, have relatives employed by the school system.

Anselmo, who was first elected to the school committee in 1961 at age 62, decided to step down because of a damage tendon in his left arm.

"I was aching from here," he said, gesturing to his left wrist, "to my shoulder. I couldn't get out of bed without help. And I was running a fever without even knowing it."

Anselmo was examined by a doctor who equipped him with an arm brace. Soon after, he decided to resign because he thought he could no longer be a productive member of the school committee.

He wrote and signed a letter of resignation to Sheets, who is also chairman of the school committee. The mayor read the letter at the Jan. 2 school committee meeting.

Since that meeting, Anselmo has been on the mend and he says his health is "progressing." A biopsy from a vein surgically removed from his head tested negative. He also said he has regained most of the use of his left arm and his blood pressure and heart rate are normal.

"If I had known then, two or three weeks ago, what I know now, I would have stayed on (the committee)," Anselmo said.

During his 29 years on the committee, Anselmo was known for his color and candor. Never one to conceal or dilute his feelings on an issue, his years on the board are marked by his persistent opposition to school closings and spending cuts as well as his loyal support for teacher raises.

While a school committee member, Anselmo promoted drug and alcohol counseling, stumped for adequate school nurses and advocated nutritious school lunch menus.

He also was a force behind the $6.5 million construction of the Quincy Vocational Technical School and $17.5 million in renovations at North Quincy High School.

Anselmo also supported the school system with his wallet. Over the years, Anselmo has donated more than $30,000 to the city-owned Quincy College. Two years ago, college administrators thanked Anselmo by dedicating a new library in his name.

With the city and state falling on tough financial times, Anselmo predicts the school system will be forced to do more with less.

"Sheets, with all his good intentions, (Gov. William) Weld will all of his intentions, will accomplish nothing in the next two years. It's common sense, it's here now.

John's Primavera Sauce

A Sunday drive to look for curtains ended with the best gourmet dinner ever at my brother John's house. His wife Ania had called us earlier to see if we felt like "hopping in the car" and just riding until we found what they were looking for. Anyway, they did find the curtains and we all ended up at their house ironing and hanging them up.

In about an hour and a half or so, John had prepared the best dinner, including a couple of stuffed lobsters (their son Chris was there with a friend), rosemary potatoes, stuffed peppers, and the best primavera tomato sauce. Here is the recipe for the sauce.

JOHN'S PRIMAVERA SAUCE

- 1 or 2 green peppers
- 1 small zucchini
- 1 stalk of celery
- 1 medium onion
- 2 fresh carrots
- 1 large can crushed or peeled tomatoes
- 1 Lb of pasta

(John cooked both linguine and ziti)

- 1 tsp basil
- salt and pepper to taste
- grated Romano or Parmesan cheese
- 1/4 Lb fresh mushrooms (optional)

Cut all the vegetables in bite sized pieces. Saute quickly in some hot oil until blended and then add the tomatoes, basil, salt and pepper, and cook until vegetables are tender.

It usually takes about 30 to 45 minutes depending on the amount used. Pour over pasta and sprinkle with grated cheese.

P.S. The curtains looked great!

Crime Watch

Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Business Security

How would you like to help a burglar break into your place of business and steal everything of value you have? Sounds crazy? Don't be too sure. Quite a few business owners do just that, though they don't realize they're doing it.

If you're not doing everything you can to make it hard for a burglar to get in, if you're not making it likely he'll get caught if he does get in, or if you're making your business too tempting a target, you might as well be the thief's accomplice.

Are you a potential accomplice? Here's one way to find out: Stop by your business at night, when it's closed. Look at it with a burglar's eyes. Case the joint.

Start across the street. Are there shadows to hide you as you try to get in? Would boxes stacked near the building provide cover? Is a delivery truck or company car parked near the side so you could use it as cover or as a ladder to get in a window or onto the roof?

Is there merchandise in the display window, where you could smash, grab and run? Can you see into the far corners of the display room, or could a thief work at his/her leisure, unseen by passersby?

Now take a walk around the building. Is there evidence of a burglar alarm - a door or window sticker or some visible wiring? Are hinges on the outside of the door, so that you could remove them and lift the door out? What kind of lock is on the door? Is there a glass panel you could break to reach inside and unlock it? (It's much easier for a thief to walk in than break in).

How about basement windows or ground floor windows could you gain access through them? Could you pull a van into the back alley to cart away your loot? How about a skylight or large vents as a way to get in - or adjoining buildings?

You could find out all of these things without even going into your business, probably without making anyone suspicious. If you came back during business hours, you could do further checking on locks and the burglar alarm, see where the money is kept, find out when there's a lot of cash on hand and where valuable merchandise is displayed.

These are all things a would-be burglar looks for. And they are things that you, as a business owner, must be aware of too - unless you want to be his accomplice. Security is an important part of business management... just as important as inventory control and pricing, because it directly affects your balance sheet. A good security system may seem costly, but it's cheaper in the long run than risking being wiped out by a burglar - and that can happen to a small business.

How much money and time you spend on security will depend on a lot of variables: whether you're in an area with a high crime rate, whether your merchandise is especially appealing for its resale value, the layout and size of your shop and others.

As the Quincy Police Crime Prevention Officer I have been trained to do security surveys on both residential and business property. I can point out security gaps and suggest improvements. A security survey is time well spent. After the security survey it's up to you to follow through.

Christmas Festival Parade Committee To Meet

The Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Committee was scheduled to meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Patriot Ledger, 400 Crown Colony Dr., South Quincy.

The committee was set to discuss the pros and cons of last year's parade while beginning to plan the 40th annual event which will take place this November.

Chairman George White said the 40th edition will be "by far, the most unique and outstanding of the previous 39 and is sure to top all previous parades."

Since this will be the 40th edition of the traditional parade, much time will likely be devoted to its planning and researching. Anyone who has parade pictures, stories and memorabilia of the preceding 39 Quincy Christmas parades are asked to contact White at 525 Newport Ave., Quincy, telephone 773-3317, or Mrs. Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., Quincy, 479-4519.

Technical Center Seeking Volunteers

Administrators at the Center for Technical Education are seeking the services of retired engineering and technical citizens to assist in educational programs.

Joseph A. Mazzarella, Director of Occupational Education, says a team of volunteers could assist in providing technical advice to students, especially that pertaining to careers in technical fields. He also joined in an appeal from local resident Frank Madden, who is seeking volunteers to work with students in middle schools. Mr. Madden is a retired vice president of Itek Optical Systems.

Madden and Mazzarella concurred with fears expressed by leading industrialists that there exists a declining interest among young people in technical careers, as a result of their belief that educational preparation is too difficult and beyond their capability.

The goal of these educational programs is to instill confidence and technical career interest in students. According to Madden, this can be done if volunteers can "demystify careers in science and engineering."

Requirements for volunteers include a degree in science and at least five years experience in a technical field. Volunteers will be expected to spend six to eight hours a week in preparation time and meeting with students.

Those interested contact Joseph Mazzarella at 984-8731.

many outstanding nominees," he said, noting this is the highest number of nominees submitted in one year since the award began in 1985. Including the multiple nominations that some people received, a total of 50 nominations were submitted for this year's award.

"To be nominated is an honor in itself because the nominations are made by those from the community," Gherardi will be honored at a reception to be hosted by the Sun at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center in March.

Over the last 50 years, Gherardi has volunteered his services to many local charities.

During the 1950s and 1960s, he was chairman of the Red Cross Disaster relief programs. As chairman, he recruited people to help their fellow citizens in times of emergencies, such as hurricanes, floods and fires.

Also during that period, he was elected one of the first presidents of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore.

In the beginning, the CP of the South Shore relied entirely on local monies because the federal government had yet to begin assisting it.

As a result, Gherardi was responsible for raising much of the money needed to fund therapies, education, social workers and counseling services for children and adults with Cerebral Palsy throughout the South Shore area.

Gherardi, with the help of his good friend, Arthur Ciampa, set up many fundraising committees for CP of the South Shore.

"We had to go out and have fundraisers in the 45 cities and towns that we served on the South Shore. That was a great big job," Gherardi said.

In 1960, Gherardi was the driving force behind another fundraising effort. As residential chairman of the United Fund, he helped the charity raise $348,189, far surpassing its goal that year.

The United Fund supplied revenue for many non-governmental services, including Boy Scouts and Girls Scouts, YMCA and United Cerebral Palsy.

In the 1950s, Gherardi was appointed building chairman of the Atlantic Middle School. The new facility was constructed near the end of the decade.

He was appointed to several other posts, including chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging by the late Former Mayor James R. McIntyre in the 1960s.

After 14 years as a secondary school guidance counselor in the Quincy school department, he retired in 1982. However, Gherardi continues to be very active and involved in the community.

One of his favorites activities is serving as chairman and secretary of the Quincy High School Classes of 1930 scholarship fund committee.

Since the fund began in 1980, three Quincy high school seniors have received financial assistance for post-high school education every year.

Last year, three students received $500 each. Over the last 10 years, Gherardi estimates $10,000 has been distributed to 30 Quincy high school seniors going on to college.

Besides the scholarship committee, Gherardi is an active member of the Quincy High School Improvement Council and Quincy Vocational Technical Center Advisory Committee.

He and his wife have two daughters and two sons. Lois Ostert lives in Plymouth, Mass.; Gerald R. Gherardi resides in East Haverhill, N.H.; Edward Gherardi lives in Hanover, N.H., and Janice Marie Gherardi resides in Gheraound.

The Gherardis also have 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The award was planned prior to the arrest of suspects in the recent brutal murder of a homeless man, but that incident, the board feels, is another example of the commitment of the Quincy Police to the homeless of the city.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

The flag is the symbol of our national unity. It is the spirit of our undying devotion to our country. It stands for the best that is in us; for loyalty, character, and faith in democracy ...

Isn't the flag - Patrick Henry, Jefferson, Franklin, Washington, Gettysburg and Valley Forge; Paul Revere, Jackson and other great men and women who have given us our heritage? When you look at the flag, can't you see the Alamo, Pearl Harbor, the Merrimac, Wake Island, and Korea? And, lest we forget, isn't the flag Flanders Field, Bataan, Iwo Jima, Normandy, Vietnam, Babe Ruth and Davy Crockett?

The great events and people of our past and present are wrapped up in the folds of our flag ... Yes, the flag is a symbol of this blessed nation; a giant in industry, education and commerce. It is the symbol of millions of fertile square miles, wheatlands, coal mines and steel plants ... It is our great Republic, a shining beacon of light, noble and glorious; the haven for the oppressed and persecuted and truly one of God's great gifts to mankind ...

This is what our flag means. Can we wave it too much? We don't think so ... Don't you agree?

JQA And The Amistad Incident Lecture Feb. 6

Curator Barbara Hudson will deliver a lecture entitled "John Quincy Adams and the Amistad Incident" Wednesday, Feb. 6 at 7:30 p.m. at the United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Hudson is a curator of African American Art at the Wadsworth Athenaeum in Hartford, Conn.

The lecture, which features a special viewing of the Mendi Bible, is sponsored by the National Park Service, Adams National Historic Site and United First Parish Church.

In 1841, the Spanish slave ship Amistad sailed to Africa where its crew captured 53 Africans. Natives were put in chains and forced aboard the Amistad. The tribe was known as the Mendi people.

The crew planned to sail the ship to Cuba where the Mendi people would be sold as slaves. On the way to Cuba, the Africans broke their chains and took control of the Amistad.

Within weeks, they were on trial in Washington, D.C., for mutiny. Former Sixth U.S. President, John Quincy Adams, would successfully defend the Mendi people.

To show their gratitude, the Mendi people presented Adams a Bible. The Bible is a part of the historic collection at the Adams National Historic Site and will be on display during the lecture.

North Snaps Quincy Streak

By TOM SULLIVAN
In one of the finest games played between the cross-town rivals in some time, the North Quincy hockey team snapped Quincy's five-game unbeaten streak with an exciting 2-1 victory last Saturday night at the Youth Arena.

The win improved North's record to 5-3-2 while Quincy fell to 5-3-1.

The Raiders played at Plymouth last night (Wednesday), will play Silver Lake Saturday at 4:30 at Pembroke's Hobomock Arena and will play at Barnstable next Wednesday night at 8:15.

The Presidents last night hosted Barnstable, unbeaten in the Old Colony League, will host Plymouth Saturday night at 7:50 and will be home to Falmouth next Wednesday at 6:40.

"This was just an outstanding hockey game with both teams playing well," said North coach Tom Benson. "Both goalies were outstanding as were the defenses. It was an exceptionally well-played game."

North took a 1-0 lead in the second period on Mike DesRoche's unassisted goal.

Quincy tied with six minutes to play on Jeff Craig's goal with Jimmy Smith, playing an outstanding game as he returned from surgery, assisting.

Bill Lydon scored the game-winner with four minutes to play with Mike Christopherson assisting. "Pat O'Donoghue was tremendous in goal and Lydon, Chris McCallum, Mike and Steve O'Brien, Rich Brooks and Matt Swierk were standouts," said Benson.

"This was high school hockey at its best," said Quincy Hall of Famer George Peachey, the Presidents' statistician. "Tom Benson did a great job coaching as North keyed on our two top scorers, Scott MacPherson (the league's leading scorer) and Sean McArdle. They did a great job covering them."

"Scott Mann was unbelievable for us in goal and kept us in the game and the defense did a fine job. Dave Mullen, McArdle, MacPherson, Craig, Chris Lewis and Shane Abboud all played excellent games. The game was very well played with only nine minor penalties being called. There were no cheap shots and it was just an outstanding game and the players of both teams should be very proud."

Earlier in the week North Quincy lost to Bridgewater-Raynham, 3-1, despite another superb effort by goalie O'Donoghue, who had 27 saves.

Mike O'Brien had the lone North Quincy goal as B-R scored all three of its goals in the third period to overcome a 1-0 deficit.

The Quincy-Weymouth game was postponed and at press time it had not been rescheduled.

Kiwanis Hockey Tournney Feb. 18

still openings for local teams in the Class-A AHA-sanctioned triple elimination tournament.

Teams from all four QYH divisions will participate.

To register contact Beverly Reinhardt at the Quincy Youth Hockey Rink, 479-8371.

Bay State Drives To First Place

Bay State Auto moved into first place in the South Shore Hockey Association with a 6-3 win over Sullivan Tire as the Varsity Club was held to a rare scoreless tie by Sports Emporium and fell into second place.

Gene Anderson had a hat trick for Bay State and Bob Nithler, Steve LeVangie and Skip Manganaro a goal each. Ed

Flaherty had four assists. Steve Walsh had two goals and Ray Gollome one for Sullivan.

Denley's defeated the Gold team, 7-3, as Joe Fell had a hat trick, Paul Raznick two goals and Ed Kelly two. Rich Swift had two goals and Peter Hemenway one for the Gold. Swift had two assists and Kevin McCann and John McNulty one each.

Things are going from bad to worse for the North Quincy boys' basketball team, which lost to Barnstable, 65-57, last Saturday, dropping its record to 2-6.

If it wasn't bad enough that the Raiders lost standout Desmond Bellot for the season (broken leg suffered in football), they have lost another starter, Chris Olsen, for the rest of the year with a broken bone in his foot.

North faced Falmouth Tuesday night and will be at Weymouth Friday night at 7 o'clock. The Raiders will be idle next Tuesday.

"It is going to be really tough the rest of the season without both Bellot and Olsen, but I'm confident we will hold our own," said Coach Ted Stevenson. "Losing two one-pointers in a row hurt us and I'm confident if we had won those two, and Bellot could well have made the difference, it would have made a difference for us."

"The team has been playing hard at all times and sophomore Sean Donovan is really coming along and will help take up the slack over the second half of the season."

Capt. Brian Curran has had an outstanding season and is the number two scorer in the Old Colony League with a 25-point-a-game average.

Against Barnstable Curran was held to 14 points, his lowest total of the year. Donovan scored 16, Matt Flynn nine and Olsen eight.

Earlier in the week North lost to Bridgewater-Raynham, 74-61.

Curran had 15 points, Donovan 12 and Flynn 11 for the Raiders, who trailed, 34-26, at halftime.

Meanwhile, Quincy had a four-game win streak snapped by Taunton, 74-61, dropping its record to 4-3.

Quincy's game last week with Silver Lake was twice postponed. It was snowed out Friday and rescheduled for Saturday but was again postponed when the Lakers were unable to make the trip to Quincy.

The Presidents met Barnstable Tuesday night, will be at Falmouth Friday night at 7 and will play at Bridgewater-Raynham next Tuesday, also at 7.

Sacred Heart Basketball

5 Teams Win First Games

The Sacred Heart Youth Basketball Program is providing good competition and last week five teams won their first games of the season in the South Shore YMCA-Church League.

The David B squad (boys 15-17) staged a furious comeback in the last three minutes to upset St. Albert's, 38-37. Terry Manning scored the winning basket with less than a minute to play while Stephen Rayne and Eric Zimmerman keyed the offensive rally.

Tom Sherman, and Peter Fitzpatrick rebounded strongly against the taller St. Albert Club and coaches Jim and Chuck Jaehnis also praised the play of Mike Kowick and Patrick Donaher as the David B team improved to 1-3.

The David A squad has been led by Marc Swirals, Michael McAdams and David White. Coaches Jim Tuite and Chuck Mason have noted marked improvement in the play of Greg Burke, Christopher German, Jim Butts, Michael Garrido and John Svagdis.

The Goliath A team (boys 12-14) defeated the Goliath C team, 23-19. Chris Furlong keyed the win with his scoring, rebounding and defensive intimidation, aided by the hustling play of Ryan Nickerson, Michael Hanon and Billy Manning. Coach Derek Nickerson spoke highly of Marco Garrido, Sean Machum, Martin Hickey, John Cleary, Daniel Halpeny and Brian Shields.

Dan Boylen and Scott Campbell were outstanding in a losing effort and Philip Poon, Mark Welch, John Greene, Sean Hughes, Michael McGrath, David Porra, Chris Ritchie and Sean Williams have been giving 110 per cent all year long, according to coach Bill Boylen.

Despite a serious height disadvantage, the Goliath B team has played its heart out, said coach Bob Hannaford. Twelve-year-olds Stephen Rose, Mark Redjonovic, Mike Marinilli, Kenny Hannaford, Thomas Bowes and Bobby Bowes are gaining valuable experience which should pay off in the future. Bobby Hannaford has been a tower of strength and Don Bermingham and Kenny Ledwak have played well.

The Daniel C team (boys 10-11) topped St. Albert's, 18-12, for its first victory. Norman Connell was high scorer, Kevin Bowes and Patrick Cummings rebounded well and Will Lalcey and Danny Ridkon played tough defense.

Coaches Emilios Rigas and John Larkin praised Patrick Stedman, who scored his first basket, Chris Tobin, Danny MacDougall, Tommy Gilmartin and Craig Bigham. The team awaits the return of power forward Jeurik Samborski, who fractured his finger.

Coach Devin Kerfien's Daniel B team has yet to taste victory but is steadily improving. Bob Blakie, Teddy McGillicuddy, Billy Nelson, Kevin Cleary, Mike Cremin, Patrick Kerfien and Adam Radzevich have all played well from the forward position as have guards Alex Furlong, Fred Elfmon and John Harter.

The Daniel A team with a 2-3 record has been led by Kevin Sullivan, newcomer Chris Robinson and sharpshooters Raymond Sante and Matt Noonan. Luke Donaher, Jim McGrath, Dan LeBlanc, Mark Paulsen, Matt O'Day and Matt Stephansky all received praise from coach John LeBlanc.

Coaches Ed Burke and Tom Gallagher's Samson B team (boys 8-9) celebrated its first win, 22-14, over Fort Square. Henry DiNino, Jason London, Kevin Lynch, Brian Burke, Patrick Driscoll and Joey MacRitchie were outstanding and Ryan Barrett, Billy Martin, Jesse Bigham, Patrick Gallagher and John Gavin played key roles in the win.

The Samson A team is 2-2 and has been led by Brendon Donovan, Ronald Kyi, Matt Nelson and Chris Cummings. Coaches Jim Donovan and Bill Nelson have been getting excellent play from Terrence Doherty, Jim Fitzgerald, Donald Kavanagh, Stephen Nunukas, Alan Paulsen and Matt Stempleski. High-scoring Paul Foley suffered a knee injury and his teammates are hoping for a speedy recovery.

Matthew Brehney, Nick Cyr, Paul Lentini, Mark Peterson and Joey Ardagna have keyed a 2-2 record for the Samson C team. Coaches Frank Brundage, Joe Lentini and Bill O'Toole have received fine efforts from 8-year-olds Brendon Bowes, Patrick Brundage, Kevin Cotter, Patrick O'Donnell, Daniel O'Toole and Billy O'Toole.

The bright spot of the season has been the play of the Midget A (girls 8-10) team, the program's only undefeated team (4-0).

In its last two games the team rolled over St. Albert's, 28-3, and topped St. Joseph's, 24-12.

Under the direction of coaches Cheryl Murphy and Cheryl Abbott, the Midget A's have received strong efforts from Kelley McVeigh, Elizabeth McNally and Nicole Romanowski.

Lisa O'Toole, Kristen Bowes and the Lavery sisters, Kate and Kim, have sparked offensively and the defense has been bolstered by Shannon O'Donnell, Lauren Shields and Martha Stedman.

Moving To Pennsylvania

Powers Resigns As Father Bill's Director

Nancy Powers, Director of Father Bill's Place homeless shelter, announced Monday she is resigning her position and moving to Pennsylvania because she and her husband cannot afford to buy a home in Massachusetts.

Powers, 29 told the board of directors of the Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, which operates Father Bill's, of her decision to accept a job as a human services training and development specialist in Warren and Forest Counties in Pennsylvania. Powers, the mother of two, earns $30,000 as Director of Father Bill's. Her husband, Merrill is a police officer who has been unable to work recently due to injury.

Powers also directs a 20-bed shelter at St. John's Church.

She was raised in Warren, Pennsylvania and came to Quincy in 1978 to earn her bachelors degree in social work from Eastern Nazarene College.

After graduating she took a job with the Salvation Army in Quincy.

She helped to establish the Salvatiion Army homeless shelter in 1984 and went on to establish other shelters with the help of the Coalition.

Today Father Bill's Place, a 65-bed facility which began in St. John's Church, has a permanent home at the former Registry building

She plans to leave the city Feb. 22. In her new position she will be responsible for developing and reviewing programs and writing grant proposals in the areas of mental health, alcoholism and family and children's services.

Golf Course Permit Extension Before Planning Board

The Quincy Planning Board was scheduled to meet on six agenda items at a meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room, City Hall.

They were:
 •Presidents Place subdivision, release of bond.
 •City-owned property, 12-18 Pawsey St., plot 133, plan 1076-P, Lawrence Peterson.

•PUD special permit, Marina Bay Golf Course, request for time extension.

•High Ridge Court Subdivision, request for time extension, Aristides Lamberg.

•Gardiner Road Subdivision, status report.

was taken up again.

During meetings with the City Council on the rehabilitation of Quincy Hospital there was an area already designated for a professional coffee shop. The license board needed only to accept the opening of the shop.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey said he is mainly concerned about signage for the coffee shop and said there should be no outside signage at all.

A.A. Rocuzzo, Hospital Director of Materials, said there is an existing stipulation from the City Council that there be no signage on the building's exterior.

Mulvey said he and Hospital Director Ellen Zane will discuss restrictions and conditions for interior signage for the shop.

Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue said a site inspection by Inspector Charles Vlaskakis last week identified conditions which would have to be met for Health Department approval of the proposal:

* The wall area behind the work space must be covered with a nonporous material, such as formica;

* The seating in the shop is to be limited to 20 persons, and;

* A double-tub sink is required for food preparation and hand-washing.

Rocuzzo said all of the conditions would be met and the Health Department would be alerted prior to the installation of all fixtures and at the completion of the work for a final inspection.

He gave each member of the license board a copy of a memo acknowledging the Health Department inspection and the conditions set forth.

The board voted unanimously to accept the opening of the shop provided there is compliance with any and all conditions of the Health Department, the Building Department and the Fire Department.

Some City License Fees Expected To Be Raised

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The city License Board will be reviewing license fees in the coming weeks and will likely raise some of them.

The License Board presently issues 40 different types of licenses.

City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the License Board, said that the fees are reviewed once every four years.

With the city tightening its fiscal belt, it is expected that many of the license fees will be looked at closely.

If the board decides it can fairly raise a fee it will, Gillis said.

Some of the license fees are set by the state, including gasoline and Motor I, Motor II and Motor III licenses. However, most are set by city ordinance including alcoholic beverage, hackney, pinball and pool table licenses.

Presently, license fees run from as low as 50 cents (for a particular explosives license) to $1,300 (for an innholder's license).

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey said that fees as low as 50 cents should be automatically increased since they are not worth the cost of the paperwork involved in processing them.

Joint Convention Jan. 30 On Anselmo Vacancy

The Joint Convention of the School Committee and the City Council will be held Wednesday, Jan. 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the Media Center of Quincy High School for the purpose of electing someone to fill the vacancy on the School Committee created when Frank Anselmo resigned.

Mayor James Sheets sent out the official memorandum calling for the Joint Convention on Tuesday.

The new member will fill Anselmo's unexpired term, which is nearly one year, the mayor said.

One of the candidates for the position could be Anselmo himself, the mayor noted.

Anselmo, 92, who resigned from the School Committee Jan. 2 because of health concerns, has indicated his willingness to complete his term.

However, because his resignation was signed and received by City Clerk John Gillis, Anselmo's resignation cannot be withdrawn.

Technically though, Anselmo will be considered, along with other interested candidates, to fill his own unexpired term.

Others who have expressed interest to the mayor in filling the vacancy are: Joann Bragg, Judith Brams, Robert Jarnis, Toni Kabilian and Peggy Nigro.

There may be other candidates as well, the mayor said, because no formal notification is necessary to be considered for the post.

"All anyone has to do is just put their name in," he said.

City Seeks Playground Grant

The city has completed the "pre-application" process for federal grant monies to improve the Snug Harbor Playground, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

Although no cost for the improvements has been established at this time, he said he would "guess" the total cost will be between $80,000 and $175,000.

The mayor said the city should know "within eight weeks" whether or not the grant has been approved.

The grant is under the Urban Park and Recreation Recovery Program which is funded with federal money for the specific purpose of improving recreational facilities.

The city chose the Snug Harbor playground, the mayor said, because it fits those factors which the federal government considers when reviewing grant applications.

In the future the city will apply for the grant for other recreational improvements, he said.

The city hopes to virtually replace the basketball court, which cannot be used now due to vandalism, to relocate the swing sets so they can be more visible and thus safeguarded against vandalism, to re-plant the outfield of the softball field, and to make improvements to handicap access to the playground.

Currently, the mayor notes, the Snug Harbor

Playground can be used only for kickball, hockey and a general play area. The planned improvements would increase the functions to five, adding basketball and softball.

Following the pre-application process, the mayor said, another application, this one with specific cost analysis, will be filed. If the final grant request is approved the project will be put out to bid.

Would Boost City's Tourism

Sheets Takes Park Plan To Capital

By JANE ARENA

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he plans to "talk about" the city's proposal for the "National Heritage Park" with officials from the National Park Service while he attends the Winter Mayor's Conference in Washington, D.C. this week.

The mayor was scheduled to leave for Washington Wednesday morning and return to the city Friday afternoon. The conference will be conducted Wednesday through Friday.

Although the Mayor's "official role" at the conference will deal with the Community Development, Housing and Economic Development Committee, of which he is a member, he said he also plans to discuss his proposal for the National Heritage Park which he hopes will attract tourists to Quincy's historic sites.

Mayor Sheets believes tourism could have an economic impact on the city's future just as granite and shipbuilding had on the city's past.

The proposed National Heritage Park will seek to draw tourists to Quincy's historic treasures.

The "heart" of the National Heritage Park will be Quincy Center, the mayor explains, and will encompass the downtown historic sites including the Dorothy Quincy House, the Woodward School, the Adams Academy, the Adams Mansion, and possibly Old City Hall, Hancock Cemetery, the Thomas Crane Public Library and the United First Parish Church.

These historic sites will be linked, he explains, by a visitor's information center which he hopes will be built with "Interior Dollars." The downtown

Former Quincy Residents In Israel

The Quincy Sun has learned that at least six present or former residents are presently living in Israel which was attacked by Iraqi missiles last week.

Ralph and Vivian Kolodny of Furnace Brook Parkway, West Quincy, are in Israel. Ralph Kolodny is a retired professor at Northeastern University. He and his wife spend four to six months in Israel each year.

Their son, Dr. Jonathan Kolodny, is a physician in Norwood. The Sun was unable to reach him for comment Tuesday.

Milton Katz, founder of Milton's in Downtown Quincy now located at the South Shore Plaza, Braintree, and his wife are also living in Israel.

Two former residents, David Waldman and Ronnie Waldman, live in Tel Aviv, the city which was attacked by Iraqi Scud missiles last week, one day after the United States began waging war on Iraq.

BERNIE REISBERG
Expresses Concern For Cousins

The Waldmans and Quincy resident and businessman Bernie Reisberg are second cousins. Born in Israeli, the Waldmans came to the United States when they were young about 25 years ago. They lived with Reisberg and his wife, Marilyn, before moving to Everett.

After graduating from college, the Waldmans

Long-Time Eyesore To Be Replaced By Italian Restaurant

By STEVE KAVANAGH
A long-time eyesore in North Quincy will soon be replaced by Tullio's, an Italian restaurant.

The City License Board granted a common victualer's license and a wine and malt license to Brian Burke of South Boston for the establishment at 150 Hancock St.

Burke is currently renovating the building which housed Lefty's Sports Bar. The bar closed following a suspicious fire a few years ago.

Burke hopes to open the restaurant in March. Seating for 80 is planned for the establishment which will serve Italian dishes and pizza. Items will also be available for takeout.

Burke has agreed to make safety improvements in the parking lot including one driveway instead of two, and installing a "right turn only" sign for cars exiting onto Hancock Street. Shrubs and additional lighting will also be added.

Hours of operation will be from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. seven days a week.

Ward 6 city councillor Thomas Nutley has met with Burke to assure that no parking will be allowed on Hancock St. in front of the restaurant.

Keep Path To Mailbox Clear Of Ice And Snow

The U.S. Postal Service

is asking area residents to clear ice and snow from walkways and steps leading to their mailbox so letter carriers will be able to deliver their mail in a safe and timely manner.

Letter carriers experience a high incidence of injuries resulting from slips, trips and falls when icy and snowy conditions prevail, the Postal Service said. Many of these accidents could be prevented if walkways and steps were shoveled, salted or sanded.

A safe, clear pathway not only benefits your letter carrier, but also your family, friends and other visitors to your home or business, the Postal Service said.

NQHS-Business Partnership Renewed

The Quincy School-Community Partnership announces the renewal and extension of the school-business partnership between State Street Bank and Trust Company and North Quincy High School.

Boston Financial Data Services, Inc., a subsidiary of State Street, is joining the partnership this year and is eager to participate in this effort.

Recently, at a signing ceremony held at the school, representatives of North Quincy High School, State Street Bank and Trust, and Boston Financial Data Services agreed to "work together to enhance opportunities and enrich programs for North Quincy High School students through increased understanding of the goals, philosophy and dynamic issues of the other".

In remarks made to a breakfast gathering of 60 invited guests, State Street Executive Vice President David Spina said:

"We must affirm our values to the community and think of the longterm importance of investing in the education of students." Charles Rossi, Divisional Vice President at Boston Financial Data Services supported this view with the comment that as a businessman he was pleased and excited to be able to have a direct impact on the future of young people.

Robert Ricci, Superintendent of Schools cited the exemplary nature of this partnership which is just going into its second year. Dr. Ricci stressed that it is no longer possible for the schools to "go it alone".

"With a partnership, we can do things together we can't do alone," he said.

North Quincy High School Principal Peter Chrisom said the best part about the partnership is the spirit of energy and vitality evident in the regular group meetings between the representatives.

"It's genuinely a pleasure to attend the (partnership) meetings because of the commitment and energy demonstrated by all participants," he said.

Major initiatives in the 1990-91 school year will be:

- Continued implementation of the Conflict Mediation Program
- Support of the implementation of a new Teacher-Advisor Program
- Collaboration on the development of career education curricula
- Continued enhancement of school communications
- Formation of an active Speakers Bureau, and
- Continued support of implementation of computer technology.

All co-signers of the agreement expressed their pleasure with working together on behalf of young people at North Quincy High School.

Response To Neighbors Concerns

Eventide Home Expansion Plan To Be Modified

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The William B. Rice Eventide Home Board of Directors, which has unveiled a proposal to add a six-story tower to the facility at 215 Adams St., Quincy, will modify the proposal in response to neighborhood concerns.

At an informational meeting held last week in the City Council Chamber, Furnace Brook residents expressed their concern over the proposal which would add a 113-unit residential wing to the rear of the existing structure. Neighbors said an addition to the retirement home would increase traffic, pose flood problems and destroy the neighborhood atmosphere of single-family homes of upper and middle-income people.

Representatives of the home said the addition, which would be built on a five and a half acre parcel of land, is needed to serve the increasing population and to satisfy a series of new state regulations. Building on the parcel, owned by Eventide, would keep the apartment-like housing affordable, they said.

The proposed one and two-bedroom apartments would provide a variety of support services to help elderly residents maintain an independent life-style.

According to Eventide Board Member Joyce Haglund, the directors are committed to working with neighbors in an effort to reach a solution. She said the board, which will meet with neighbors and keep them informed of Eventide's intentions, will modify its original proposal.

"It's going to take a while for us to modify the plans but we are committed to doing that. We've been at the same site 65 years and we've always been a good neighbor.

"We've been very responsive to neighbors and we want to continue that," Haglund said. Board members informed most abutters about the proposal the weekend before the meeting, she said.

The Eventide proposal is in response to recent changes in federal and state licensing regulations, combined with the need for extensive physical upgrading to the present building.

"We're not developers. We're in the health care business," Haglund said. "We've got a mission to serve the elders of Quincy."

According to the state Department of Public Health, the elderly segment of the population is growing at an unprecedented rate. A recent department study estimates the number of people age 65 and older will increase 54 percent in the next 50 years.

The $15 to $17 million addition, which would triple the size of the facility, would need city approval for a zoning change and wetlands permit. No public hearing have been scheduled.

Eventide now has 53 beds and wants to add six more beds, 104 apartment-like units and nine assisted living units.

The facility, established in 1926 as a home for older people of the community, would offer long-term care for residents who would need more support services as they age.

Bernasconi Named Patient Business Service Director At Quincy Hospital

Charles Bernasconi has been named director of Patient Business Services at Quincy Hospital.

Bernasconi, of Brockton, will be responsible for overseeing patient and third-party billing and for ensuring adequate cash flow to operate the hospital.

Hospital Chief Financial Officer Richard Jeffcote said

Bernasconi's position "is key to the hospital's fiscal health since effective management of cash flow allows the hospital to continue providing a wide range of outstanding medical services."

Bernasconi most recently served as director of patient accounts at Cardinal Cushing General Hospital in Brockton. He has also served as patient account manager at Brockton Hospital and chief of patient accounting at the Berkshire Medical Center in Pittsfield, Mass.

He received an MBA from Western New England College and is certified by the Hospital Financial Management Association.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at its meeting Tuesday:

• Granted a request for a permit from the Montclair Deli, 218 West Squantum St., for a one-day license to open Sunday, Jan. 27 from noon to 5 p.m.

• Granted a request for a permit from the Wollaston Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, for its annual Antiques Show & Sale at Quincy Masonic Temple, 1170 Hancock St.

Feb. 16-17-18.

Recyclable Shopping Boxes

A recyclable shopping box, designed to give consumers an environmental alternative to conventional plastic and paper bags, is available at the Super Stop & Shop on Southern Artery, Quincy.

Developed by Technology Container Corporation of Marlboro, the "shopping box," called the "Earth Saver," is a pre-folded corrugated box with four reinforced hand holds and an automatic locking bottom that pops open to hold groceries and folds flat for convenient transportation and storage.

The boxes cost 50 cents each.

Produced from 100 percent recycled paper, the box is the same size as a shopping bag (12 inches by 7 inches by 17 inches), offers twice the weight capacity and can be used at least 20 to 30 times over. When its useful life is over, it can be recycled.

According to Fred Dowd, president of Technology Container Corporation, the box has an anticipated life cycle of six to 24 months. By using and reusing the boxes, consumers are able to cut down on the solid waste stream and conserve natural resources each time they go grocery shopping, he said.

Stop and Shop shopping cars can accommodate as many as eight full boxes. Each box has an interlocking handle which prevents boxes from tipping over in the trunk or backseat. It also makes carrying groceries from car to kitchen more convenient.

"To date, the shopping boxes have received a very positive response from our customers," said Stop and Shop Consumer Affairs Director Christine Filardo. "Alternatives such as this one are forward thinking, and serve to steer us into the 90s and beyond."

The boxes, part of pilot program, also also available at Stop and Shop supermarkets in Trumbull and Stratford, Conn.; and Narragansett, Rhode Island.

The machine which makes the pre-folded boxes was invented by Dowd and his father Fred Dowd in the late 1970s. Their patented process pre-folds boxes and glues the bottom of the container at the same time the rest of box is being made.

Resignation Or Sick Leave?

Frank Anselmo is generating a lot of feelings in the community now that he wants to return to the School Committee seat he recently resigned from.

There are those who say: "Look, he resigned. So somebody else should be appointed to take his place."

But others feel: "Look, the man has a right to change his mind. Let him come back to finish out his term." (The term expires this year).

Still others think: "Let the seat remain vacant until September and then have all those who are interested in it run for election. Let the people decide."

The City Council and School Committee are scheduled to meet Wednesday, Jan. 30 to pick Anselmo's successor. At least a half dozen candidates have been after the seat.

Now Anselmo makes it seven.

Apparently if it hadn't been for that damn jar, this whole situation may never have developed.

As Anselmo, who is 92, tells it, he was trying to unscrew the tight cap off a jar one day about six weeks ago.

"I was trying to open this jar," he says. "I twisted it as hard as I could but it wouldn't budge. I finally threw it away."

But, says he, he damaged a tendon in his right hand from wrestling with the jar. His hand started paining and the pain spread to his right shoulder and even to his legs. On top of that he started running a fever apparently from a virus.

Anselmo, who is believed to have been the oldest elective official in the country says: "I felt terrible. I had trouble getting out of bed. It was like being paralyzed. I really thought I was ready for a nursing home."

"Then, says Anselmo, "I began to get better. Right now I feel 80 percent better. Naturally, I've now changed my mind. I want to go back and finish my term."

Anselmo thinks the city -- instead of holding him to his resignation which he submitted while in excruciating pain -- should consider him as having

Council-School Committee Convention On Cable TV

Quincy Community Television will cover the joint convention of the Quincy City Council and the School Committee tentatively scheduled for Wednesday, Jan. 30, to select a successor to Frank An-selmo who recently resigned from the School Committee.

The meeting will be shown live on Ch. 3 and Ch. 53 and will be replayed Thursday, Jan. 21 at 9 a.m. and Friday, Feb. 1 at 1 p.m.

been on sick leave."

There has been some intense behind-the-scenes campaigning for the seat since five minutes after Anselmo's surprise resignation was announced Jan. 2.

Those interested are former School Committee member Margaret "Peggy" Negro; Daniel Raymond, former Norfolk County treasurer and school committee member; Robert Jarnis, who served as a school committee seat warmer; JoAnn Bragg and Toni Kabilian, member of the Citywide Parents Council and Judy Brams, chairman of the Quincy Citizens for Quality Education.

Negro gave up her seat in 1989 and has indicated she might be willing just to serve out Anselmo's term. But she is not legally bound to that and could run in this year's election.

Jarnis was appointed in a joint meeting of the School Committee and City Council to fill the vacancy created by the death of Christopher Kennedy in 1989. He said he would not run for the seat in the election that year and did not.

The two runners-up in the 1989 school committee election are out of contention for Anselmo's seat. First runner-up Richard Crespi has moved to Hanover and second runnerup Gary Fine has decided to pass on it.

Anselmo was first elected in 1961 at age 62 at an age when most people are thinking about retirement.

"I would like to go back and finish my 30th year," he says.

Anselmo has quit a couple of times in the past in anger over disputes only to change his mind a few days later. This, however, is the first time he put it in writing.

But he insists that it doesn't matter whether it was an oral resignation or written, he should have the right to change his mind.

He says all he wants to do now is to finish his term this December and then retire.

But he hints that if he cannot get the seat back by being allowed to withdraw his resignation or by being appointed Jan. 30 at the joint School Committee-City Council meeting, he might just run to get it back in this fall's elections.

"Ninety three isn't so old," he says. "I have an uncle in Washington who is 103."

DAILY DIET

Most Americans are diet conscious. Whether or not we eat properly, we believe we know what is good for us. Most people would agree that a balanced diet is best. Others, whether for health or moral reasons, refuse to eat meat. The so-called Lacto-Ovo-Vegetarian diet includes milk and eggs. Pure vegetarians (vegans) who eat only fruit, vegetables, and grains are depriving themselves of vitamin B12, iodine, and essential amino acids which are not found in vegetables. Vitamin B12 is essential in forming red blood cells. Lack of it causes pernicious anemia, nerve disorders, and inflammation of the tongue. B12 is found in meat, fish, eggs, and dairy products. A health meatless diet includes cheeses, eggs, and a pint or more of milk daily, along with whole grains and fresh fruits and vegetables. Consult your physician before starting any new diet.

P.S. Vegetarians should replace butter with margarine to avoid excess cholesterol.

Although it is often said that we are what we eat, that doesn't mean we always know what's best to eat. If you are experiencing food intolerances or are contemplating drastic dietary changes, it might be wise to seek medical advice. Total health care begins with a trusting relationship between physician and patient. Calla 472-2550 for more information. Our office is located at 101 Adams Street, Suite 24 in Quincy. Quincy Doctor Develops Simple Cooking Technique

Now You Can Reduce Red Meat Fat Content By 80%

A simple technique to cook red meat can reduce its saturated fat content by about 80 percent and its cholesterol content by half without drastically changing its flavor, according to the lead article in the Jan. 10 issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The article was authored by Dr. Donald Small, M.D. of Quincy, a professor of biophysics, medicine and biochemistry at BUSM and the principal investigator of the study.

The discovered cooking technique will allow people to enjoy red meat without consuming an excess amount of saturated fat and cholesterol.

Researchers at Boston University School of Medicine (BUSM), who developed the technique, say it could, if widely adopted, lower serum cholesterol and ultimately reduce the incidence of heart disease in the United States.

The typical American diet - with its heavy reliance on red meat - contains significantly more saturated fat and cholesterol than recommended to reduce the risk of heart disease.

Dr. Small's technique involved stir-frying several pounds of ground beef in two pints of vegetable oil until the water in the meat begins to boil (at 212F). After cooking the meat for five minutes at this temperature, Small pours the meat and oil mixture into a strainer, rinses it with several ounces of boiling water to wash off the oil and collects the meat. The oil and watery broth, which passed through the strainer, are separated, and the fat-free broth is added back to the meat to restore flavor.

Small decided to experiment with this technique based on his understanding of lipid chemistry and his desire to develop a method of reducing fat and cholesterol. He knew that cholesterol and saturated fats were soluble in vegetable oils and that this solubility increased as the temperature increased. He says that heating and stirring causes the vegetable oil to penetrate the meat, surround the muscle cells and absorb some of the saturated fat and cholesterol from the cell membranes. Rinsing the combination of meat and oil with boiling water prevents the oil from congealing and washes away the oil.

"As far as we know, no one has taken this information out of the laboratory and tested it in the kitchen to see if it could be used to reduce fat and cholesterol in meat while maintaining flavor," says Small.

Small compared his technique to another popular method of reducing fat and cholesterol - cooking and draining meat. He found that the treated meat contained about half the cholesterol and 70 to 87 percent less saturated fat than raw meat, while conventionally cooked and drained meat lost only 6 to 17 percent of the fat and 1.3 to 4.3 percent of the cholesterol.

Small believes this technique - if it becomes widely adopted by individuals, fast food chains and meat preparation companies - could make a significant contribution toward the prevention of heart disease. Small predicts that individuals who use this technique to cook one-third to one-half of the red meat they eat will lower their serum cholesterol levels by about 10 points (mg. / deciliter), which should lead to about a 20 percent decrease in cardiovascular events such as sudden death and heart attacks.

"This is certainly not a recommendation to eat more red meat," says Small, who personally advocates the consumption of less red meat. "However, for people who enjoy the taste of red meat and want to make it part of their diets, this is one way for them to get a healthier alternative."

Although the study describes the use of this technique to cook ground beef and pork, Small says it can also be used to maintain flavor and reduce fat and cholesterol in lamb, other red meats, ground turkey and chicken.

The National Cholesterol Education Program recommends a diet containing less than 30 percent of calories from fat, less than 10 percent in the form of saturated fat and less than 300 milligrams of cholesterol each day to reduce the risk of heart disease.

Air Warden Posts Set Up In Wards

The municipal Defense Council announced that air warder posts would be placed in operation in each of Quincy's six wards, with an extra one scheduled for the First Church in Squantum.

The other posts were set up in Central Junior High School, Ward 1; Daniel Webster School, Ward 2; Lincoln School, Ward 3; Willard School, Ward 4; Wollason School, Ward 5; Montclair School, Ward 6.

Meanwhile, Harold M. Wilson, secretary of the Quincy Homing Club, offered the services of 10 birds to the Municipal Defense Council as message carriers in time of emergency.

Wilson proposed that a message center be established in a loft in Quincy Square, from which point any place in the city could be reached by a bird in three minutes or less.

NO RAISES, SAYS MAYOR
Mayor Thomas S. Burgin told a delegation of teachers that he will not recommend a general pay increase for city employees in the 1942 budget, which was to go to the City Council in 10 days.

"Even at $100 a year that would be $150,000 a year or more than $1 added to the tax rate," said the Mayor. Teachers were seeking a 10 percent wage hike with a pay plan based on 52 weeks instead of 40.

DEMAND SIGN REMOVAL
Some city residents were demanding removal of the sign "QUINCY" that was painted on the roof of the Army at the corner of Hancock St. and Furnace Brook Parkway, visible from thousands of feet in the air.

"Why should we point out our city to enemy aviators when the rule in this war is to mislead the enemy, not inform him?" asked one woman resident.

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Mom's Golden Cake

Having the oven turned on when it's snowing or cold outside has to be the warmest feeling ever coming from the kitchen. And so it was this past Monday at our house.

I found a plain cake recipe in my mother's book of recipes that was so easy to make that I plan to bake it often. Especially at those times when you just want something not too sweet with a cup of tea. This recipe is truly "a piece of cake."

MOM'S GOLDEN CAKE RECIPE (Plain)

- 2 1/4 cups flour
- 3/4 tspns baking powder
- 1 tsp salt
- 1 1/2 cups of sugar
- 1/2 cup melted butter or margerine (1 stick)
- 1 cup milk
- 2 eggs (unbeaten)
- 1 tsp vanilla

Place the first four ingredients in a bowl. Add the melted shortening and fill the milk and beat at medium speed for 2 minutes. Add the two eggs, the vanilla and the rest of the milk. Continue mixing for more minutes.

In a well-greased floured baking pan (either a loaf pan or other), bake in a 350 degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes. Let cool for about 10 minutes and then cut a delicious piece. I don't think I waited the 10 minutes to cut the one I baked and my husband kept saying "delicious" as he devoured his helping.

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Preville's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

chamber works of the 17th and 18th centuries. Some composers included in the group's selection are Viadana, Distler, Vaughan, Williams, and Rene Clausen.

Gas Station Complaints Placed On File

The City License Board placed on file complaints against the Adams Street Citgo Gas Station, 588 Adams St., following a hearing Tuesday.

Mayor James Sheets recently received a complaint about the station in regard to site conditions and violations. A neighbor complained that the station's dumpster was unscreened, junk was being stored in the rear of the station outside, and oil and gas tanks were leaking.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey, Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue and a member of the Quincy Fire Department visited the site last week and found the station in good order.

Station owner Finis Aoued agreed to install a screening fence around the dumpster in the spring when the ground thaws.

Mulvey and Gallahue found no debris in the rear of the station, but a barrel containing anti-freeze was being stored there. Aoued said it has already been moved inside the station.

Mulvey, Gallahue and Fire Chief Thomas Gorman agreed there was no evidence that oil and gas tanks are leaking at the station.

The station owners said they frequently monitor the tanks and have found no problems.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

There are many skeptics and pessimists living in our world today. These people seem to regard it as a sign of intellectual distinction to believe almost nothing. They say, "It can't happen" ... when it will; "It's never been that way" ... and now it is.

On the other hand, the men who have thought most deeply about life and its problems are the people who believe it most. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale calls this triumph of "can do" the "Power of Positive Thinking."

Did you know that Beethoven was deaf? Did you know that Edison's grades were poor in school? Did you know that Churchill lisped during childhood? But men like these ... men who might have been counted out before they even began, somehow turned history against pessimism.

To the man who is spurred on by "it won't work," or "it's a lost cause," or "it's impossible," the future will give its own regards. For, as John Paul Jones said to the skeptics - who asked him to strike his flag, and waited for his words of defeat - "We have not yet begun to fight" ...

Quincy Takes 2 Out Of 3

The Quincy boys' basketball team, on the rebound after a dismal season last year, had a four-game win streak snapped but rebounded last week, winning two of three games to make its record 6-4 (5-4 in the Old Colony League) as it completed the first half of its schedule.

The Presidents played at Bridgewater - Raynham Tuesday night, will be at Weymouth Friday night at 7 o'clock and will be home to North Quincy next Tuesday night at 7.

Last Friday night Quincy lost for the second time to Falmouth, 77-68, with fouls playing a big part in the Presidents' defeat.

Falmouth had 37 foul shots and hit on 30 to make the difference.

E. J. Nordstrom paced Quincy with 18 points and Joey Crespi added 17, but Quincy fell behind, 40-28, at halftime and was never able to catch up.

Ralph Bevilacqua had 12 points, including two three-pointers which cut the Falmouth lead to seven with six minutes remaining.

The previous night, in a game previously snowed out, Quincy's pressure defense paid off as the Presidents defeated Silver Lake, 55-40.

Bevilacqua scored all 14 of his points in the second half as Quincy led, 22-19, at the half.

Crespi had 10 points and six assists and Nordstrom and Dave Jolley had nine points apiece and combined for 26 rebounds.

Ahead by only five points with 2:30 left, Bevilacqua hit six straight foul shots to give the Presidents some breathing room.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Barnstable, 67-61, as Jolley scored 21 points and took down 10 rebounds.

Crespi scored 14 of his 17 points in the second half as the Presidents overcame a 35-31 halftime deficit.

Quincy took the lead with an eight-point run four minutes into the second half.

Sophomore Robbie Kane and Steve Loud sparked the full court defensive pressure which helped turn the tide in Quincy's favor.

Kane has had an outstanding season and had 10 points, six assists and six steals.

The Quincy hockey team, enjoying its best season in nearly 10 years, defeated Plymouth, 4-1, last Saturday to improve to 6-4-1 (4-4-1 in the Old Colony League).

The Presidents, with the youngest (14 underclassmen and two seniors) and the smallest team physically in the league, faced Falmouth last night (Wednesday), will be at Bridgewater - Raynham tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock and will host Silver Lake next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Quincy scored three goals in the opening period against Plymouth and had a 4-0 lead before the Blue Eagles scored their lone goal in the final session.

Jamie Schatzl put Quincy on the board first with Shane Abboud and Dave Mullen assisting. Scott D. MacPherson (not the league's number four scorer) made it 2-0 with John Lewis and Abboud having assists. Jimmy Smith scored the third goal of the opening period with Schatzl and Scott MacPherson, the league's number four scorer, assisting.

MacPherson made it 4-0 in the second period with his 15th goal and Jeff Craig and Chris Lewis assisted. He also has nine assists.

"Our kids are doing a tremendous job," said Coach Bob Sylvia. "They may be out-experienced and out-sized, but they are never out-hustled. Every team we face is much bigger and more experienced but our kids just bounce back after being checked. I'm very pleased with the way they are performing. They are very dedicated and are a pleasure to coach."

Goalie Scott Mann, who has been outstanding all season, had another big game with 25 saves.

In their previous game the Presidents lost to a big Barnstable team which is unbeaten in the league and 11-1 overall, 5-1.

"They have a really big team and looked like a professional team out there," said Sylvia. "I was not displeased at the way we played because our objective was to try to show ourselves and others that we can play with such teams as Barnstable. We showed we can skate with them even if we can't beat them."

The difference was the special teams. On the power play Quincy managed only one shot in its first two power play opportunities. Barnstable scored on three of its five power-play chances.

"We tend to let up rather than get hungrier on our power plays," Sylvia said. "All we can do is keep working."

Quincy's aggressive hitting took Barnstable out of its game for most of the first period and the Presidents had an 8-4 shot advantage. The best chance came when MacPherson took the puck at the red line and broke in alone on goalie Mark Northrup, only to have the shot picked off.

Barnstable, the only team to defeat Weymouth, had a 1-0 lead after one period and penalties hurt the Presidents. The Cape team made it 3-0 with two power-play goals.

Quincy cut the lead to 3-1 when Craig beat Northrup on a power-play and the Presidents stormed the net in the waning minutes of the second period, but Northrup made four fine saves.

Mann had a good game and had 28 saves as the defense continually failed to clear rebounds and were unable to move the bigger Barnstable players from the slot.

North Snaps Slump

The North Quincy hockey team snapped out of a scoring slump last Saturday and came from behind to edge Silver Lake, 5-4, and improve its record to 6-4-2 (4-4-1 in the Old Colony League).

The Raiders used a secret weapon in the win, namely, freshman Jim Sapienza.

North played at Barnstable last night (Wednesday), will host Falmouth Saturday at 7:50 at the Quincy Youth Arena and will play Weymouth next Wednesday night at 7:40 at the Pilgrim Rink in Hingham.

The Raiders, behind, 3-1, at Silver Lake early in the third period, tied the game on young Sapienza's first two varsity goals scored in a two-minute span. Alan Murray assisted on both goals.

The Lakers regained the lead on Matt Smith's goal but Mike Christopherson tied it on an unassisted goal at the 11-minute mark.

Chris McCallum scored the clincher with two minutes left.

Mike and Steve O'Brien turned in outstanding performances for the Raiders.

"This was a big win for us," said first-year coach Tom Benson. "We've been in a slump and we are hoping to turn it around. Sapienza's two goals did the job for us tonight."

In its previous four games, North Quincy had scored only three goals, including shutouts at the hands of Weymouth and Plymouth.

Earlier in the week the Raiders turned in one of their poorer performances in losing to Plymouth, 6-0.

Craig Bernard and P.J. Schneider were the difference in the game as both scored hat tricks for all the Blue Eagle goals.

Quincy defeated Cape Cod in the second round, 1-0, in a nailbiter. Glynn scored the gamewinner with 35 seconds to play.

Goalie Brian Beaton notched his second straight shutout as Quincy white-washed the Seahawks, 4-0. Glynn scored two goals, and Fitzpatrick and Powers also scored.

Mike Ryan and Scott

Cooper also scored for Quincy.

The defense was led by Danny Stock along with Tim Wood, Brad Maccauley, Chris DiMattia, Andy Boyd and Brian Degnan.

In a previous game Quincy blanked South Boston, 5-0, in Greater Boston League play. Goalie John Mason made many outstanding saves to earn the shutout.

Cooper had two goals, Ryan, Wood and Matt Langille each had one. Chris Haidul and Ryan had assists. Bill Graney, Jim Hasson, Bill Connolly and Andre Nagy each played strong all around games.

Quincy is now 7-0 in the second half of the GBL season.

North Girls Continue Tourney, Title Quest

The North Quincy girls' basketball team continued its march toward another Eastern Mass. Tourney berth and a possible Old Colony League title when it won two games last week to improve to 9-2 (6-2 in the league).

Last Friday the North girls staged one of the year's outstanding comebacks to hand Weymouth its first loss of the season, 50-46. Weymouth is 10-1 (7-1 in the league).

The North girls need only three wins in their last nine games to qualify for the tournament for the seventh time in 11 years but have an excellent chance to finish first or second in the league to qualify regardless of their record.

North will play at Plymouth Friday at 5 o'clock and next Tuesday will host Quincy at 7 o'clock.

Against Weymouth the North girls trailed, 28-16, at halftime and still trailed, 40-29, with eight minutes left in the game.

They then exploded and scored 21 of the final 26 points of the game, led by Joanna Rugnetta's 13 second-half points, including 10 in a row. Rugnetta finished with a game-high 17 points.

A trio of three-pointers by Tara Miles, including one with less than a minute to play, also keyed the big win. Kelly LeBlanc came off the bench and hit a three-pointer and two other baskets.

"When we came out for the second half, I told the girls to box, box, box," said a happy coach Ken Panaro. "That's what they did. We were getting out-rebounded all first half because of their height advantage.

"When you play a team with three six-footers, you have to find ways to beat them. We jelled in the second half, moved the ball well and dropped it to Joanna. We really put it all together."

Earlier in the week North Quincy squeezed by Falmouth, 35-34, to halt a two-game losing streak.

Rugnetta put North ahead with 40 seconds left to play and North held on.

Rugnetta scored nine points and Cindy White added eight for the North girls.

North Girls Back On Track

The North Quincy girls' track team returned to its winning ways with a 55-31 victory over Taunton, improving its record to 3-2.

North girls faced Weymouth yesterday (Wednesday) and will wind up the dual meet season next Tuesday against Quincy in a meet at Taunton.

Rebecca Squires and Heather Rendle both cleared 4-10 in the high jump against Taunton to tie for first place and qualify for the state class meet. Freshman Zoe Bohl finished third to complete a sweep for North.

Tristen Mastrogiacom won the hurdles and shot put, Amy Wong the 50, Suzanne Lewis the mile and the sprint relay team of Wong, Katy Deady, Susanne Hamilton and Jen Nutley also won.

Second place finishers were Deady in the 50, Hana Cobban in the 600, Melanie Gaziano in the 1000, Jen Flynn in the mile and Julie Tangley in the two-mile.

Finishing third were Aimee Chin, hurdles; Rendle, 600; Nutley, 300; Crissy Herman, mile; Erin Duggan, two-mile, and Maria Gavros, shot put.

North was edged by Silver Lake, 47-44, because of a dropped baton in the relay.

North won by nearly 100 yards but was disqualified in the sprint relay when the baton was dropped.

Wong tied the school record in the 50 with a 6.5 clocking, tying the record set by Mary Kate Kennedy in 1980. Other winners were Lewis in the mile, Cobban in the 600, Flynn in the two-mile and Mastrogiacom in the shot put. Squires tied for first in the high jump.

Placing second were Mastrogiacom in the hurdles, Gaziano in the 1000, Nutley in the 300 and Duggan in the two-mile. Third places were taken by Tangley in the 1000, Rendle in the 600, Hamilton in the 300 and Soyon Park in the shot put.

Several North Quincy girls competed in the State Coaches Invitational. Several different athletes turned in seasonal bests.

Personal bests were turned in by Wong in the 60 (7.71) and Deady in the 60 (7.97).

Also, Nutley in the 300 (41.86), Hamilton in the 300 (42.77), Lewis in the two-mile (12:01), Flynn in the two-mile (12:44) and the 4x440 relay team qualified for the states.

At the New England Invitational at Harvard the 4x220 relay team of Wong, Deady, Hamilton and Nutley turned in a time of 1:55.52. Competing against area clubs and colleges, they performed well, besting their times turned in last year when Wong, Hamilton, Nutley and Cheryl Kelly qualified for the New England championships.

"We're going to try for that again, so we're using these college meets as tuneups," said coach Jeff Hennessy.

The qualifying meet for the 4x220 team in the Eastern States March 2 at Harvard.

An Up Night For Quincy Girls

The Quincy girls' basketball team, in an up and down season, had one of its up nights last Friday with a 53-39 victory over Falmouth to improve to 4-7 as it began the second half of its schedule.

Quincy played Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday, will host Weymouth Friday at 5 o'clock and will play at North Quincy next Tuesday night at 7.

Amy Baker, a standout all season, paced Quincy to its win over Falmouth with 14 points as Quincy led throughout the game and held a 23-19 halftime advantage.

Melanie Sullivan helped the Quincy girls with seven points and 12 rebounds.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Silver Lake, 51-33, despite 12 points from Julie McClosky and nine from Sullivan.

Quincy Freshmen Win 2

The Quincy boys freshman basketball team improved to 5-3 as it won two out of three games last week.

The Quincy frosh defeated Taunton, 69-61, with Jim Cipriano leading the way with 17 points, including three three-pointers in the second half. Also having good games were Joe Kelly with 13 points, Chris Anastos with 10 and Jon Gangi with nine. Five players fouled out and the bench came through with strong defense by Don Goss, Joe Manton, Walter Spadorcia and Jim Menz.

Quincy bowed to a powerful Barnstable team, 80-49, after trailing by only three points in the opening seconds of the second half. Turnovers were costly to the young Presidents.

Kelly had 15 points and Gangi and Cipriano eight each. Jay Verlicco had seven points and had a strong defensive game along with Sean Perkins, Rodello Mandawe and Menz.

Quincy topped Abp. Williams, 60-45, with Kelly scoring 17 and Gangi 15. Chris Swanton, back from an injury, played well along with Verlicco, Mark Furbish, Menz, Goss, Perkins and Mandawe. Manton played outstanding defense and forced the Bishops into many turnovers.

7 From North Shine In Coaches Meet

Several members of the North Quincy boys' track team competed in the recent State Coaches Invitational meet with seven turning in personal best performances and two qualifying for the state class meet.

Personal bests were turned in by Mike Yee (8.4) and Marc Larson (8.6) in the 60-yard hurdles, Josh O'Donnell in the 600 (1:22.6), Adam Chansky in the 1000 (2:31.9), Greg Buck in the mile (5:03.8), and Chris Ballum (10:49) and Eric Torvi (11:05) in the two-mile.

Judy Wong Receives MBTA Pride Award

Judy Wong of Quincy was one of 40 MBTA employees who recently received a "Pride in Performance" award by the state.

Each year, the program recognizes public employees throughout the state who exemplify the highest standards of public service.

A secretary in the Information Systems Services department which handles the T's computer and data needs, Wong has been with the MBTA for nine years.

In the past year, she received the T's Secretary of the Month for her outstanding contributions.

Winners range from bus drivers to carpenters to a police detective and a secretary. The awards were presented by Gov. Michael Dukakis at a recent awards dinner held at Boston's Park Plaza Hotel.

Sheets Takes Heritage Park Plan To Capital historic sites will be tied together in a formal walking tour, he explains.

In addition, sites outside of Quincy Center will be included as "satellite sites" of the park. Satellite sites would include the birthplaces of John Quincy Adams and John Adams and the site of the first granite railway.

The outline for the park will be formally presented to the area Director of the National Park Service next month, the mayor said, and National Park Service technicians will then help the city in presenting the plan to Congress.

While in Washington, he said, he will aim only to "firm up" the direction of the proposal.

Mayor Sheets is scheduled to meet with Frank Bracken, Under Secretary of Interior, Thursday morning and with Connie Harriman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for the National Park Service, Thursday afternoon.

Bracken, who was in Quincy in October as the guest speaker for the city's recognition of the 225th birthday of John Quincy Adams, has already been briefed on the park proposal, the Mayor said.

The National Park Service has begun to work on a draft plan for the park and this draft plan will hopefully be presented to U.S. Congress in the fall, Sheets said.

The plan "is pretty firm in our minds," Sheets said Tuesday.

"We've already set the direction that plan is going to go in," he said, "but I'll be talking with them and trying to firm that up while in Washington."

Sheets said he does not plan to go after any federal funds from the Department of Interior at this time, and added he has no estimate on what it will cost to construct the proposed visitors' center and link the city's historic sites into a park.

"That (cost estimate) will not come until the other end of the process," he said.

Accompanying the mayor to Washington will be Executive Secretary Thomas Koch, City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, and Planning Director Richard Meade.

City Councillor Patricia Toland will be acting mayor in his absence. City Council President Ted DeCristofaro, who would ordinarily be acting mayor, is in Florida.

Former Quincy Residents In Israel

moved back to their native homeland. Their parents, Harry and Sara Waldman, reside in Everett.

Since the war broke out, Reisberg has spoken with his cousins and their parents. He spoke with his cousins one day before Iraq attacked Israel and with their parents one day after the attack.

Reisberg said his cousins, like most Israelis, are taking every precaution to guard against a chemical attack by Iraq. Rooms have been sealed off; gas masks are always within reach.

Reisberg, who traveled to Israel in 1982, said Israeli people have come to live under the threat of war. Along the road sides are rusty tanks and trucks, permanent reminders of past conflicts.

People visibly armed with machine guns and other automatic weapons is a common sight, even at Sabbath services.

While vacationing in Israel nine years ago, Reisberg attended a Sabbath at a mosque. One on side were Arabs worshipping; on the other side, Jews. Only a wall divider separated them.

Before stepping inside, Reisberg was handed a machine gun.

"I didn't know what I would do with it but they told me to be prepared," he said.

So when the civil defense sirens screamed long into dawn last Thursday, Israelis may or may not have been surprised that Saddam Hussein had followed through with his threat to attack Israel. Nonetheless, and more importantly, they were prepared.

"I think the people there were surprised," Reisberg said. "I don't think they believed they would get hit right in their own hometown."

The attack sparked the question of whether Israel should retaliate. As of Tuesday, the country had not struck back. However, Reisberg said some Israelis undoubtedly want to retaliate because they are "proud people."

"I think some (Israelis) feel they ought to because they are very proud people. On the other hand, they are respecting the United States. They respect the friendship both countries have."

"Personally, I think they do have something up their sleeve and something will happen before too long."

Donations may be made to the Wall and Cortez Family Fund, c/o the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, 380 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

The three-alarm fire last Thursday evening claimed the lives of two-year-old Reginnann Wall, her four-year-old brother, Lawrence Wall Jr., and their aunt, Margarita Cortez, 25.

Despite several rescue attempts by fire fighters, a police officer and neighbors, Reginnann and Larry died in the blaze at their grandparents home at 85 Mears Ave.

Their aunt, who was carried from the house unconscious and admitted to Quincy Hospital because of smoke inhalation, died at 12:52 a.m. Saturday. An autopsy was to be performed to determine the precise cause of death, said Medical

The children's parents, Lawrence and Gloria Cortez Wall, were at their home in Germantown the night of the fire. The children were in the Houghs Neck house for their weekly visit with their grandparents.

According to Acting Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, the fire started in a second floor bedroom after a quartz electric space heater ignited the bedding on the sofa where Regina was sleeping.

The heater was taken to the state police lab in Boston for examination. Gorman said he did not know whether the heater had a thermostat or safety device.

Arriving home after work, Gorman said Hermino Cortez turned on the heater after noticing a chill in the bedroom where Regina was

Ladder One Back At HN Station City May Purchase 3 New Fire Apparatus

Hoping to avert another tragedy like the fatal fire in Houghs Neck last week, Mayor James Sheets has authorized Acting Fire Chief Thomas Gorman to reactivate a ladder truck and pursue the purchase of perhaps three new multi-functional equipment trucks.

The mayor's action comes in light of a tragic house fire at 85 Mears Ave. last Thursday evening which took the lives of three people, including two small children.

Killed in the three-alarm blaze were Reginnann Wall, 2, and her brother, Lawrence Wall Jr., 4. The children's aunt, Margarita Cortez, 25, died at 12:52 a.m. Saturday at Quincy Hospital. She was injured from smoke inhalation.

The children's grandfather, Hermino Cortez, was also injured. He was treated at Quincy Hospital and released Sunday.

'Local Aid Cuts Cannot Be Tolerated'

Sheets Threatens Protest 'March' On Beacon Hill

By JANE ARENA

Under the threat of a ten percent cut in local aid, which could mean up to $3.4 million for Quincy, Mayor James Sheets says he is prepared to lead a contingent of firefighters, police, teachers, parents and concerned citizens to Beacon Hill in an effort to show the William Weld Administration the cuts cannot be tolerated.

"If he wants a response, we'll give him a response," Sheets said Tuesday.

Governor Weld told members of the Massachusetts Municipal Association Saturday that local aid would not be cut in the current fiscal year, but warned substantial cuts could come in the state fiscal year beginning July 1.

Those cuts, Sheets said, would mean certain layoffs in the fire, police and school departments.

Sheets said the proposed cut could mean a reduction of between $2.6 and $3.4 million for Quincy, depending on whether the Administration plans to cut all local aid or just certain types. If the ten percent cut comes from the bottom line, he said, it could mean $3.4 million; if it's off certain categories of local aid, it will be about $2.6 to $2.8 million.

"In any case," he said, "there's no way we can absorb even a $2.8 million cut in local aid without extensive cuts in various departments, and that includes the fire department, the police department and the schools."

Mayor Sheets said it is uncertain at present whether the threat of cuts is real, or just a "trial balloon" floated by the new administration to elicit response.

"If the response is too negative, and I think it would be, he may go to some other area of cutting," Sheets suggests.

In terms of response, the mayor said, he is prepared to lead "as many who would go," including firefighters, police, and teachers, in a demonstration on Beacon Hill in a visual opposition to local aid cuts.

"I am so concerned about any further budget cuts and reductions in the fire, police and schools," he said. "I think the mayors from all the cities in the commonwealth and all the towns have to make a statement to Gov. Weld that it cannot be business as usual...you cannot continue to cut the cities and towns."

Such a demonstration, he suggested, may be supported and perhaps organized by Massachusetts mayors who meet monthly.

"If it becomes the strategy of the mayors to make a visual demonstration on Beacon Hill, as far as I'm concerned then I would lead that for Quincy."

Especially after the tragic events in the city last Thursday night, including a hit and run fatality and fire that claimed three lives, Mayor Sheets said it is more evident than ever that cuts in public safety cannot be sustained.

"The events of last Thursday have driven that point home to me in a new and real way," Sheets said. "How can you continue to reduce those capabilities? Any future cuts are going to be cuts that would affect public safety and education, and we simply have to draw the line somewhere...it's madness. There's no more to give in the budget. There's no more room in the budget."

Point Residents Oppose Parking Lot Expansion

Residents in the Edison Park and Edison St. section of Quincy Point are upset about a planned expansion of the parking lot at the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, 380 Washington St.

Richard Peterson and his wife, Karen MacDonald, of 58 Edison Park, have collected 56 signatures on a petition opposing the plan and asking that an alternative plan be drawn up.

The petition was presented to Mayor James Sheets and was also sent to the bank's Board of Directors and the local media.

Peterson says he has received "verbal acknowledgement" of the petition from the mayor.

The neighbors have two major concerns, Peterson says: First, a planned egress from the parking lot to Edison Park would dramatically increase traffic flow onto the residential street, and secondly, the parking lot would be an "eyesore" to neighbors.

Peterson explains the bank proposes to tear down a vacant two-family home which it owns and which sits on the bank's property, and replace it with additional parking spaces.

The bank currently has 16 spaces in the parking lot and plans to add another 24 spaces for a total of 40. At present the bank does not allow its employees to park in the lot, Peterson explains.

Neighbors say the lot is never full to capacity now, even at the busiest times of the day, and say that even if employees parked in the lot, the bank would need only about 20 spaces and not 40.

Although the bank does not need approval by the Zoning Board of Appeals to expand the parking lot, Peterson says neighbors should have been notified and asked for input on the plan.

"I've known about this since August," he says.

In early December a group of neighbors met with a representative from the bank to present a compromise plan wherein only 12 spaces would be added for a total of 28, and there would be no egress from the lot onto Edison Park. The lot currently has egress onto Washington St. and Edison St., he says.

At that time the representative agreed a compromise plan should be drawn up, but came back to the neighbors with a plan to install a "no right turn" sign at Edison Park. This, neighbors feel, isn't a compromise at all.

"That sign wouldn't stop anybody (from turning onto the street)," Peterson says. "It's an unenforceable sign. You can't restrict traffic to a two-way street from private property."

Peterson and area residents argue that if the parking lot has an egress onto Edison Park cars from the lot would travel about 300 yards down the street to the light onto Southern Artery.

"That would be the easiest access for them onto the Artery," he says.

Peterson says that neighbors understand the bank's needs and legal right to expand the lot, but not to expand it to 40 spaces, and not to include an egress onto a residential street.

"We don't expect them not to do something with the property," he says, "they do need more space...and it might create additional green space if they landscaped it...but we don't think the lot is the best use for the land, and the egress onto the residential street would have a negative impact."

Peterson says he is now waiting to hear from bank representatives on the petition.

"I still the plan is adjustable," he says. "But there's no legal way of stopping them from doing it."

$15-20 Million U.S. Funds Seen For 'Heritage Park'

By JANE ARENA

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he is confident the Federal Government will fund between $15 million and $20 million for the city's "Heritage Park" to promote tourism.

The total project, he estimates, would cost as much as $22 million, but he sees "a good chunk of that" coming from the private sector.

The mayor was in Washington, D.C. last week and discussed the park proposal with Congressman Brian Donnelly, Frank Bracken, Under Secretary of the Interior, and Connie Harriman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for the National Park Service.

Bracken will be in Quincy in February to address the proposal in greater detail.

Sheets said he hopes to have a "rough draft" of the plan ready to present to U.S. Congress by mid-June, and he said it will include some sort of "feature attraction" which would "be a presentation of Quincy's role in American history."

Last week the mayor said he used the term "Disney World" to describe the feature attraction, saying it may be along the lines of the Hall of Presidents where mechanical figures of presidents re-enact their moments in history.

However, the mayor said Tuesday, "Disney World is an improper characteristic for the park."

The heart of the National Heritage Park would include the city's eight major historic sites: The Dorothy Quincy House, the Woodward School, the Adams Academy, the Adams Mansion, Old City Hall, Hancock Cemetery, the Thomas Crane Public Library, and the United First Parish Church.

These sites, he said, would hopefully be managed by the National Park Service and would offer visitors formal tours.

The downtown sites would be linked by a "cross town connector" to other historic treasures, he said, including the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams and the granite railway.

The heart of the park would be something like the Freedom Trail in Boston, Sheets said.

However, he added, National Park officials and Congressman Donnelly agree that some unique feature should be included to draw tourists to the city.

That feature might be something along the lines of mechanical mannequins of John Adams and John Quincy Adams working on the Constitution, or of John Hancock signing the Declaration of Independence, Sheets said.

"A number of corporations, such as Nynex, will actually build these type of features," Sheets notes. "I think it would be great to have a feature for tourists...it would be a draw and I think one of the things we're looking for is something unique."

The mayor said he is confident the project will eventually come to fruition.

"The plan is on target," he said.

To date, Sheets noted, the city has been awarded a federal planning grant of $250,000 which will be used by the National Park Service to develop "two or three alternate" plans, one of which will be presented to Congress for possible funding.

"I think it will be funded," Sheets said. "It's a matter of how much...Usually, when they give you a planning grant, they're going to fund you."

Firefighters Union President: 'Quincy Citizens Deserve More Fire Protection'

By ROBERT PERRY

Quincy Firefighters Association President

The tragic fire that occurred Thursday night on the Great Hill in the Houghs Neck section of the city has had a sorrowful effect on the members of the fire department, as it should have for all the citizens of Quincy. We grieve the loss of the innocent victims and their families.

We also fear for our members who were hurt battling the fire both physically and mentally. Although I was not working the fire I know that the firefighters gave all of themselves in every way to try to save lives.

The winter months are always the worst for such a tragedy and increasingly so with the inflation of fuel cost etc. People try to save with portable heaters, electric blankets, wood and coal stoves, and in doing this the potential for fire increases greatly.

The Quincy Fire Department has lost in the last two years one engine company, two ladder companies and with the lay-off of 14 men and more to retirement, we are now at the lowest ebb of manpower and equipment since I came on the job 27 years ago.

Our chief, and I quote, "the ladder truck in Houghs Neck would not have made a difference because of utility wires, and no room to bring a ladder truck around to the back where the fire was worse." The chief failed to mention that the men that would have responded from the Houghs Neck station at the time of the alarm would have increased from four to seven men. And in most times since the ladder truck was taken out of service in Houghs Neck only three men man the station. This is also true in the West Quincy station.

Were our firefighters or citizens considered lucky for this particular night? That they had one more firefighter that night than most other times? I think not.

Last summer when the vacation period was at its greatest the firefighters that were laid off in September were kept working for the months of July and August even though they were not in the new fire department budget for fiscal 1991. This was done to save money to cover vacation costs. What is happening now that the budget was over spent is the threat of losing another engine company for the rest of fiscal 1991 which ends in June to cover the cost of this overspending.

We ask "WHAT ARE THE ODDS" when we are told that the fire department is going to be cut once again. You the citizens deserve the protection that the dedicated men of the Quincy Fire Department want to provide to you. We feel that any more cuts in manpower or apparatus could put Quincy in a grave situation.

When Boston, our big city neighbor to the north and our southern neighbors, Weymouth and Braintree send mutual aid into our city with more manpower on their trucks than we have, the time has come to stop and think where we are headed. We have to move forward once again to insure that the city has second to none the fire protection that they all deserve.

This country is at war with a nation that excels in terrorism, they do not put a price on innocent lives or who they hurt, maim or kill. What price do we put to the taxpayers of the City of Quincy when the fire department ranks are cut even lower than it has ever been. Our members of the fire department do not want to gamble on other tragedies happening. We know that the citizens of the City of Quincy deserve more.

QUINCY FIREFIGHTER pulls a hose line from truck in an effort to combat a three-alarm fire at 85 Mears Ave., Houghs Neck, last Thursday evening. The blaze began in a child's second floor bedroom when a quartz electric space heater ignited bedding which spread to a third-floor bedroom where another child was sleeping. The two children, two-year-old Regina Wall and her four-year-old brother, Lawrence Wall Jr., died. Their 25-year-old aunt, Margarita Cortez, was pulled unconscious from a second floor bathroom and died early Saturday. The fire caused an estimated $60,000 to the home and $40,000 to contents.

3 Want Pool Table Licenses

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The City License board is considering whether it should allow pool tables in three local establishments.

The board continued for one week the requests by Footprints, 1515 Hancock St.; Bentley's Steakhouse, 579 Southern Artery; and Delaney's Pub, 35 Franklin St.

Footprints, a non-alcoholic night club which opened in December, is seeking a license for a pinball machine and two small pool tables.

John Blythe of Footprints said he wants to offer his patrons activities other than dancing. Blythe also said the pool tables would help attract customers during week nights when business is slower.

Police Chief Francis Mullen and other members of the board agreed they would like to have a chance to visit the club before making a decision.

Blythe emphasized that the atmosphere at Footprints is significantly different than nightclubs which serve alcoholic beverages.

Bentley's is seeking to install four coin-operated pool tables. Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and building Inspector Matthias Mulvey asked Brian Leonard of Bentley's where the tables would be located. Leonard explained that the dining room would be rearranged.

The board asked Leonard to come back with floor plans of the restaurant which showed where changes would be made in seating and where the tables would be located.

A request for a pool table license for Delaney's Pub was also continued.

Maurice Foley of Delaney's said he already has a license for two pool tables and would like to install two 15-foot Snooker tables. Foley is requesting an additional license for a regulation - size table. Snooker is a variation of pool played in Ireland and England with less pool balls and a longer table.

The board requested that Foley also return with a floor plan of the pub detailing the proposed location of the tables.

'A Lighter, Brighter Quincy'

You're familiar with Jim Sheets' "Cleaner, Greener Quincy."

Coming up: "A Lighter, Brighter Quincy." The City Council Public Works Committee will receive a plan Monday, Feb. 4 to change all the street lights in Quincy from sodium to mercury.

Mass. Electric representatives and Public Works Commissioner David Colton will make a presentation to the committee at 7 p.m. before the regular City Council meeting.

They think it is a good idea. So does Kolson.

"The mercury lights are 10 percent brighter and $50,000 a year cheaper," says Kolson.

He thinks those two figures - especially in these times of rising costs - speak for themselves.

"It breaks down to between $4,500 and $5,000 a month less the city will have to pay Mass. Electric," he says. The lights have a yellowish tint to them similar to the ones that are now in the Hancock Parking area.

"These lights would be a plus for everyone," Kolson says. "The visibility will be better at a lower cost. Better for business, better for pedestrians, better for motorists."

"It would be a great benefit to the entire city not only from a financial standpoint but from a safety factor." He plans to vote for it.

The new white historical type lights in Quincy Center probably will not be affected.

LOOKS LIKE the city preliminary election will be Tuesday, Sept. 17 and the final election, Tuesday, Nov. 5.

"It will probably be those dates or close to them," says City Clerk John Gillis. "The dates are subject to City Council approval."

Gillis will bring the matter before the City Council in the next few weeks.

Once the dates have been officially set, nomination papers will be available.

"They'll be ready within 10 days after the dates are set," Gillis says.

HERB FONTAINE, former long-time news editor of station WJDA got a special honor at the installation dinner of Quincy Firefighters Local 729 Saturday night at the Weymouth Elks Home.

President Robert Perry presented Fontaine with a plaque citing his "Accuracy, Integrity, Fairness and Professionalism In Broadcast Journalism."

"I was very surprised and honored," says Fontaine.

FONTAINE

GOOD NEWS FOR all you people who have had to play daredevil trying to cross Hancock St. at Christmas Island (from The Quincy Sun on the east to Photo Quick on the west) a long-time pedestrian crosswalk.

It will resume its role as an official crosswalk in the spring, complete with white paint markings.

David Kinnecom, city traffic engineer, says there has been no thought to abandon the crosswalk.

The problem, he says, was that by the time that construction work on Christmas Island was completed late last fall, it was too late weatherwise to paint the crosswalk markings.

Now, maybe once the crosswalk is properly marked, it might eliminate cars using it as a turn-out going both north and south on Hancock St.

DON'T KNOW ABOUT you, but we like those barrels on pedestrian walks that inform motorists they must stop under state law for pedestrians crossing the street. And motorists are actually stopping.

In fact the barrels seem to be more effective stopping traffic than the red and yellow light at Hancock, Chestnut and Maple Sts.

Now, if we can get pedestrians to stop jaywalking ...

FIBROADENOMAS

Fibroadenomas are benign breast tumors which are composed of fibrous and glandular tissue. They are most common during a woman's reproductive years, and are not related to cancer. The fibroadenoma is a round, firm lump with a somewhat rubbery texture. They are freely movable, and are not attached to the skin. These lumps usually occur singly and are most often located around the nipple or on the upper side of the breast. Fibroadenomas tend to be quite small and are painless. They are generally discovered during a routine breast exam. Less common is the "juvenile" fibroadenoma, which affects teenage girls. The juvenile tumor is larger and, because it grows quickly, is sometimes mistaken for cancer. It is also a benign condition. Any breast lump should be evaluated by the physician to rule out the possibility of malignancy.

P.S. Every woman should examine her breasts for lumps on a monthly basis. Four out of five lumps are benign.

If you are a woman, breast examination should be a regular part of your preventive health care plan. For all people, of all ages, regular medical check-ups help keep you healthy by anticipating problems before they can become serious. We believe in preventive care and will help you put together a heart-smart lifestyle. For more information, please call 472-2550. My office is located at 101 Adams Street, Suite 24 in Quincy. Now Is Time For Efficient Energy Policy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
With the United States encountering recurring energy problems and the poor economic conditions across the country, now is the time for government to act on programs that will both effect energy conservation in our buildings and get our unemployed back to work.
The first thing Congress and the President must support would be laws that require retrofitting all existing habitable structures for energy conservation. Such retrofitting would include energy efficient heating/air conditioning systems, installation of insulation, installation of energy conserving doors and windows, computerized systems to regulate heating and lighting needs for larger buildings, etc. Coupled with a mandatory national energy retrofitting program would be federal grants and loans to assist residential and commercial building owners with retrofit work.
Secondly, due to the national energy crisis, Congress must pass legislation to allow any patent pending relating to energy conservation, regardless of the application, which is currently not in production be declared unused and free for use by any individual or company two years from the passage of legislation pertaining to the issue. Many patents that would save energy have been purchased by companies that would like to see us, as a nation, consume more energy for their benefit. We must use every available source to solve the energy crisis.

Thirdly, a method to significantly reduce the nation's needs on oil would be to require industrial/manufacturing plants to convert heating and processing plans to natural gas, coal or wood. Natural gas is plentiful on this continent and should be utilized more than its is. Coal and wood are plentiful. Methods exist to return coal strip mines to farm land. Methods also exist for forest planting and harvesting so that the environment is not adversely affected. Technology also exists for the burning of cal and wood so that the ozone layer is not further depleted.

Fourthly, this country has many areas of uninhabited land, mostly in the south and west where large scale solar collectors, I am talking about several hundred square miles of them, could make a serious dent in the nation's electrical needs.
The above are a few items that should be acted upon as a program. Some items not mentioned are large scale use of geothermal energy, use of substitute fuels, energy efficient light fixtures, etc. The list is endless.
The United States of America should put the energy issue on the same emergency status as AIDS, housing of the homeless and international peace. This nation must wake up and take control of its destiny or we will be relegated to Third World status in the not too distant future.
Economically, it has been proven through our previous recessions that a fully employed construction industry can affect all other aspects of the nation positively.

A mandated safe energy policy will serve the nation in many ways. One, get the country back on track, economically; two, reduce dependence on depletable resources; and third, allow the United States of America to take control, again, of its destiny. Congress needs to help us by making the decision to buck those who bring this country down the path of waste and inefficiency for their own personal greed. We must face the harsh reality of running out of energy, and in the process, destroying our environment and the quality of life as we know it. We must face the harsh reality and act before we need to react, and its too late.

Building Inspector,

Bombardment Against Rights Of Unborn

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
From his Beacon Street bunker, William Weld has fired off his first salvo (as governor) in the relentless bombardment of the rights of unborn babies. Not only has he targeted the most defenseless of all human beings, but he has promised an increased budget to underwrite the destruction.

The governor's strategy for his war on the unborn includes:
•An attempt to drive the wedge even deeper in abortion as a so-called right, and demolish an unborn baby's real right to life.

•A health insurance plan for state employees wit coverage for the unhealthy and unnatural act of abortion.
•A state constitutional amendment that would lock between parent and child by lowering, from 18 to 16, the age when parental consent for abortion is necessary.

It's a savage war - this war on the unborn - and it's a disgrace that the Weld/Cellucci administration has taken up arms on the side of the savagery.

Used Car License Granted On Trial Basis

The city License Board granted a Motor 2 (used car) license to D. W. Tarbox II & Sons, 85 Liberty St. with the stipulation of a six-month probationary period requested by neighbors.

David Tarbox, the owner, already has a license for storage of 10 junk cars. He said he would like to sell used cars also and would limit the total number of cars (junk and used combined) on the premises at any one time to 10.

Tarbox met with about 15 area residents and Ward 4 city councillor Thomas Fabrizio Monday night. Tarbox said he agreed with the neighbors' request to limit the number of junk cars to five at any one time. He also said he would store the junk autos indoors and display the cars for sale at the front of the property.

Tarbox said the junk auto business is in decline and he would like to sell used autos to help his business. Tarbox said he plans to purchase the used cars at auctions.

Board members also told Tarbox not to park his truck in residential areas which has happened occasionally in the past.

Marriage: Do the right thing

Getting what you want from marriage may be easier than you think! A sense of being important to your partner and feeling appreciated are the two best indicators of marital happiness. Author Charlie Michaels claims it's easy to ensure this.

Most of us would do anything for our mate if we were sure it were the "right thing." Unfortunately, it's easy to slip into a self-defeating cycle. You knock yourself out doing what you think will please your spouse. You're off target so you don't get the big smile and hug you expected. You try another approach and get another lukewarm reception. You get discouraged. You stop trying.

"Couples create the biggest obstacle to their happiness by expecting their spouse to intuitively know what they need, but we want different things at different times. Sometimes when I'm upset, I want to be held, occasionally I want to talk and other times I want to be left alone. How can my husband know what I need if I don't tell him?" says Michaels.

In their book, Avoiding Wedding Aftershock or I Like You Even Better Now That I Know You, Michaels and husband Mike Brown help you identify the keys to your happiness and show you how to share them with your partner. Once you know how to make each other happy, you're on your way to creating a joyful, loving marriage.

"Often it's not that people don't talk, it's that they don't communicate on a level that can be put into action. Mike and I like to be pampered when we're sick. But what's pampering? Left to Mike's interpretations, he would bring me vestiges of his childhood: tea and toast. He means this lovingly, but I don't care for tea and toast. To me, pampering is diet soda and raspberry sherbet."

Picky? Unreasonable? Michaels insists you're cheating yourself and your partner when you settle for less than what you want. "Your spouse wants to please you. Who wants to knock themselves out and then feel, 'Well, it's the thought that counts?' It's much more fun to do what's wanted! Why cook an elaborate meal if your mate's morale would get a bigger boost from a hug and a back rub?"

Avoiding Wedding Aftershock may be ordered from any bookstore or, for an autographed copy, send $14.95 plus $2 shipping to Carmichael Ventures Inc., Box 650-Dept. L, North Hollywood, CA 91603 and mention this paper by name. California residents add $1.01 tax. Visa/MasterCard orders call (800) 762-8848.

The Browns believe that if you share with your spouse the secrets to making you happy, you can practically make your marriage divorce-proof. "When you get what you want from your relationship, why would you want to be anywhere else?" BR915461

Today's weddings combine innovation and tradition

Couples of the '90s are creating unique, trend-setting weddings

If you are a bride-to-be, the way you plan your wedding may affect future traditions for centuries to come. The reason? Weddings are being reinvented and redefined now. While some engaged couples enjoy consulting books of etiquette either for fun or to follow to the letter, many insist on creating a unique wedding that expresses what's special about their union.

Vows you can live by

One of the most common innovations is altering or rewriting the wedding vows. Some modern women think the part that goes "love, honor and obey" sounds more like a doggie training school oath than a wedding ceremony. Others object to "I now pronounce you man and wife" instead of "husband and wife" or "wife and husband." In the twentieth century, a bride should no more have to choke out something objectionable than she should have to marry someone not of her choosing.

On the other hand, the old-fashioned vows do have some charming attributes. For example, nothing is more intimate than the outmoded use of the second person singular, as in "with this ring, I thee wed." These days, "thee" is strictly reserved for God and one's betrothed.

Not-so-traditional gown

Not every woman looks good in white and therefore some choose an off-white or light pink or an even less traditional color for their gowns. After all, the object is to be beautiful. One bride who had lovely legs comes to mind. She wore the traditional white veil and white satin bodice, but the "gown" stopped at her hips and flared out into a tulle tutu. She was stunning. Another reason for taking up the hem is that floor-length gowns were designed for graceful dances such as the waltz. Few people waltz nowadays and those massive skirts look awkward jiggling about to modern music.

Even the food and drink served at receptions are undergoing scrutiny. Some couples, who have observed one too many scenes made by drunken relatives at other peoples' weddings, eliminate the possibility by not serving alcohol. And, the thought of guests driving home drunk is an added worry the already nervous couple doesn't need.

And the bride cuts the cake...

Chocolatics see no reason to deprive themselves on this of all days by serving white wedding cake. Make it a la mode with double fudge ice cream and your guests may urge you to do the whole thing over again same time next year.

Since today people often meet their spouses in the workplace, they frequently share professional interests. Some choose to make their mutual vocation part of the ceremonies. Two creative personalities may design all the decorations themselves. One equestrian couple exchanged vows and "walked down the aisle" on horseback!

Setting trends

When divorced or widowed couples wed, including their children in the ceremony is often a positive start in establishing good "step" relationships. What roles the children will assume is a wide open field waiting to be sown with the seeds of tradition. Your new idea today may become the norm for second weddings in a hundred years.

However you plan your wedding, this time in history allows you to be the director with full creative freedom. And it can't get bad reviews. The only requirement is that the players enjoy themselves.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

February marks the birthday of two of the world's great figures; George Washington, who gave us our nation, and Abraham Lincoln, who preserved it for posterity.

Let us remember that they were captured the imagination of the world by their characters, their principles, their philosophies and profound achievements. Their names are forever linked with man's eternal struggle for freedom.

As we pay homage to these great Americans - Washington and Lincoln - let us remember that they more than any others embodied and exhibited our distinctive civilization. We honor them for the virtues that made them great. We honor them for their unswerving loyalty and patriotism. Both represented the cause of freedom. It is with deep respect and admiration for their leadership that we pay tribute to them in this month that marks their birthdays.

One does not recall that any nation in history produced two men 87 years apart, who indubitably determined the nation's destiny. America was indeed very lucky to have produced two such towering men in the compass of a century ...

2 Big Wins For Presidents

By TOM SULLIVAN
Bob Sylvia, in his 27th year as Quincy's hockey coach, brought many of his teams into the state tournament several years ago.

However, things have been very lean for the Presidents during the past 10 years, with the program hitting a new low the past two seasons with 1-18 and 1-15-3 records.

The previous three seasons the Presidents were 6-14, 7-11 and 7-12. It has been more than 10 years since Quincy has qualified for the tournament.

This year things have really turned around for the Presidents who, with the youngest team in the Old Colony League, have been having an outstanding year with an 8-4-1 record following two big victories last week.

Last Thursday Scott MacPherson's unassisted goal with just nine seconds left gave Quincy a 4-3 victory over Bridgewater-Raynham.

The previous night Quincy defeated Falmouth, 3-1.

The Presidents had lost to both these teams in the second and third games of the season.

Quincy hosted Silver Lake last night, will play Weymouth at Hingham's Pilgrim Arena Saturday night at 7:40 and will meet North Quincy next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

"Things had been going pretty bad for us the past few seasons and interest was at a new low," said Sylvia. "Two years ago we barely had enough players to put on the ice and we were seriously thinking of dropping the sport."

"Last year, despite our record, we were more competitive and had a very young team with seven sophomores and five freshmen playing regularly. We still didn't have many players and were forced to drop our freshman program and on one or two occasions we almost had to forfeit games because of a lack of players."

"Things are vastly different this year and we still have the youngest team in the league (14 underclassmen and two seniors) and are much smaller than most of the other teams. But these kids are just great and are very dedicated. They are fine skaters and when they are checked by much bigger players, they just bounce right back. They are making coaching fun again and things should continue to improve over the next few years."

With six games remaining the Presidents have an outside chance of once again making the state tournament.

MacPherson is one of the top scorers in the league with 30 points (18 goals, 12 assists) and Sean McArdle, Jimmy Smith and Jeff Craig also are scoring well. The defense, led by Capt. Shane Abboud and Chris Lewis, has been strong and goalie Scott Mann has been outstanding and is one of the best in the league.

In last week's win over Bridgewater-Raynham McArdle scored the first goal in the second period with the other Scott MacPherson, not the high scorer, having an assist. MacPherson scored the first of his two goals with Smith and Mark Gilmore assisting.

In the third period Smith scored with Craig and MacPherson having assists and, with nine seconds left, MacPherson scored the winning goal unassisted. Quincy scored all three of its goals in the second period in the win over Falmouth.

McArdle scored the first with 'the other' MacPherson and Abboud assisting, Smith made it 2-0 with MacPherson assisting and MacPherson scored the final goal with Smith having the assist.

In both games Mann had outstanding games, having 25 saves against Falmouth and 27 against B-R.

Mann and Chris Lewis are the only seniors playing regularly and Mann is making an impression on college coaches.

"He is a fine student in addition to being a tremendous player and I think he can play college hockey," said Sylvia.

The snowed-out game with Weymouth will be played Monday, Feb. 11, at 3 o'clock at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Quincy's Rick Radzik Rubs Elbows With 3 Hall Of Famers

By STEVE KAVANAGH

If greatness rubs off, Quincy's Rick Radzik has a bright future.

In the past two years he has worked closely with three hall-of-famers as a producer at radio station WEEI.

Radzik has been at WEEI for three years. He started out working in tape operations and last year sports director Glen Ordway asked Radzik to be associate producer of Boston Celtics games where he got to work with legendary announcer Johnny Most.

WEEI landed the Boston Bruins this year and Ordway tabbed Radzik to be producer for the Bruins broadcasts. Radzik now works with B's play-by-play announcer Bob Wilson and color commentator Johnny Bucyk.

Most was recently inducted into the broadcaster's wing of the National Basketball Association Hall of Fame. Wilson is in the broadcaster's wing of the National Hockey League Hall of Fame. Bucyk, of course, is in the NHL Hall of Fame. The former Bruin captain is one of hockey's greatest players ever.

"I'm lucky to work in a great sports town and to have the chance to work with hall of famers," Radzik said. "It's something I never dreamed I'd be doing."

Radzik said it has been a thrill for him to work with Most, Wilson and Bucyk - legends in Boston sports.

"One experience I'll never forget was with Johnny Most. Shortly after his triple bypass operation last year he came back to work in January to do color commentary and some features for our pre-game show," Radzik recalled.

"I remember it vividly. I was alone in the studio early on a Saturday morning when Johnny came in. After taping his feature we sat and talked for about three hours. He told me about his experiences with the Celtics and stories about the players."

Something I learned that day was that Most is also very knowledgeable of other sports," Radzik said.

Most, who has been with the Celtics for every one of their 16 championships, retired earlier this year. Health problems related to his operation were a major factor in Most's decision to give up the job he loved.

The Celtics held a night in Most's honor earlier this season.

"I was glad to see him have his night. He definitely deserved it," Radzik said. "He has thrilled just about everyone in this area."

"I think at one time or another, just about everyone has turned down the sound on the TV and put on the radio to listen to Johnny."

Radzik has developed a strong relationship with the Bruins announcers as well.

"Johnny Bucyk is really a great guy. It's funny, I was very nervous when I started with the Bruins this year because I had a lot more responsibility in my job. But Bucyk has been fantastic. All I have to do is ask him (for help) and he's there," Radzik said. "He's become more of a co-worker, he's a friend."

Radzik said he is impressed with Wilson, who is now in his 25th year of broadcasting the Bruins.

"He is the best hockey announcer I've ever heard," Radzik said. "Being able to watch him work is something else. Once a game starts he is incredibly focused. I'm glad the Bruins are on WEEI with our strong signal now so he can be heard by everyone."

In addition to WEEI the Bruins are carried by stations throughout New England and as far away as Virginia and Florida. Besides producing the

Basketball

Quincy Shooting, Defense Too Much For Weymouth

The Quincy boys' basketball team combined fine shooting with a tremendous man-to-man defense to outclass Weymouth, 72-38, last Friday, improving its record to 7-5. The Presidents hosted North Quincy Tuesday, will play at Plymouth Friday at 7 o'clock and will be home to Stoughton in a non-league game next Tuesday night at 7.

In the romp over Weymouth Quincy had only a 33-26 halftime lead but held the Wildcats to 12 points in the second half with sophomore Robbie Kane, a defensive standout all year, leading the defense.

Dave Jolley and Joe

Crespi scored 18 points apiece to spark the attack and E. J. Nordstrom contributed 15 points.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Bridgewater-Raynham, 81-63.

Crespi had 16 points, Nordstrom 12 and Kane had six steals and Steve Loud had five.

A fine second half comeback by the North Quincy boys' basketball team went for naught last Friday as the Raiders lost to Plymouth, 82-75, dropping its record to 4-7.

North played at Quincy Tuesday night, will host Taunton Friday night at 7 and will play at Silver Lake next Tuesday night at 7.

Plymouth combined 60 percent shooting, well-executed passing and deadly outside shooting to defeat North Quincy.

Capt. Brian Curran was again outstanding for North in defeat, scoring 30 points, his second highest total of the year, and grabbing 15 rebounds.

Sophomore Sean Donovan, who has had an excellent season, chipped in with 17 points and Matt Flynn had eight as the Raiders pulled to within three points, 78-75, with a minute to play.

North led until four minutes remained in the first half when Chris Vincent came off the bench to score 11 straight points and the Blue Eagles took a 41-36 lead into the second half.

Vincent scored a career-high 19 points and Mike Farrell and Shawn Raeke had 19 each.

Curran enabled North to rally as he scored 16 of his points in the second half.

"Plymouth has two of the better players in the league in Raeke and Farrell," said North coach Ted Stevenson. "We just tried to set our defense to match them. Our kids worked really hard and they never quit, cutting a 10-point deficit to three."

Good Effort But Quincy Girls Drop 2

Despite two of its better efforts of the season, the Quincy girls' basketball team lost two games last week, dropping its record to 4-8.

Quincy played at North Quincy Tuesday night, will host Plymouth Friday at 5 o'clock and will play at Taunton next Wednesday at 5.

Last Friday the Quincy girls turned in their finest performance of the season as they dropped a tough 45-41 decision to Weymouth, which improved to 12-1 and qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

Weymouth had a 22-15 lead at halftime and held on despite a fine second half by Quincy.

Amy Baker led the Quincy girls with 18 and Melanie Sullivan added eight.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Bridgewater-Raynham, 48-38, staying with the Trojans until they hit 11 of 12 free throws down the stretch.

Chris Barrett had an excellent game for Quincy.

North Girls Close In On Tourney Berth

The North Quincy girls' basketball team moved to within two wins of qualifying again for the Eastern Mass. Tournament when it defeated Plymouth, 42-23, last Friday, improving to 10-2 (7-2 in the Old Colony League).

North is in second place in the league and if it finishes first or second it would qualify for the tournament even without winning two more games. It could be one of the earliest qualifiers.

North played Quincy Tuesday night, will play at Taunton Friday at 5 o'clock and will be home to Silver Lake next Tuesday at 7 o'clock.

In the win over Plymouth Joanne Rugnetta led the offense with 10 points and Cindy White and Tricia Hughes combined for 17 points.

Plymouth's Erin Kelley had a game-high 15 points, but was held to four free throws in the second half thanks to the outstanding defense of North's Kara Sullivan.

Quincy Freshmen Drop 2 Tough Decisions

The Quincy freshman boys' basketball team lost two tough decisions last week despite Joe Kelly scoring 60 points in the two games.

Kelly had 29 points in a 73-68 loss to Bridgewater-Raynham and 31 in a 74-67 loss to Weymouth.

"We played two strong games against two of the strongest teams in the league," said coach Mike Dracchio.

Jim Cipriano had 18 points and four three-pointers in the two games, Tom Malvesti had 20 points in the Weymouth game and Joe Manton and Sean Perkins had strong defensive games.

"Jon Gangi has moved up to the junior varsity and I wish him well," said Dracchio. "He should help the jayvees considerably."

Bantam B's Win Coca-Cola Tourney

The Quincy Bantam B's dominated the competition on the way to winning the Coca-Cola Bantam B Invitational Tournament in Bourne.

Quincy blasted Burrillville, R.I., 7-1, in the championship game. The Bantam B's reached the finals by walloping the West Bay Islanders (R.I.), 12-0, and crushing Canton Open, 9-0.

Billy Coughlin scored four goals and had an assist in the title game. Justin Silverio scored two goals and Eric Kreuz had one. Andrew Vermette had three assists, Brian Connolly had two assists and Kevin Flaherty, Jamie Schatzel and Scott McPherson had one assist each.

In the opening game against West Bay, Quincy was paced by Flaherty and Kevin Barrett who scored two goals each. Also scoring were McPherson, David Pacino, Dennis Pateras, Eric Zimmerman, Kreuz, Coughlin, Schatzel and Vermette.

Connolly had three assists, McPherson, Barrett, Kreuz, and Silverio had two assists each and Kevin Boylen, Pateras, Zimmerman and Schatzel had one each.

In the semifinal game against Canton, Schatzel had three goals and two assists and Connolly had two goals and an assist. Pateras, Zimmerman, Pacino and McPherson also scored. Flaherty, Pacino and Kreuz had two assists each and Zimmerman and Vermette also had assists.

Quincy got great efforts from goalies Mike Mangano and Tim Wassiege. The team, sponsored by the Rotary Club, is coached by Ernie Zimmerman and Dennis Furtado.

Squirt B's Win Bourne Tourney

The Quincy Squirt B team defeated Burrillville, R.I., 4-1, to capture the championship of the Coca-Cola Tournament in Bourne.

Quincy has now reached the finals of three tournaments this season and has won twice.

Goaltender Brian Beaton paced Quincy in the championship game with an exceptional performance.

Mark Glynn and Billy Norris each had a goal and an assist, Bobby Harvey and Bobby Hall also scored and Jonathan Haddad and Pat McGann had assists.

Pat Coughlin, Matt Allen, Mike Powers, Mark Foster, Mark Hawes, Shawn Manning, Danny Murphy, Betsy Stone, Glen Chase, Dennis Allen and Mike Fitzpatrick each played outstanding games.

Quincy also resumed play in the Greater Boston League and drubbed Pembroke, 8-0.

Glynn scored three goals, Norris netted two, and Hall, Haddad and Manning also had goals. Powers chalked up five assists and Manning, Harvey, Norris and Glynn each had one assist. Beaton posted his 18th shutout of the season.

Hockey

North Tied By Falmouth

After turning in a fine effort against unbeaten Old Colony League leader Barnstable (12-1 overall and a state tournament qualifier), the North Quincy hockey team played what coach Tom Benson called "a very disappointing game" last Saturday and had to settle for a 2-2 tie with Falmouth, the Raiders' second tie with the Cape team.

North (6-5-3 overall and 4-5-2 in the league) played at second place Weymouth last night (Wednesday), will host Bridgewater-Raynham Saturday night at 7:50 at the Quincy Youth Arena and will face Quincy next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

The Raiders got off to a 2-0 lead in the opening period against Falmouth, but the Cape team came back with single goals in the second and third periods to tie it.

Bill Lydon, the Raiders' top scorer, opened the scoring with sophomore Mike DesRoche and Mike Christopherson having assists.

Duane Keegan, an outstanding senior defenseman, scored his first career goal with Alan Murray assisting.

Goalie Pat O'Donoghue had a big game with 36 saves.

"This is a game we definitely should have won," said first-year coach Benson. "We completely out-played them in the first period but then let down drastically the rest of the way."

"If we played half as well against Falmouth as we did earlier in the week against Barnstable, we would have won. I was very disappointed in our performance."

"All in all, I have been pleased with the way we have played except for a few games, and our goal still is to make the tournament. It will be an uphill battle, but with six games left, we have a chance." Although defeated by Barnstable, 4-1, Benson was pleased with the Raider effort against a team which rolled over them, 12-1, earlier.

DesRoche scored the only North goal and freshman Jim Sapienza, who had scored his first two varsity goals in the previous game to help beat Silver Lake, had an assist.

Junior goalie Dennis Ruggere had a fine game with 22 saves.

"Barnstable is a very big and fast team and it is no disgrace to lose to them," said Benson. "This was a big improvement over our earlier game with them"

Lydon has scored 18 points (nine goals, nine assists) for North.

Rich Brooks has been the Raiders' leading defenseman and both goalies, Ruggere and O'Donoghue, have played well.

Radzik Rubs Elbows With 3 Hall Of Famers

broadcasts Radzik works with the affiliate stations.

During home games Radzik works from Boston Garden and when the B's are on the road he produces the games from the WEEI studio.

Although working with professional athletes is exciting, Radzik's job is not all fun and games. The day of a game he usually puts in 12 to 13 hours. Some of his responsibilities include gathering sound bites for features for the pre- and post-game shows, editing, writing and planning with Wilson, Bucyk and studio host Craig Mustard.

When the Bruins have an off day Radzik is busy planning ahead and gathering material for upcoming road trips. Because of the many night and weekend games Radzik has an erratic work schedule.

Radzik said his transition from basketball to hockey this year has been smooth thanks to the Bruins organization. From top to bottom everyone, including the players, coaches and Bruins president Harry Sinden, have always been accessible, Radzik said.

"They make my job easy," Radzik said. "They are always willing to do interviews."

Radzik said he has not encountered any problems of players with out of control egos on the Bruins.

"The players are a bunch of regular guys. WEEI has a charity called the 590 Fund which sponsored a Bruins auction and nearly every player showed up and volunteered. If you need something you just have to ask these guys once," he said.

Despite his busy schedule, Radzik finds time to work part time with the Quincy Recreation Department which he has been involved with for nine years working with youngsters. Radzik offered advice for young people interested in the communications field. "It's a lot of fun, especially the people that you get to meet. But you have to be willing to put in long hours and be a hard worker."

A 1987 graduate of Emerson College, Radzik got his foot in the door with the help of WEEI 590 Fund Manager and Quincy resident Jim Pansullo. While attending Emerson, Radzik did an internship at WEEI.

Radzik said Ordway, now the Executive Sports Director at WEEI, helped him with advice and pointed him in the right direction.

"He helped me learn a lot of the ins and outs of the business," he said.

Radzik lives on Estabrook Rd. in Wollaston. He is the son of Stanley and Barbara Radzik and the brother of Nancy Buckley, Brian, and Paul.

Fund Created For Fire Victims' Families

sleeping. A short time later, he heard some commotion and went back upstairs and discovered a "heavy fire" in the room.

Larry was asleep in a bed in the attic, Gorman said.

Cortez then ran to the home of a neighbor, James Baldwin, who called the fire department. Quincy Police Officer Larry Kelly arrived and he and Baldwin tried to rescue the children upstairs but were turned back by heavy smoke and intense heat.

Kelly then threw a blanket over him and tried again but the smoke and heat drove him out.

James Silcox, a former Quincy fireman and now a patrol officer in the city, put on a fire mask and tried to gain entry but could not.

"Everyone really gave it a concerted effort," Gorman said responding to the numerous rescue attempts.

The first alarm was struck at 10:24 p.m. and a few minutes later, Engine 6 from the Houghs Neck station with one officer and three firefighters arrived. Four minutes later, a second alarm was sounded. Within a matter of minutes, Engine 8 and Ladder 1 from headquarters arrived and attack lines set up.

At least 25 Quincy firefighters were at the scene, Gorman said.

A third alarm was rung 15 minutes later for additional manpower. An engine company from Boston arrived to give Quincy firefighters a break, Gorman explained.

Since the tragic fire, the question of whether a ladder truck at the Houghs Neck station would have saved the lost lives has surfaced. Last year, then Fire Chief Paul O'Connell deactivated one ladder truck in Houghs Neck and another in West Quincy.

Faced with a budget shortfall and a reduction of manpower, O'Connell opted to sideline the two ladders while maintaining the level of one officer and three firefighters per apparatus.

O'Connell stepped down last fall to return to his deputy chief's post. At the time, O'Connell said he would rather fight fires than perform administrative duties behind a desk.

As for the ladder truck question, Gorman said the apparatus probably would not have made a difference.

He noted the fire spread quickly in the two-story wooded home. Telephone lines close to the structure would have made a rescue attempt from a ladder truck difficult at best. Gorman also pointed out the house is situated on hilly terrain.

"The hilly terrain made it tough to set up ladders. It was a tough fire that chewed up you manpower very quickly. The house had a narrow stairwell and there was a lot of smoke."

Gorman said six Quincy firefighters received minor injuries. Joseph Goodwin was admitted at Quincy Hospital and released Sunday.

City May Purchase 3 New Fire Apparatus

in a second floor bedroom where Regina was sleeping. Regina and Lawrence, who was asleep in a bed in the attic, died at the scene.

With the fire department's manning levels at one of its lowest points in years, the tragic fire has forced city officials to focus on the needs of that department.

Last year, a ladder truck or Tower 1 in Houghs Neck and Ladder 3 in West Quincy were deactivated because of a shrinking fire budget. Twelve firefighters were laid off and as a result, then Chief Paul O'Connell was left to decide whether he wanted to decrease the manning levels or the number of equipment.

He chose to mothball the two ladders and keep one officer and three firefighters assigned to the remaining equipment. At the time, he said at least three firefighters are needed to operate a piece of apparatus properly.

"It's (O'Connell's) area of expertise. He felt that he would prefer to see the companies fully manned," Sheets said.

Although officials agree a ladder truck at the Houghs Neck station would probably not have saved any of the three lives lost in the tragic fire, they believe reactivating the Houghs Neck ladder truck could prevent a similar tragedy in the future.

As a result, Sheets gave Gorman the authority to reactivate the ladder this week. Because the fire budget is $80,000 in the red, it is highly unlikely any new fire fighters will be hired to man it.

Instead, firefighters in the Houghs Neck station will have the choice of using Tower 1 or an engine. Gorman said the ladder will be used when an alarm is struck from inside a building such as a home.

Sheets said Houghs Neck needs a ladder because it is a peninsula community and its history of tragic fires. Gorman said Tower 1 will give firefighters more flexibility in fighting fires. He noted the ladder has a bucket and a full complement of ladders and hoses.

It would cost the city approximately $500,000 a year to man both the engine and Tower 1 simultaneously, Gorman said. At least eight and more likely 12 firefighters would have to be hired to man it. With 12 men, there would be three men on four different shifts.

"Even though the ladder truck would not have made a difference (in last week's fatal fire), it could in the future," Sheets said.

Besides the reactivation of Tower 1, the mayor instructed Gorman to write up a recommendation for the purchase of two or three multi-functional fire equipment trucks. Called "quints," the trucks are a cross between an engine and a ladder.

Quints, used extensively in St. Louis, come fully equipped with everything from hoses to pike poles, axes to self-contained breathing apparatus. They also have state-of-the-art emergency lights and sirens, as well as safety bars and seatbelts on jumpseats.

Gorman said he would likely recommend the city acquire three quint trucks with 75-foot aerial ladders priced at $380,000 each. One quint, each with a 400-gallon booster tank, 150 feet of ground ladders and a 6,000-watt diesel generator, would probably be placed in Squantum, Houghs Neck and West Quincy, Gorman said.

Sheets said the city could fund the new trucks as early as May through a bond issue or lease purchase agreement. If there is a bond, the mayor said the city would pay only interest, not principal, up until 1994.

"It's a very real option that will help us with declining revenues and declining numbers to maintain a higher level of efficiency," Sheets said.

"These are tough, tough financial times but if we can bond some new equipment and increase our ability to fight fires and provide protection in the face of declining numbers of revenue, then we have to do that," he added.

The mayor, who told Gorman to "fast-track" his recommendations, said the chief's proposal could be on his desk by the end of the week. Gorman will discuss the proposal with Auditor Robert Foy.

It is not known whether the quints would supplement the city's fire apparatus or replace some of its pieces.

Ward 1 Councilor Peter Kolson, who was at the scene of last week's fatal fire, said the quint would help the city meet its firefighting needs.

Kolson, who met with Sheets and Gorman regarding fire safety in the city Monday, said the quint is becoming more and more in demand throughout communities from Boston to St. Louis as well as other areas of the country where cutbacks in personnel have made it necessary to seek types of equipment that have combined the functions of two separate apparatus into one.

With Tower 1 reactivated, the city now has 13 pieces of active fire fighting equipment. Central headquarters has the most with three: an engine, ladder and rescue truck. Wollaston, North Quincy and now Houghs Neck each have one engine and one ladder.

Stations in Quincy Point, West Quincy, Squantum and Germantown have one engine each.

Donations Still Being Collected Over $2,700 Raised For Wall, Cortez Families

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

An assistance fund established by Quincy firefighters for the families of the victims of last month's fatal house fire in Houghs Neck has raised more than $2,700.

As of Monday, the fund, set up to aid the Wall and Cortez families, had $2,743, said Quincy Firefighters Association President Robert Perry.

Perry said he is pleased with the support demonstrated by area residents and hopes more people will donate what they can to the fund.

"I'm pleased. I'd like to see these people get as much as they can. I know times are tough with the economy. I hope more people can give whatever they can to these two families.

"I know there are a lot of people who want to help," Perry added.

Donations can be made to the Wall and Cortez Family Fund, c/o the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, 380 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

A three-alarm fire Jan. 24 at 85 Mears Ave. killed two children, Reginann Wall, age 2, her four-year-old brother, Lawrence Wall Jr., and their aunt, Margarita Cortez, 25.

The children's grand father, Hermino Cortez, was injured while trying to rescue his grandchildren. He was treated at Quincy Hospital and later released.

The children's parents, Lawrence and Gloria Cortez Wall, were at their home in Germantown the night of the fire. The children were in the Houghs Neck house for their weekly visit with their grandparents.

According to Acting Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, the fire started in a second floor bedroom after a quartz electric space heater ignited the bedding on the sofa where Reginann was sleeping.

The fire quickly spread to a third-floor bedroom where Lawrence was sleeping.

Margarita Cortez was found unconscious in a second-floor bathroom. She died two days later at Quincy Hospital.

A funeral Mass for the three fire victims was celebrated Jan. 29 at St. Boniface Church. Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

A separate collection fund has been established by employees at Shaw's Supermarket, 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy. Hermino Cortez is employed at the supermarket.

Cheney Proposal

City Lottery Backed By Council

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The City of Quincy is looking at taking a chance on the lottery to raise revenue to help fund city services.

No, Mayor James Sheets is not buying Megabucks tickets with taxpayers money, but City Councillor Michael Cheney is studying the feasibility of establishing a City Lottery.

The idea would need approval from the state legislature before it could become a reality.

Cheney asked the council to give its official support to the idea so he could show state officials and officials in other cities and towns that Quincy may be interested in a local lottery.

The council voted 7-2 to support Cheney's proposal.

Sheets said he might support a local lottery but was skeptical of state approval.

"We have to look at every potential source of revenue," Sheets said. "Whether the state would be willing to do it is another matter."

Cheney told the council that money raised from a local lottery could be earmarked for specific areas such as education, police or fire, or could be added to the general fund.

Cheney also said the state would be more likely to listen if many communities asked for local lotteries.

City Council President Ted DeCristofaro said he would not support a local lottery unless residents made it clear it was something they wanted.

"A lot of people don't like the idea of gambling," DeCristofaro said.

Councillor Tim Cahill was the only other council member to vote against Cheney's order.

"I don't agree that a lottery is a function of government," Cahill said.

Cahill said lotteries are essentially another form, more regressive, of taxation.

New Street Lights Will Be Brighter, Cheaper

A smaller electric bill and better public safety will be the major benefits when the city converts from mercury streetlights to sodium vapor lights.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton estimated the city could save about $50,000 this year if the city's more than 4,000 street lights were sodium vapor.

The new lights give off a yellow tint compared to the white mercury lights.

The rate for the sodium vapor lights is actually higher but the sodium lights use significantly less electricity.

Harry Jones of the Massachusetts Electric Company said the utility will pay for the conversion which will take between three and five years.

Jones explained that the changeover will benefit Mass Electric Co. by reducing demand for electricity.

Jones also told the City Council that sodium vapor lights are safer. "Mercury lights eventually lose their capability over time. So, even if a light is on, its beam may not be reaching the ground," Jones said.

Sodium vapor lights immediately shut off which helps the electric company identify and repair them, he said.

Colton said the savings from the new lights will help the city keep pace with future rate increases.

"It's a better idea than what some other towns are doing, which is taking down streetlights to save money," Colton said.

Megabucks Winnings To Send 5 To College

By JANE ARENA

What would you do if you won a million dollars in Megabucks?

If you're Maureen McNamara of Quincy (whose husband Thomas won), you'd go back to work as a clerk in the Purchasing Office in City Hall and probably smile a lot more during the day.

Yes, she says, she plans to keep working at the job she's held for just over one year.

"I love my job and I'm working hard at it," she says.

She and her husband also plan to put their five children (ranging in age from 10 to 19), through college.

Thomas McNamara has played the same number (6-16-26-27-35-36), every week for two and a half years. Saturday night his perseverance paid off, to the tune of $942,210.

After taxes, that's $35,332.88 every year for 20 years, according to the Mass Lottery.

The McNamara's picked up their first check Monday.

Quincy First In MWRA's 'Water Sense' Conservation Program

By STEVE KAVANAGH Quincy will be the first community to participate in the MWRA's "Operation Water Sense" water conservation program.

From May through July representatives from the MWRA will be going door-to-door to distribute low flow shower heads and spray taps, toilet dams and brochures with water conservation tips.

The state authority recently announced water rate hikes and projects significant rate hikes in the future.

Edward Kittredge, Conservation Coordinator at the MWRA, told the City Council Monday that "Operation Water Sense" is a good way for MWRA customers to control their costs by cutting unnecessary consumption.

The program's brochure shows how residents can cut water use in toilets, showers, sinks, washing machines, dishwashers and outdoors as well. It also explains how residents can save on energy costs by saving hot water.

Mayor James Sheets backs the program and the City Council voiced its support as well Monday night.

"We have been working with the MWRA on this," Sheets said. "They will be working first with multi-family dwellings and then single family homes," Sheets said.

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien said residents should put any hostilities towards the MWRA aside in regards to this program because it helps the city, it helps the homeowners and it helps the MWRA.

The MWRA canvassers will install the water saving fixtures and will perform a leak detection survey at the resident's request.

Marty Finnegan, athletic director for the Quincy Public Schools, said that residents should be aware that solicitors identifying themselves as representatives of the "Baseball Association" are not fundraising on behalf of the Quincy and North Quincy High School baseball programs.

Finnegan said he has received reports that the solicitors are asking for contributions and inferring that the proceeds will go to the local high school teams.

VA Sponsoring Desert Storm Support Group

A support group for families and friends of military personnel stationed in the Persian Gulf will be held at the Boston Veterans Administration Medical Center, 150 South Huntington Ave., Jamaica Plain.

They will meet Wednesday evenings from 5 to 6 p.m. in the first floor research center, Room 120.

Purpose of the group is to share feelings and receive support from others who are also going through the distress of separation from a loved one who is serving in the Gulf region. The group will be led by a VA social worker, Shirley Jackson, LICSW. Call her at 232-9500, ext. 3246, for more information on the group or directions.

Toland Would Have School Committee Fill Future Vacancies

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Reacting to the political maneuvering and behind-the-scenes dealing regarding the appointment to Frank Anselmo's School Committee seat, City Councillor Patricia Toland has introduced a resolve which would allow the School Committee to fill its own vacancies.

Toland's resolve, which Mayor James Sheets supports, calls for City Solicitor Steve McGrath to review the City Charter for the purpose of recommending alternatives to the present system of filling vacancies on the School Committee.

Under the present system, a joint convention of the School Committee and City Council is called to fill a School Committee vacancy.

"I think it is becoming more and more politicized," Toland said.

"It is their (school committee's) business, nor ours (council's)" she said.

Toland, a former School Committee member, said that City Council input has politicized the issue.

"The School Committee works with the people who are interested in educational issues and they are the board which should make the decision (to fill a vacancy)," she said.

Anselmo resigned Jan. 2 but recently indicated he would like to finish his term which expires in December.

Anselmo's seat was filled last week when the joint convention elected Margaret "Peggy" Nigro, a former School Committee member.

The last time a vacancy was filled on the School Committee was in 1989 when Robert Jarnis was selected to replace the late Christopher Kennedy.

MARGARET NIGRO is sworn in as an interim member of the Quincy School Committee by City Clerk John Gillis while Mayor James Sheets and Nigro's husband, Jack, look on. Nigro was elected by a joint convention of the City Council and School Committee last week to fill the unexpired term of long-time member Frank Anselmo who resigned early in January because of a physical disability. Nigro will serve on the committee until a new member is elected next fall and sworn in January, 1992.

DPW Third Shift Sets Off Council Debate

In the wake of several major water main breaks in Quincy recently, the City Council Public Works Committee engaged in a spirited debate whether or not to reinstate an overnight shift at the Public Works Department.

City Councillor Michael Cheney said he believes response time to water main breaks would be improved if the third shift (11 p.m. to 7 a.m.) were staffed seven days a week from November to March.

Public Works Commr. David Colton said the present system works well and response time is the same.

Under the current system, instituted in September with the backing of Mayor James Sheets, a foreman with a beeper is alerted to any reports of a break. He then calls his crew to respond to the emergency.

The foreman receives four hours of overtime pay for being on call each week. Under the old system, up to three third shift workers were paid a shift differential and often overtime, for covering the third shift.

"The level of service is the same," Colton said.

Colton said that returning a man to the overnight shift would take away from the department's productivity in the daytime.

"Having to trim the budget, we must come up with new policies and procedures," said Sheets.

"The books are not closed on whether we should have someone there (at the DPW) at night, but I don't think there is evidence that supports that," Sheets said.

Cheney made a motion to ask the mayor to have Colton reinstate a third shift. However, City Solicitor Steve McGrath warned the council that any action taken could be detrimental to the city as claims have been made by residents affected by the recent flooding in the Glendale and St. Ann's Rd. areas.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan suggested the council hold off on a vote until further information was presented and Cheney agreed to withdraw his motion.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley agreed with Colton.

"In times of budget belt-tightening, the system is adequate now, and there is no need for the extra expense," Nutley said.

Megabuck Winnings To Send 5 To College

Market on Atlantic St. The store gets one percent for selling the winning ticket, which is $9,422.

The total jackpot was almost $2 million, but someone from New Bedford also hit it with a quick pick number and the winnings were split two ways.

Maureen says she and Thomas were eating breakfast at a restaurant Sunday morning, relaxing over the Sunday paper. Once he checked the Megabucks number though, they found it a little difficult to relax.

"He just said 'I have all those numbers!'" Maureen says, and they went home and called the Lottery office.

They picked up their first annual check Monday.

Thomas, a school teacher, also plans to keep working, Maureen says.

"We just want to pay our kids' tuitions, keep current with our bills, and live the good life," she says. "This will just make our lives comfortable."

Although they haven't officially celebrated the winnings yet, Maureen says they'll probably do something, but it won't be anything too extravagant.

Nothing extravagant?

In explanation, she smiles and says "we have five kids."

TAKING YOUR MEDICINE
 Most people have no trouble remembering to take a pill once a day, either in the morning or at bedtime. For those with several different medications or a more frequent dosage schedule, however, it is easy to make a mistake. Seniors who may have several on-going medical problems may be taking as many as a dozen pills a day, and confusion is common. One aid to memory is to keep a drug schedule, a written list of the various medications according to the hours at which they are taken. An appointment calendar works well for this. This list should be updated as needed, and is a handy record of what drugs are used. Another method that helps many is to count out the day's or week's pills into a compartmentalized box, with the day or time written on each compartment in felt-tip marker. Such boxes are available in notions department of many stores.

P.S. Ask your physician or pharmacist what to do about a missed dose of medication.

It is important to follow a doctor's prescription exactly. Don't hesitate to ask if you have questions about medication that you are currently taking. We believe in a partnership for health with our patients. For professional health care, please call 472-2550. We're located at 101 Adams Street, Suite 24 in Quincy. Hours are by appointment. Anselmo May Be Back Quincy's political arena may not have seen the last of Frank Anselmo.

Right now he has his dander up and is considering (1) a legal fight to overturn his resignation as a School Committeeman or (2) running for his old seat in this fall's city election.

"I question their integrity," he says of last week's City Council-School Committee convention vote that rejected his plea to appoint him to the seat he resigned from early last month.

Anselmo, who is 92, says he resigned only because he was in terrible pain which started when he tried to unscrew the tight cap off a jar.

He damaged a tendon in his right hand, he says, and the pain spread to his shoulder and legs. And then he started running a fever from an apparent virus.

"I was completely helpless," he says.

"But lo and behold, a miracle took place. A doctor put me back on my feet. I had a final checkup Friday—nine-Xrays. I feel great physically and mentally.

All he wanted, he says, was to go back and finish out his term which expires at the end of this year. He says it would complete a 30-year period of service.

Last week, for awhile, it looked like he might get his wish.

After three rounds of voting, Anselmo and former School Committeewoman Peggy Nigro were tied at 7-to-7.

Mayor James Sheets, who is chairman of the School Committee was not there, having disqualified himself from the voting.

Finally, Councillor Tim Cahill switched his vote and broke the tie in favor of Nigro who will serve the rest of the year and not seek election.

Cahill, who thought Sheets should have been there, said he didn't want the voting to turn into a marathon so he broke the tie. He went with Nigro because, he noted, the School Committee members had voted 3-to-2 for her.

Anselmo's departure is a plus for School Supt. Robert Ricci and a minus for Quincy College President Clayton Johnson.

Nigro was a member of the search committee that brought Ricci to Quincy and no doubt will support him when his contract and performance are looked at this year. Anselmo was not a Ricci fan.

Anselmo was a strong supporter of Johnson's at Quincy College and backed him in skirmishes with the School Committee. But Johnson can't count on Nigro filling that role.

ANSELMO

Anselmo says he plans to talk with his lawyer over a possible legal move to overturn his resignation which he felt he made in excruciating physical pain. He feels he should have been given time to reconsider.

Would he run for election this fall for the seat he gave up?

"Some prominent people have asked me to consider running," he says. "They don't like what happened."

Others feel the School Committee and City Council could have shown a little heart for Anselmo, considering his age and long service. They point out that Nigro actually is going to be what they call a seat warmer -- finishing out Anselmo's term. Anselmo said he would have done the same thing and not seek re-election.

Well, might he run?

"Yes, I'm considering it. I feel I have given 29 years of good, honest service to the people of Quincy—especially the children of Quincy.

"I feel I still have a lot to offer. I am physically and mentally ready and capable of doing the job.

"It is too early to decide. But, yes, I might run."

MIKE FAGERLUND, one of City Hall's most familiar and popular figures, walked out the door there last Friday into retirement.

Fagerlund, chairman of the Board of Assessors, did some personal assessing: "It was time to go."

Fagerlund, who served two decades in the assessors' office under six mayors says: "I decided last summer to go. Another three years (three-year term) would have been too much."

Although, as it turned out, he left on his own at the end of his term, it seemed unlikely that Mayor James Sheets was going to re-appoint him.

Sheets blew a gasket last year over the increase in some of the real estate revaluation figures.

Fagerlund caught the brunt of it although an outside firm—not the assessors—did the appraising.

"Revaluation has always been a big problem down through the years," says Fagerlund. "People don't understand how it works."

Fagerlund was first appointed by Mayor James McIntyre in 1967 and served through Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Francis McCauley and Sheets, with a two-year interruption.

McIntyre superior as a politician."

Any big changes in City Hall in the past 20 years?

"No, nothing really changes. Only the faces."

Fagerlund, a young 72, doesn't plan to park before the TV set in a rocking chair.

"I've got lots to do," he says.

Including giving more time to his granite and monument supply business located at 69 Franklin St. He sells stone cleaners and polishers and tools to engrave stones.

That's what he was doing when McIntyre tapped him for appointment in 1967. Now, he's back there.

ANOTHER LONGTIME CITY favorite, Asst. Building Inspector Taylor Ahern will also soon be departing from the municipal scene.

Ahern, who has served nearly 25 years, will retire the end of this month or early March. He too has served under six mayors going back to Mayor McIntyre who appointed him in September 1966.

Ahern, who has a lot of class, will be honored at a retirement party Friday, March 1 at 6 p.m. at the Common Market in West Quincy.

Kathy Nugent of the Building Department is chairman. Tickets at $25 each, have been scooped up. At last check there was just one left.

Fagerlund Steps Down

Fantucchio Acting Assessors Chairman

Marion Fantucchio has been appointed acting chairman of the Quincy Board of Assessors, Mayor James Sheets announced Monday.

Fantucchio, an assessor since 1984, will fill the vacancy created after Elmer (Mike) Fagerlund retired last Friday. Fagerlund, 72, served under five Quincy mayors.

"That's a dramatic accomplishment. It's not easy to be appointed by five mayors," Sheets said.

The mayor said Fantucchio will remain acting chairman of the board until Fagerlund's successor is named.

"At that time, we'll make a permanent chairman. It will probably be Marion but we'll wait to see who that third person is," the mayor said.

Fantucchio is the first woman to chair the city's board of assessors.

James Papile is also a member of the board of assessors.

Board members receive an annual salary of $41,697. The chairman is paid $42,944 per year.

Since the vacancy is in the news, Sheets said believes the city will receive an adequate number of applications. He does not think the city will have to advertise the position.

"The job market is so poor out there. It's probably not necessary to advertise. Anyone interested should make application to (Personnel Director) Kathy Yaeger," Sheets said.

MARION FANTUCCHIO

Asked why he chose Fantucchio as acting chairman, the mayor replied, "Marion has really worked her way through the ranks. She knows how the process works," Sheets said. He noted Fantucchio, a career city employee, conducts assessing seminars.

The mayor, who appoints the assessors, had expressed displeasure with

MIKE FAGERLUND

Fagerlund last year when it was learned the assessors had failed to tax a marina at the Captain's Cove Condominiums in Quincy Point.

He said Fagerlund came to him about three weeks ago and announced his plan to retire. At that point, Sheets had not decided whether to reappoint Fagerlund.

Slumping Shipyard Awarded Contracts For Cargo Vessels

Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River Shipyard was awarded contracts worth $41,480,000 to build five high speed cargo ships, the Yard's first new contracts since March, 1949.

Officials said the contracts would stabilize the work force at 7,000 for the next few years at the shipyard, which would have been barren of shipbuilding jobs by the end of 1952.

The passenger cargo vessel SS Constitution was scheduled to be delivered in a few months and the cruiser USS Northampton and two super destroyers were down for 1952 delivery.

Meanwhile, Shipbuilding Workers Local 5 was scheduled to hold a strike vote as negotiations for a new contract broke down. The walkout would be scheduled for March 1.

Local 5 rejected a management offer of an 11.5 percent raise from $1.57 to $1.75 an hour. The union was seeking a flat $2 an hour in the top job brackets.

INCREASED BORROWING FAVORED

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin and City Manager William J. Deegan Jr., announced their support of legislation that would give the city a 100 percent increase in borrowing power.

"The present borrowing capacity of Quincy inside the debt limit does not permit expansion and capital improvements required by a city of this size," said Burgin.

The bill, which was opposed by Rep. Alfred B. Keith (R-Quincy) would increase Quincy's borrowing power within the debt limit from a third of a million dollars to two thirds of a million.

TV CRIME WAVE

Thieves with a strong sense of timing struck a Quincy television store for the fifth time in a little over a month with their loot totalling more than $10,000.

The latest break netted them six TV sets, a dozen radios and a phonograph from the Austin Radio and Television store at 21 School St.

Disillusioned About Quincy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As an avid reader of The Quincy Sun, I have become very disillusioned about what was a great City. I can't believe some of the nonsense that's going on with Mayor Sheets as the instigator.

Taxpayers money is supposed to be used for the good of the community, (fire, schools and police protection) particularly in these hard economic times. Whether people realize it or not, money coming from the government to pay for making Quincy a tourist attraction, also comes from our taxes, so people are paying twice the amount for the City.

Mayor Sheets wants a better Downtown Quincy, but at the risk of losing what's left of the better retailers in the Square.

Because of roving gangs of young people, the retailer I work for has spent close to $4800 for plate glass windows and doors over the last two years, smashed by young people fighting either during the night or with our store manager watching. With this kind of vandalism going on it's obvious that taxpayers' money is not being used for police protection.

My company would like to put up steel doors over our windows, but Mayor Sheets doesn't want this. City Hall should start paying the bills and then someone will know how it hurts. For a city supposedly in financial trouble, City Hall should stop squandering money and hold on to what it has.

Praise For Doris Oberg, And Pneumatic Scale

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The three photos in The Quincy Sun Jan. 3, showed improvements made at Quincy Center, on Hancock St. The removal of the islands in front of City Hall, the new street lamps, the new building replacing the Bargain Center, also the replacement of the missing iron urns on the iron fence at the Hancock Cemetery.

The Pneumatic Scale

Company of Quincy and Doris Oberg, an active member of the Quincy Historical Society, deserve credit on the replacement of the missing iron urns on the iron fence at the Hancock Cemetery. The Pneumatic Scale for supplying the urns free, and Doris Oberg for her watchful eye noticing the missing urns and for her good memory where the urns could be obtained. A good view of

Likes Bob Hanna's Crime Watch Column

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

If possible, I would like to thank Mr. Hanna, the Crime Prevention Officer, for his article lately on Protection of Businesses in the South Shore and many ways to do this. It was excellent.

It brought to mind that Mr. Hanna spoke five years ago to the senior citizens at 80 Clay St. about how the many seniors in this area also could protect themselves. I also recall his giving out whistles to the people, which I hung onto for several years, before my strokes. He is such a good speaker, a good "cop".

I wrote a similar letter a few days ago, had it stamped and ready to mail, when it was stolen from my pocketbook. Even here at 80 Clay St., there is crime! Petty, I guess, but crime, nevertheless.

Respectfully,
Shirley "Terry" Stranchan
P.S. Your small local paper is excellent, also.

Stuffed Mushrooms
Italian Style

I received a phone call recently from a woman who reads this column and requested I write the recipe for Italian style stuffed mushrooms. Of course mushrooms can be stuffed with just about anything from sauted sausage meat to crab meat. However, today's recipe contains no meat and is one my mother used as well. This one's for you Mary, and I hope you will find them as delicious as we do.

- STUFFED MUSHROOMS
1 Lb large mushrooms (take stems off)
1 clove garlic (chopped)
1 small onion (chopped)
2 tps chopped parsley
2 tps cooking sherry about 3 or 4 tps olive oil (for topping)
1 cup bread crumbs (seasoned or plain)

salt and pepper to taste
2 Tbsps melted butter (or margerine)
Mix onion, garlic, parsley, melted butter, salt and pepper, the crumbs and the sherry in a bowl. Fill the caps and place them in a greased baking pan. Top each cap with the olive oil and then bake for 20 minutes in a 350 degree oven.
Serve hot either as an appetizer or on the side with a favorite entee!

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Previtte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

CARRIE MCINTYRE

Carrie McIntyre: 103 Years Young

Carrie McIntyre of Quincy just celebrated a very special birthday. She turned 103 years old Wednesday.

A resident of the Crestville Healthcare Facility for the past four years, Mrs. McIntyre has lived in Squantum since Quincy 49 years.

She lived in Squantum until she was in her 80's and then moved to Snug Harbor.

Although she is a native of Waterville, Maine, and lived in Revere and Dorchester for several years, there is a special tie linking Mrs. McIntyre to Quincy: She was born in 1888, the very year it was voted to incorporate Quincy as a city. In a sense, they were born the same year.

Mrs. McIntyre was married at the age of 20 to Frank McIntyre of Somerville. Together they raised five children, three daughters and two sons.

She had her last child,

Kenneth, when she was 46 years old, and his birth coincided with that of her first grandchild.

"She had my brother Kenneth when she was 46," says Marjorie Johnson of her mother, "and then I had Donald, my son. They were uncle and nephew, but they grew up together."

"She's lived a very busy life," Marjorie says. "When she was younger she was very active in the Methodist Church in Dorchester and later she was involved with the First Church of Squantum. She enjoyed her church very much."

In fact, when she was in her 80's, Mrs. McIntyre was made an honorary deacon of the First Church of Squantum, and even at that age, remained an active member of the church.

"She's lived a very happy life," says Marjorie, "with very happy memories."

Losing Weight Together Can Be Fun, Rewarding

One of the hardest

moments to deal with while trying to lose weight is watching someone else eating something you can't have. The smell is usually unbearable, and we end up becoming angry at ourselves for our predicament.

There is a hope--support from a spouse or friend can make all the difference in the world. Although support can be essential, numerous studies have shown that working at something together can be twice as easy, and just as rewarding as doing it alone.

Friends and couples helping each other. Real people getting real help, eating real food, getting real results. Helping someone else makes us all healthy.

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE SHOVELING SNOW

The storm that blew several inches of snow in our direction recently provides an appropriate time to offer a few suggestions on proper shoveling techniques. At the risk of sounding "like a wiseguy" the best way to prevent problems shoveling snow is to avoid doing it altogether by using a snowblower or by paying someone to do it for you. Most importantly, any person with a history of heart problems or any person at risk of heart problems should ask their doctor for approval. If you absolutely must shovel snow, the following guidelines may be helpful:

1. Warm up prior to shoveling as you would do before exercising.
 2. Pace yourself depending on the conditions. Shoveling heavy wet snow takes a heck of a lot more energy than shoveling fluffy white snow.
 3. Use the proper shovel. Using a short, wide, flat bladed shovel may be perfect for pushing light snow, but could be disastrous in trying to shovel (the heavier wet snow). Generally speaking a long handled shovel, or better yet, a "back saver" shovel with a bent shaft, reduces the strain on your back.
 4. Keep your back straight, bend with your knees and turn your feet and legs when "throwing the snow." This is crucial because it is usually the quick twist of your back while you are bent over slightly that causes most injuries.
 5. Switch sides when shoveling so that you're not always throwing the snow in the same direction.
- If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehning, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock Street, North Quincy, 773-4400.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The display of banners or flags to symbolize a nation's spirit and to inspire patriotism goes back many centuries.

Woodrow Wilson, one of our most intellectual presidents, saw the flag, not as a sentimental symbol, but in a more practical and reasoned way. "The flag," he said, "is the embodiment, not of sentiment, but of history. It represents the experiences made by men and women, the experiences of those who do and live under the flag."

This was probably a paraphrase of words written in the previous century by Henry Ward Beecher: "A thoughtful mind, when it sees a nation's flag, sees not the flag only, but the nation itself; and whatever may be its symbols, its insignia, he reads chiefly in the flag of the government, the principles, the truths, the history which belongs to the nation that sets it forth."

Sentimental or pragmatic, the display of the flag is a meaningful act that appeals to the patriotism of him who performs it and him who sees it... Flags can and do keep patriotism warm...

4 Quincy Magic Number

The Quincy boys' basketball team, still with an outside chance of qualifying for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the first time in several years, broke even in two games last week, making its record 8-6.

The Presidents, winless a year ago, must win four of their remaining six games to qualify.

Quincy played Stoughton in a non-league game Tuesday night, will host Taunton Friday night at 7 and will play at Silver Lake next Tuesday night at 7.

After exploding in the second half to overwhelm North Quincy 80-56, and claim the city championship, the Presidents staged a tremendous last-minute comeback at Plymouth only to drop an 85-84 heartbreaker.

In the Plymouth game Quincy trailed, 80-65, with 3:50 left and the Presidents outscored the Blue Eagles, 19-5, the rest of the way. Quincy trailed, 53-44, at halftime.

E. J. Nordstrom paced Quincy with 23 points and Ralph Bevilacqua and sophomore Robbie Kane scored 19 apiece.

In the North Quincy game the Raiders stayed within reach in the first half but their shooting fell off and Quincy pulled away for an easy win.

Earlier in the season Quincy had squeezed by North, 59-58.

Quincy held North's high-scoring Brian Curran, the number two scorer in the Old Colony League, to 15 points, seven below his average.

"Our motto has been that our defense makes our offense," said coach John Franceschini. "Our man-to-man defense has been wearing teams down and that's what you saw happen tonight. We were able to get Curran and Sean Donovan in early foul trouble, allowing us to get the ball to David Jolley and E. J. Nordstrom, who I feel are two of the best in the league around the blocks."

Jolley (17 points and nine rebounds) and Nordstrom (19 points and 11 rebounds), gave Quincy an early 18-11 lead. Following a timeout, the Raiders came back to move within four, 21-17. Quincy then out-scored North, 14-3, to hold a 35-20 halftime lead.

In the second half North never got closer than 12 points and the Presidents' lead reached 34 points on Lap Wai Cheng's scoop shot. Kane and Bevilacqua had strong second halves. Kane hit nine free throws and Bevilacqua had 13 of his 20 points in the second half.

North Girls Land Tourney Berth

The North Quincy girls' basketball team qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the seventh time in 11 years and kept its hopes for an Old Colony League title alive with a 52-37 victory over Taunton last Friday. North is 12-2 overall (9-2 in the league).

Paul Bregoli led five of his nine North teams into the tournament and now Ken Panaro is two-for-two since taking over as coach.

The North girls, hoping to improve their tournament seeding, hosted Silver Lake Tuesday night, will host Bridgewater-Raynham Friday night at 7 and will play at Barnstable next Tuesday night at 7.

Tara Miles paced North with 11 points and five steals. Joanna Rugnetta had eight points and nine rebounds and Tricia Hughes eight points and five assists.

North expanded a 25-14 halftime lead with a 9-0 run to open the second half.

Earlier in the week North had defeated Quincy for the second time, 47-38, to claim the city championship.

Rugnetta had 14 points and seven rebounds to spark the victory. Kara Sullivan and Miles scored 10 points apiece and Hughes had seven points.

"Tricia's speed and dribbling sparked us in the second half," said Panaro.

Road Still Rough For North

The North Quincy boys' basketball team continued to find the going rough and lost two games last week, dropping its record to 4-9.

After losing for the second time to Quincy, 80-56, the Raiders dropped a 69-59 decision to Taunton last Friday.

North played at Silver Lake Tuesday night, will be at Bridgewater-Raynham Friday night at 7 and will host Barnstable next Tuesday night at 7.

Taunton scored the final 10 points of the game to overcome North despite a 20-point, 14-rebound effort by Curran.

Taunton's Sean Geer hit a 15-foot jumper to break a 59-all tie and then went on to score the next eight unanswered points to pull away.

Matt Flynn and Sean Donovan had nine points apiece for the Raiders and Scott Dunn had eight assists.

In the loss to Quincy the Raiders stayed with the Presidents for much of the first half, but their shooting fell off and Quincy was able to pull safely away.

"We just couldn't put the ball in the basket," said coach Ted Stevenson. "We usually play very good defense, but I thought we came out flat tonight. Now we have to go back to the tables and start all over again."

After Quincy jumped off to an 18-11 lead, Stevenson called a timeout and North came back to cut the gap to 21-17. However, Quincy then outscored North, 14-3, and held a 35-20 lead at the half.

Quincy pulled ahead by as many as 24 points in the second half as North couldn't stop Ralph Bevilacqua (20 points), Dave Jolley (17) and E. J. Nordstrom (19).

North's Brian Curran was held to 15 points by Quincy's tough man-to-man defense. Sophomore Donovan had 16 points and Flynn had all of his 13 points in the second half.

Quincy Girls Rebound For Win

The Quincy girls' basketball team rebounded from a 47-38 loss to North Quincy by defeating Plymouth, 42-38, last Friday to improve its record to 5-9.

Quincy played Taunton last night (Wednesday) and will host Silver Lake next Tuesday at 5 o'clock.

Amy Baker, a standout all season for Quincy, sparked the win over Plymouth with 15 points. Melanie Sullivan scored all of her eight points in the second half.

Ann Kane came off the bench and had nine rebounds for Quincy, which trailed by four points midway through the second half.

Baker, who hit three three-pointers, scored 11 points in the first half when the teams wound up tied, 20-20.

Sullivan, who also had nine rebounds, clinched the win, driving the lane for a basket with 12 seconds left.

In the loss to North Quincy Baker scored 12 points to lead the Quincy girls.

Bogan, who was just as outstanding on defense, averaged eight tackles a game and had four pass interceptions, giving him seven for his career.

Quincy's Future Looks Promising

The Quincy boys track team, with a small turnout, have had little luck in its first year of competition in the Old Colony League, but coaches Jack Raymer and John Green feel the fine showings by the younger boys bode well for the future.

"Many of our younger runners could be heard from over the next few years if they continue their strong efforts this year," said Raymer.

Leading the runners are Captains John Fahey, who has done 5.9 in the 50-yard dash, Mike Tempesta, with a 42-6 in the shot put and Dan Thakeray, who has cleared six feet in the high jump and runs on the 4x400 relay team.

The juniors are led by Gary Collins in the shot put and 50-yard hurdles (7.8), Keith Norris and Claircent Demerier in the shot put and Tim Galligan in the mile and 4x400

Quincy Tourney Hopes Jolted

The Quincy hockey team's hopes of its first state tournament berth in many years were jolted last week when the Presidents lost to Silver Lake and Weymouth.

Quincy is 8-6-1 with four games to play.

The youthful Presidents, who won just one game each of the last two years, faced North Quincy last night (Wednesday), will play at Barnstable Saturday night at 7:45 and will make up a snowed-out game with Weymouth Monday at 3 o'clock at the Quincy Youth Arena. Next Tuesday Quincy will play at Whitman Hanson at 3:50.

Quincy turned in a fine effort last Saturday against powerful Weymouth, but lost, 5-2, as Weymouth's Bill Leahy scored four goals.

Weymouth, in second place in the Old Colony League, improved to 11-2.

The Presidents took a 1-0 lead on Scott MacPherson's 18th goal of the year unassisted, but the Wildcats came back with three goals. Jimmy Smith scored Quincy's second goal also unassisted.

"We played a good game against a strong team," said Coach Bob Sylvia. "Weymouth and Barnstable are the class of the Old Colony League."

Earlier in the week the Presidents turned in a disappointing performance and were blanked for the first time this year, 6-0, by silver Lake.

"This game was very disappointing, as we tied them earlier in the year," Sylvia said. "We just couldn't get anything started".

Good Show But No Win For North

The North Quincy hockey team turned in two fine efforts last week, but lost to powerful Weymouth and Bridgewater - Raynham, dropping its record to 6-7-3.

The Raiders, who had to win their last four games to qualify for the state tournament, faced Quincy last night (Wednesday), will host Plymouth Saturday at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will play at Marshfield next Wednesday at 4 o'clock.

North played a fine game against B-R last Saturday, but lost, 4-3, after outplaying the Trojans in the first two periods.

Bill Lemanski had a hat trick to spark B-R.

Chris McCallum scored the first North goal with Richie Brooks assisting. Mike DesRoche had the second and Bill Lydon, the Raiders' top scorer, scored the third with Mike Christopherson having an assist.

Pat O'Donoghue had another fine game in goal for the Raiders.

"We played fine hockey but made three mistakes and they scored each time," said North coach Tom Benson. "It has been the same story for us all year, when we need four goals we score three and when we need only one, we score three. This was a fine effort against a very good team."

Earlier in the week North played a strong game but lost to Old Colony League second place Weymouth, 6-1. The Wildcats improved to 10-2.

Bill Leahy had a hat trick for Weymouth, scoring in each period. The Wildcats had a 3-1 lead in the third period after Lydon scored for North, but they then exploded for three goals to win going away.

Christopherson and DesRoche assisted on the North Quincy goal.

The week-long charity event will take place during the February school vacation week, Feb. 18-24, at the Quincy Youth Hockey Arena on Murphy Memorial Drive.

The Division 1 AHA-sanctioned event will feature teams from four divisions: Bantams, Pee Wees, Mites and Squirts. Teams are already registered from Quincy, Medford, Framingham, South Shore Seahawks (Scituate, Hull and Cohasset), Schenectady, N.Y., Adirondack, N.Y., King Philip/Walpole, Canton, Arlington, California, Woburn, South Boston, Michigan, Greater Providence, Suffolk, N.Y., and Newfoundland.

According to Beverly Reinhardt, manager of the Quincy Youth Arena and a member of the local Kiwanis club, there are still openings available for local area teams. Teams are guaranteed three games.

Basketball

North Freshmen In Wins Over Quincy, Taunton

The North Quincy freshman boys' basketball team has had tough sledding, but victories last week over Quincy and Taunton improved the young Raiders' record to 6-10.

North edged Quincy, 55-53, in an emotionally-charged game with Quincy leading, 25-23, at halftime. The young Presidents widened the gap to 10 points before North staged a big comeback.

Bob Johnston and Bryan Raftery led the way offensively with 16 and 18 points respectively. The defensive play of Ed Mitton, Dan Duncan, Steve Manning, Martin Shields and Adam DeBoer and the rebounding of Jason Picardi keyed North's comeback.

A last-minute run by Quincy was stopped when George Wirtz stole the ball on an inbound pass. Quincy was led by Jim Cipriano and Mike Aupperlee. The win avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of Quincy.

Coach Jim Johnston's

North team defeated Taunton, 52-37, taking control of the game early behind the fine play of DeBoer, Duncan, Josh Adams and Mike Santoro.

North had nine players score with Raftery, Picardi, Mike Koski, Manning, Mitton, Shields, Kevin Ross, Wirtz and Johnston all scoring.

North Quincy will host Barnstable next Tuesday and will be home to Weymouth in the season's finale Feb. 15. Both games will start at 3:30.

Quincy Residents In Bay State Games

Several Quincy residents are competing in the Bay State Games Winter Masters Ice Hockey Tournament. Richard Ohlund is the captain of the Habs, which features many current and former Quincy residents including Tom Gerry, Frank McInnis, Dave Ohlund, Mike Storer and Bob Tierney.

The Habs are one of 10 teams competing for the over 30 ice hockey championship.

Two Pool Table Licenses Granted

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday voted to allow pool tables in two establishments while holding off on a decision on a third request.

Board Chairman John Gillis said he wants he and other board members to make a site visit to Footprints, a non-alcoholic bar at 1515 Hancock St., before deciding on a request for a pinball and pool table license.

The board will allow Delaney's Pub, 35 Franklin St., a license for two 15 foot snooker tables in addition to his existing license for two regulation pool tables.

Snooker is a variation of pool played in England and Ireland which uses fewer balls and a longer table.

Manager Maurice Foley had floor plans to show the board where the tables would be located.

Quincy Liquor Inspector Sgt. Richard Laracy said he sees no problem with the location of the tables, but said Foley had "piled" things in a back storage room to create the space for them.

There is an existing exit in the storage room leading out to a back alleyway and Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey noted the egress cannot be blocked. Fire code also prohibits the storage of combustible materials near an egress.

The Fire and Building

Departments will make a site inspection of the back room.

The board also granted a license for three coin operated regulation pool tables for Bentley's Steak House, 579 Southern Artery. Last week's original request was for four tables.

Manager Brian Leonard presented the board with floor plans detailing the location of the tables. Board members found no problem with the proposed location.

Police Chief Francis Mullen stressed that each of the establishments must post signs advising no gambling is allowed on the tables, and each must ensure management monitors the play at all times.

Wrestling

North Pins Quincy Second Time In 17 Years

The North Quincy wrestling team defeated Quincy for only the second time in 17 years when it pulled out a 35-30 Old Colony League win when Randy Gale pinned Quincy's Guy Schipellite in the heavyweight bout.

Quincy had taken a 30-29 lead when Tom Burton won in the 180-pound class.

North sophomore Jeff Pillard (130) scored a takedown at the buzzer against Quincy freshman Ashley Davis to win, 6-5.

Bob Manna also helped the Raiders when he pinned Clint Currie in the 160-pound class. North's Rich MacVarish defeated Mark Nutley, 10-1, at 171 and Chris Nickerson defeated Peter Penwarden, 10-1, at 119.

Quincy's Greg Souza won at 140 to improve to 17-1, Bob Stanton won at 145 to improve to 14-4 and Ally Sleiman won at 152 to improve to 15-3.

North will face Stoughton, Norwood and Brockton Saturday at noon at Brockton and Quincy will meet Duxbury and Whitman Saturday at 10 a.m. at Duxbury.

The South Sectional Tournament will be held at Weymouth Friday and Saturday, Feb. 15 and 16.

Harold Still Optimistic Clock Ticking On Shipbuilding Return At Fore River

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
With the clock winding down on the chances for a worker-owned shipbuilding operation at the Fore River Shipyard, one official close to the issue remains optimistic.

One day after the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority set a six-month deadline for the workers to obtain private financing for shipbuilding work, Sen. Paul Harold said he still believes shipbuilding can return to the yard.

"I'm optimistic for shipbuilding at Fore River. I'm not sure if the group will be Mass Shipbuilders or some other group that will ultimately be in operation down there," Harold said.

Last week, the MWRA board of directors voted to delay plans to auction off $3 million worth of equipment that had been reserved for the shipbuilders.

The unanimous vote came after MWRA staff urged the board to auction off the equipment and set up plans to develop a 70-acre site at the shipyard that had been reserved for the shipbuilders union. Endorsement of the staff's plan would have killed efforts to revive the shipyard.

However, in separate action, the board voted 8-3 to begin the planning process for disposing the property. MWRA Director Paul Levy said if the shipbuilders are unable to collect financial support for their redevelopment plan by late summer, the property will be sold or leased.

Despite the board's action, Harold maintains optimistic.

He pointed out before the MWRA can sell or sign a long-term lease involving part or all of the 70 acres reserved for the shipbuilders, the move must be approved by the state legislature. "It's a safety net," the senator said.

In 1988, the agency agreed to reserve the property and lease it to Massachusetts Shipbuilders. Under the agreement, the agency would provide equipment through the Massachusetts Land Bank if the shipbuilders came up with private financing for the project.

Harold said there has been interest in shipbuilding returning to the former site of the General Dynamics shipyard. He noted the shipbuilders have had a number of prospects from private sources, including a proposal to carry sludge to the deep ocean, but none have worked out because the projects were not large enough to get the business started.

"They need that one big deal, one big contract to get going," he said, adding, "The idea is to keep adding work after they get started."

Harold mentioned that a New York group inquired about having the shipbuilders construct prison barges. On the bottom of the square structure is a conventional barge. The top part of the structure has three or four stories of prison cells.

If constructed, Harold said the barges can alleviate prison overcrowding and are $50,000 less to build per unit than traditional prisons.

"Pull them into a dock area, throw a line over for electricity, sewer and water and you're in business. (The New York group) wanted a long-term price but they couldn't get one because the shipbuilders are not operating."

Harold said the prison barge contract would keep 200 people employed at the yard for six months.

The task of receiving funding for ship construction and repair work will probably be more difficult with the departure of Peter Gwyn. Gwyn, the leader of the Mass shipbuilders, left the group a few weeks ago to take a job in Walpole.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Anticipating a $2 million loss in state local aid, Mayor James Sheets has ordered two percent cuts in school, fire and police budgets and eight percent cuts in most other municipal departments to balance the FY 92 budget.

Sheets said he will likely submit a FY 92 budget of $121,600,000 to the City Council at the council's first meeting in April. By city ordinance, the mayor is required to submit the budget within 90 days after city's inauguration ceremony or mid-term address in January.

If the budget figure is correct, the FY fiscal spending plan will increase $934,894 over this fiscal year. However, with a $2 million loss in local aid, $3 million in delinquent tax revenue and soaring fixed costs, Sheets said the eight and two percent cuts are necessary to balance next year's budget which will take effect July 1.

Fixed costs alone will increase by $5 million next year. Sheets noted the city's health care costs will soar to $15.7 million next year, up $2.5 million over this year. He said pensions will rise $900,000.

In his mid-term address six weeks ago, Sheets said his fiscal goals were to level fund schools, fire and police while cutting other departments by four percent.

However, he had to scrap those plans after Gov. William Weld announced he would cut local aid by 10 percent to help balance the state FY 92 budget. The reduction would cost Quincy $2 million, Sheets said.

As a result, Sheets is projecting a $735,000 cut in the education budget, $218,000 from police and $198,000 from fire. He said he hopes to avoid layoffs through attrition, reorganization and early retirements.

Sheets, who noted the school committee will determine the nature of the cuts in the education budget, said, "We have some vacancies in fire and police that maybe we just won't fill those vacancies."

"I would hope attrition would allow us not to have to lay people off and we will be putting an incentive program into effect to get people to retire probably this week," Sheets said.

Most of the police and virtually all of the fire budget funds personnel costs. For example, 96 percent of the fire budget is for personnel.

He said the police department has "more flexibility" than the fire department in enduring the cuts because the police department is undergoing reorganization brought on by several captain vacancies.

Sheets has also kept a tight rein on overtime spending, meeting regularly

Houghs Neck, Germantown Stations Would Be Closed New Fire Station In Adams Shore Under Study

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets and Acting Fire Chief Thomas Gorman are exploring the feasibility of closing the Houghs Neck and Germantown fire stations and constructing a new fire facility at the intersection of Sea and Palmer Sts.

Agreeing the budget situation will get worse over the next year, Sheets and Gorman are studying ways to maintain the present level of firefighters. Gorman said he would like to combine Company 6 and Company 8 to provide better efficiency to both Germantown and Houghs Neck.

"To make the companies more efficient we should move them to Sea and Palmer Sts. Engines 6 and 8 combined can serve more people more efficiently from a bigger station with more manpower," Gorman said.

Presently, the Houghs Neck station has one engine and one ladder and the Germantown station has one engine.

"It's just in the talking stages right now. It may never happen," Gorman said.

The mayor said he expects the chief's plan to be on his desk within the next four weeks.

Gorman said the idea for the new, larger station has sprung from manpower shortages brought on by budget restraints. "I would just assume rehire our 14 men who were laid off last year and keep all of our stations open," he said.

The mayor, who will cut next year's fire budget by $198,000 to help offset a $2 million reduction in local aid, said the outlook for FY 93 is more discouraging. As a result, he and Gorman are studying ways to maintain the present level of fire services in Quincy.

"The question we wrestle with is, how on diminished amounts of money, can we provide high quality of fire service and I think (Gorman) sees the combining of two stations as a way of doing that.

"It's difficult to think about even seeing the personnel force reduced further in the fire department but 96 percent of the fire budget is personnel services so any cuts are going to come in the personnel area. There's no way that can be changed.

"We're looking for ways to keep the level of fire services and quality of fire services high and that's what (Gorman is) trying to do," the mayor added.

If approved, the new fire station would be built on city-owned land now occupied by the Adams Shore Library. A community center hall could possibly be incorporated at the new station location, Gorman said.

Sheets said the city would bond the construction of the new station which he estimates would cost between $1 and $1.3 million.

After Gorman's recommendation is made, Sheets said he will ask local officials and community groups to respond. If the community opposes, Sheets said he will reject it.

Sheets Reasserts City's Claim As Birthplace Of Two Presidents

Quincy has as just a rightful claim as the birthplace of U.S. Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams as Braintree, according to Mayor James Sheets.

John Adams

Sheets, who is targeting Quincy's nickname as "The City of Presidents" and tourism as part of his economic renewal for Quincy Square, was responding to a recent published report which quoted Braintree Town Clerk Robert Bruynell.

Bruynell said Braintree is the real home of the second and sixth presidents because at the time of their birth, their homes on Franklin St. in Quincy was part of

John Quincy Adams

Braintree. He noted the Adams' birth records indicate Braintree as the site of their birth.

However, because the Adams birth places are now located in Quincy, Sheets said the city has a rightful claim as the home of the presidents.

"They were born in what is currently Quincy. I have no problem with saying that back at the time of their birth it was Braintree but their birthplaces are in Quincy.

"Obviously, they were born in Braintree but that portion of Braintree is now Quincy so we claim them as ours. If Braintree wants to claim they were born in Braintree, that's up to Braintree," the mayor said with a laugh.

DeCristofaro Urges Weld To Stop MWRA Purchase Of Quabbin Reservoir

City Council President Ted DeCristofaro has written to Gov. William Weld urging him not to allow the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to purchase the Quabbin Reservoir.

In his letter dated Feb. 11, DeCristofaro said, "The taxpayers of this commonwealth have paid for the reservoir once before, and it would not be in their best interests to have to pay for it another time.

"We all appreciate the fiscal restraints before us--and the uncertainty of the overall economic climate of Massachusetts, but this suggestion to have the Quabbin Reservoir purchased by the MWRA is a measure that should be avoided."

DeCristofaro, who represents Ward 2, told Weld "The rate payers in the city of Quincy are suffering undue hardships already--struggling to pay their water-sewer bills at the current rates.

"If the MWRA were to purchase the Quabbin Reservoir, it would place an added unfair burden on the rate payers too extreme for most families in the city of Quincy and other communities to absorb," he added.

Kolson Proposes $25 Voluntary Parking Program

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
As a means to raise revenue, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson will propose a voluntary parking sticker program at the Feb. 19 meeting of the City Council.

Under Kolson's plan, residents would be asked to pay $25 for a one-year parking sticker. The sticker would allow residents to park at designated areas in the Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy business districts for up to two hours at no additional charge.

Kolson, who has thought about the plan for a year and a half, said the program could boost the city's cash flow at a time when state aid is dropping. He noted there are 70,000 cars in Quincy that pay excise tax. For every 1,000 stickers, the city would raise $25,000. If 5,000 tickets were sold, $100,000 would be generated.

"That would go a long way," Kolson said. "It would certainly help keep some teachers, firefighters and police officers on."

The program would not eliminate parking meters. "It's just a matter of convenience," Kolson added. The councillor said the program could also boost business in the city's three main shopping districts. Residents with stickers on their vehicles could park for two hours and frequent as many shops and stores during that period without getting a parking ticket.

Kolson also said he would like the city to take over the management of its own parking lots and garages. They are presently under contract to a management company. Under the contract, the city is paid some $400,000.

Kolson said the city could make more than it is now by hiring retirees to work at the garages. He also said volunteers could do the work.

"Anything we can come up with to stimulate revenue is worth looking into," he said.

Child Safety Seats

Enough emphasis cannot be placed on using a child safety seat correctly and only according to the manufacturer's instructions.

It is estimated that two out of every three child safety seats used today are used incorrectly. Parents often do not realize when a seat is used incorrectly or the consequences of an improperly used safety seat.

Car seats provide protection similar to safety belts but are specifically designed based in the unique growth and development characteristics of a child. An improperly installed child safety seat is less effective and depending upon the type of misuse will greatly influence the overall crashworthiness of the seat.

How does one know when a seat is being used incorrectly? When installing a safety seat check to be sure that the seat is facing the correct direction -- an infant-only seat is designed for a baby weighing under 20 pounds and is installed in the car so that the baby rides facing the rear of the car.

A convertible seat is suitable from birth to 40 pounds. For an infant, the convertible seat must be in reclined position and placed with the child facing rearward. For toddlers, who can sit up unassisted and who weigh over 20 pounds, the seat can then be converted into the toddler position where the seat is in an upright position and the child rides forwardfacing. Be sure the harness fits over the shoulders and is snug. Snug means that only two fingers can slip under the harness. And yes, the safest seating position for someone riding in an auto is in the middle back seat.

Incidentally, the Massachusetts Child Passenger Safety Law requires all children ages 12 and under to be fastened in a properly adjusted safety belt or safety seat when riding in an automobile. All 50 states have Child Passenger Safety Laws which have significantly reduced the number of injuries and deaths to children since enacted.

For more information on the correct use of child safety seats, please contact the Quincy Police Safety Officer Bob Clark.

More On Profanity

Quincy's recently enacted city ordinance banning profanity and loitering in public places apparently has proven one thing:

A lot of people in this country and as far away as Australia are plain fed up with foul mouthed individuals who think they can barrage others with four letter words and other obscenities, anytime and any place they feel.

So reaction still coming in would seem to indicate. At the very least, the ordinance has caused considerable interest.

Like, for example, in Austin, Tex. Asst. City Clerk Tom Burke received a telephone call the other day from Richard Alexander, an Austin official, who requested a copy of the Quincy ordinance be sent to him.

He indicated that Austin was interested in an ordinance similar to the Quincy one to solve its own problem of loitering and profanity.

City Council President Ted DeCristofaro, a staunch supporter of the Quincy ordinance, is still getting mail from around the country and elsewhere.

Samples: Marjorie Kirby of Seal Beach, Calif.

"Heard about your actions on the radio. Can't thank you enough! The difference between an animal and a human being is dignity. We've lost it. Let's get our dignity back. Keep up the fight."

Dorothy Zeisneiss of Marshalltown, Iowa: "You are to be congratulated for a most positive move. Even with all the free-wheeling legal advertising out there, you probably have huge numbers agreeing with you who feel powerless."

A "Citizen of Pekin, Ill.": "Hopefully the ones most responsible for this disgusting profanity, the movie industry, will see themselves on the streets of America. The kids are only repeating what they hear."

"I recall the wonderful movie 'The Golden Pond,' decimated by a teenager. Of course, those words were first uttered by script writers. We must try to preserve our former decent country. This is a start."

"Also congratulations to Mr. Sheets." Agnes Boyle of Rosewood, Australia: "As a 20-year-old I have tried to adapt to many strange attitudes of the latter 20th century. But I cannot nor do I want to come to terms with the foul language that permeates every aspect of today's world."

"I cringe when I hear those words coming from the mouths of our filthy young women. How sad... "I feel you are unfair emphasizing teen age moderns. How about irresponsible adults who opted to allow their children to get away with such behavior?" "It has been the loving duty of parents to teach their children right from wrong. Has it not? Let's not shed the blame any more. Mistakes have been made. Your by-law may be the first decisive step taken in the war against profanity in public places. Let that be its own reward."

You might say the Quincy ordinance has generated world-wide interest.

Quincy resident Robert Nankin, travelling in the Orient with his wife, sent DeCristofaro a note from Bangkok, Thailand with a copy of an article about the ordinance in a newspaper there.

DeCristofaro says he will oppose any move to amend or repeal the ordinance.

He stresses he doesn't favor curbing First Amendment rights but he feels profanity is public places is an abuse of those rights.

"I have rights, too," he says. "And so do other people. We have the right not to have to listen to filthy language in public places."

One thing has been overlooked in the arguments for and against the ordinance: unfortunately there are too many people today -- teen-agers and adults -- who cannot express themselves without using four letter words.

They can't even begin a sentence without "Hey, man," and switching to profanity two or three words later.

Profanity, with a big helping hand from today's movies and TV shows, is replacing proper English as our native language.

Quincy's ordinance, regardless of whether it can stem the profanity tide or not, at least has shown that many people are concerned and angry at the four-letter air pollution that is all around us.

And that is a good beginning.

QUINCY DEFINITELY will be a lot greener come the Spring reports Leo Kelly, chairman of the Evergreen Quincy program.

KELLY

Some 2,614 Scotch pine trees will be distributed by the city to residents who participated in the Quincy Christmas tree program last month.

Each of the 2,614 trees to be given away represent a live Christmas tree that was turned into the city for living after the Christmas holiday.

The Scotch pine trees, four years old and 12 to 18 inches in height will be distributed between April 29 and May 5 which is Environmental Week.

Kelly says that every neighborhood in the city will have the new young trees.

The program was part of Mayor Sheets' "Greener Quincy" campaign and was sponsored in part by the J.M. Cashman Co., Contractors, Federal Ave.

YOU MIGHT SAY Senator Paul Harold is moving up by moving down.

After 12 years in a fifth floor office at the State House, he has been assigned to a much larger one on the fourth floor -- the one formerly occupied by Senator Fred Berry of Peabody, the new assistant majority leader.

HAROLD

Peabody has gone down to the third floor where the Senate leadership is.

Harold's office number is 413-D and has a nice view of Boston Common. It is also closer to the leadership.

NEWS ON OSTEOARTHRITIS

Osteoarthritis is a painful condition afflicting more than 16 million Americans. It causes a breakdown in the cartilage which covers and cushions the joints, allowing bones to rub directly together. This limits movement of the afflicted joint and causes intense pain. Now, researchers are coming closer to understanding the cause and possibly the prevention and treatment of this crippling disease. A study at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia reveals that a genetic defect in certain individuals put them at a high risk of developing osteoarthritis. The defect interferes with the production of one of the amino acids which combine to form cartilage. Researchers theorize that the defective cartilage wears out faster than normal cartilage. The new findings may eventually lead to correcting the actions of the defective gene.

P.S. Osteoarthritis normally occurs in people over age 55.

Getting older is accompanied by very real changes in your body. However, it doesn't mean you have to lose vigor and vitality. Preventive health care works to keep you healthy and aims to treat the cause, not just the symptoms of a problem. Form a partnership for health when you come to see us. Children, Elders Begin Pen-Pal Sharing Program

Quincy After School Day Care, Inc., and Merrymount Manor have begun an intergenerational pen-pal and sharing program, with the help of South Shore Elder Services.

Mayor James Sheets attended the first meeting of the two groups of 8 elders and 10 children, at the elders residence at Merrymount Manor.

The children are a part of the Snug Harbor After School program, the newest of four school-age programs run by the active, non-profit organization. The other three programs, at Lincoln-Hancock, Squantum and Montclair schools, will be engaged in intergenerational programs with other nursing homes or senior centers as soon as they can identify groups that are interested in such a program.

Educational programs like this are an ongoing part of the enrichment program for children in the after school organization.

Mary-Beth Agee, an intern at South Shore Elder Services, approached Sine Pounder, director of Quincy After School Day Care, and Alice Skehan, activities director of Merrymount, about the project last November.

In a discussion with Pounder last year, Agee expressed interest in doing an intergenerational sharing in Quincy, similar to one she had done with middle school children in Boston.

Pounder said when Agee called her with the potential for doing the project, she was glad to have such an enthusiastic, energetic person willing to move the project ahead. Skehan, who is always looking for activities for her group which utilize her knowledge and experience, was also excited about the opportunities for the residents. When the idea was presented to them, they were enthusiastic about working with the children.

They are paired with one or two children. Between visits, they will write letters and send cards.

For the first session, residents make cookies and punch. In March, residents will visit the after school program, where the children will host a reception and the group will hear a guest speaker.

In April, the children will be involved in a seed planting project, joining the elders at the garden plot to plant the seedlings and work in the garden. In late May, there will be a picnic for the group.

They hope to continue the project through the summer and into next year, as many special relationships are expected to come from this sharing.

Organizers say the program will prove beneficial in a number of ways. They note the program will help elders from being isolated from their community. It will provide children with an ongoing history lesson, taught informally by people who have experienced first hand dramatic changes in the world.

Children will not only have the opportunity to brush up on writing skills, but will gain self esteem by learning how to have a dialogue with adults. They will be encouraged to believe their opinions and thoughts are important and worth listening to.

The program will also help restore concern and admiration for elders.

In addition, elders will have an chance to have an impact on the future, affecting the values and aspirations of the children.

Anyone interested in becoming involved in the project, or would like their children to be involved in future projects, can call Mary-Beth Agee at 617-848-3910, ext 416, or Sine Pounder at 617-773-3299.

The nurses, led by Mary O'Gara, director of nursing, and Ann Marin, her assistant also were seeking restoration of three weeks vacation, which had been cut to two seven years ago.

Proceeds To Help Rebuild Home Cortez Family Benefit Dance At QYC Feb. 23

A benefit dance to help the Cortez family of Houghs Neck rebuild their home will be held Saturday, Feb. 23 from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Quincy Yacht Club.

The family, whose home at 85 Mears Ave. was heavily damaged in a fatal fire last month, is planning to rebuild their home on site, said Councillor Michael Cheney, chairman of the benefit dance.

The loss of property has been estimated at $100,000. The home is not fully insured.

Those helping the Cortezes rebuild hope the family can return to their home by late April, provided there are no delays caused by inclement weather. The family is living in a trailer beside their house until it is rebuilt, Cheney noted.

Many local contractors and residents, moved by the tragedy, are pulling together to help the Cortez family which lost three of its members in a three-alarm fire Jan. 24.

The blaze claimed the lives of Reginann Wall, age 2, her brother, Lawrence Wall Jr., 4, and their aunt, Margarita Cortez, 25.

The children's grandfather, Hermino Cortez, was injured while trying to rescue his grandchildren. The children's parents, Lawrence and Gloria Cortez Wall, were at their home in Germantown the night of the fire.

The children were in the house located in the Great Hill section of Houghs Neck for their weekly visit with their grandparents.

The fire started in a second floor bedroom after a quartz electric space heater ignited the bedding on the sofa where Reginann was sleeping.

The fire quickly spread to a third-floor bedroom where Lawrence was sleeping. Several attempts to rescue the children were thwarted by heavy smoke and intense heat from the fire.

Margarita Cortez was found unconscious in a second-floor bathroom. She died two days later at Quincy Hospital.

Cheney said proceeds from the dance will go toward a fund which will help defray the cost of rebuilding the Cortez house.

He said rebuilding the house will require extensive work. Besides new plumbing, he said the roof, third floor and second floor must be replaced. He also said the first floor needs new interior walls, insulation and re-wiring.

On Sunday evening about 50 people, mostly local contractors and neighborhood residents, attended a rebuilding meeting at the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Cheney said the response to help the Cortezes has been "overwhelming."

"So far the response has been just overwhelming. Just about every trade was represented." He also said many people have called to offer their services.

"It is really heartwarming. Many people have called to offer their services. No one wants to sit around idle. They are anxious to get started," he said.

The rebuilding process is underway. On Monday, the interior walls were demolished and a dumpster and shoot put in place. Although many services have been donated, Cheney said funds must be raised to complete the job.

Tickets for the benefit dance are $15 per person, $25 per couple. Tickets may be purchased through Pat Ridden, director of the Houghs Neck Community Council, or by calling Cheney at 471-1493, Judy Kolson at 773-9386 or Peggy Nigro at 471-1336.

They can also be bought at the door and at The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Square.

Among those who have donated their services are Tom Keefe of Keefe Plumbing and Heating; James Riley, carpenter; Bill Arienti, an electrician and vice president of the Quincy Firefighters Association; Mike Berry of Local 103 Electrical Workers; Jack Nigro, owner of Presidential Sheet Metal, and Robert Perry, president of the Quincy Firefighters Association.

Other donors include Robert McDonald, sheetrock, and Raymond Barriau, vinyl siding and major carpentry. George Troupe, president of Suburban Disposal Company of Abington, has donated a dumpster for eight weeks. The tipping fees will be paid by BFI.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson is in charge of acquiring materials. Anyone wishing to donate materials can contact him at 773-9386.

Anyone wishing to donate labor can contact Cheney at 471-1493 or Renee Stone, a next door neighbor, who is coordinating the rebuilding effort.

Cheney said all city departments have been cooperative in the permit process.

Dance organizers include Peggy Nigro, Donald and Roseann McCarthy, Susan Lewis, Jack Walsh, Judy Kolson and Jacqueline Felumero. Quincy Yacht Club is donating its facility for the dance.

Cheney also said food donations for the dance are being accepted. Someone will be at the Quincy Yacht Club between 2 and 5 p.m. before the dance to accept food donations. Food may also be brought to the dance.

Cheney said there will be a cash bar. Mr. Music, a disc jockey, will provide entertainment.

Anyone would like to make a donation but cannot attend the dance can send their donation to Margaret Nigro, 245 Winthrop St., Quincy.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Valentine's Day is for children, lovers and romantics. Well, essentially, yes, but when it comes to affairs of the heart, everyone is included.

Valentine's need not be extensive. A happy note written in your own handwriting ... a telephone call to someone who might not otherwise receive a call.

Some people find it hard to say "I love you," but on Valentine's Day they express that sentiment with special remembrances or gifts. It is also a day that "mushy" sentiments on brightly colored paper are not really taken seriously (i.e. Valentines exchanged by children at school). There, the important thing is the number of valentines received, not the sentiment. As people mature, the sentiment becomes more important than the number.

It takes only a little time to send a valentine, or a note, or to make a telephone call to someone, especially someone who is a little "out of circulation" these days. A little surprise gift will make that someone feel special, and you'll feel good too!

1. If your car pulls to the left when brakes are applied:

- A. Your left front tire may be underinflated;
- B. Your right front brake isn't functioning properly;
- C. Your left front wheel bearing may be failing;
- D. All of the above.

2. When brakes squeal you should:

- A. Replace all pads and linings;
- B. Have the rotors resurfaced;
- C. Ignore the noise, it's normal;

D. Have a mechanic check it out;

E. All of the above.

3. Brake fluid in the master cylinder reservoir should be checked and replenished as needed.

When doing so, use:

- A. Whatever good brake fluid you may have in your garage;
- B. A good brand of brake fluid meeting D.O.T. (US Department of Transportation) specifications, as recommended in your owner's manual;
- C. Any quality grade of 20 weight motor oil;
- D. Any or all of the above.

4. A complete brake system overhaul should include:

A. Rebuilding or replacement of hydraulic components on all four wheels;

B. Replacement of all linings and pads;

C. Repacking of wheel bearings;

D. Realignment of front wheels;

E. And/or all of the above.

5. Most brake linings and pads now are made of:

- A. Steel wool-like strands in heat resistant resin binder;
- B. High friction, heat resistant asbestos fiber;
- C. Ceramic based friction material;
- D. Any or all of the above.

Answers To Brake Quiz

1. D is correct.

2. D is correct, although inspection may disclose that one or more of the other answers also applies. Brake squeal is common, sometimes indicating the need for corrective measures.

3. B is correct. Always use brake fluid from a freshly opened container; use only the specified grade of fluid.

4. A, B and C are correct. Other replacement parts may include hydraulic lines, springs and various hardware parts and fluid (which should be replaced as part of a system overhaul.)

5. A is correct. Asbestos, now considered a hazardous material, no longer is used in brake lining.

How Not To 'Kill Your Battery'

When the temperature goes down, car battery power goes down, too.

Even a fully charged battery delivers only 40 percent of its power at zero degrees - which may not be enough to turn the engine over, especially if it's out of tune.

AAA tells you what you can do to help prevent a dead battery:

• Park in a garage whenever possible. Otherwise, try to park heading south, or along the south side of a building, using it as a windbreak.

• When the engine is warm, (not hot) cover the hood with a blanket (preferably one that reaches all the way to the ground).

• A trouble lamp with a 100 watt bulb mounted on a wide board can be placed on the ground under the oil pan. The heat will then be held in the engine compartment and make starting easier. Remember to remove it before driving away.

• Keep your fuel tank three-quarters full and add a can of dry gas every other fill-up to reduce the chance of fuel-line freeze-up (on late model cars check owners manual).

• Use an approved engine heater. Various kinds are available, including some that permanently attach to the engine. They plug into house electrical current.

When the weather forecaster warns of impending cold weather, AAA has this tip to improve your chance of starting the next day:

Before turning in for the night, go out and start your engine - run it at a fast idle for about 10 minutes. This will help charge the battery and might make the difference you need to start it the next morning.

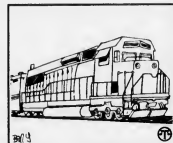

Should Super Trucks Pay Their Fair Share?

Imagine a truck nearly half the size of a city block and weighing nearly 70 tons. Now imagine what it could do to the condition of the roads it rolls over. Somebody has to pay to fix those roads up again, and that somebody, it seems, is you.

It's your tax money that goes to improve and repair America's roads. Unfortunately, you also pay for the damage caused by the trucks that helped destroy the roads in the first place.

A three-year study by the Federal Highway Administration concluded that heavy combination trucks—the 18-wheelers weighing a mere 40 tons—pay (through fuel taxes and registration fees) only 66 percent of their direct pavement responsibility. The payment does not include the cost of traffic congestion; air, water and noise pollution; and increased accident rates such trucks can cause. Nevertheless, trucking interests are lobbying to gain nationwide authority to operate even bigger trucks.

America's railroads can be a much more efficient way to move many goods than would be the larger trucks some have proposed.

Fortunately, there's an alternative. The government should forbid the bigger trucks, because America's railroads have considerable excess capacity, are in excellent repair, are the most fuel efficient and environmentally benign of all modes of transportation, have an enviable safety record and because they operate on private rights-of-way, don't rely on your taxes to do business.

Meet The Artist On Channel 3

The Scarborough Chamber Players interview program, Meet The Artist, with guest Freda Battle, will air on Quincy's Channel 3 today (Thursday) at 1 p.m.

This program is part of a series of more than 20 shows that interview performing artists and American composers originating out of Continental Cablevision of Cambridge.

Made up of 20 minutes of interview and 10 minutes of music, the program will serve to introduce Ms. Battle (composer and performer) as the featured artist in the next event, "Gospel Magic" on the Cultural Series at United First Parish Church (Presidents Church) at 3 p.m. on Feb. 24 in celebration of Black History Month.

The program features the musical life of Gospel composer, arranger, performer, director, and teacher, Freda Battle. Ms. Battle's exciting gospel choir "Family" will perform short selections and Ms. Battle will explain the founding and development of Gospel music and how it drew her interest. "Family" has performed with Charlie Daniels, jazz trumpeter Miles Davis, and Leontyne Price at Symphony Hall.

Virginia Sindelar, a Quincy resident, is host and producer of the show as well as artistic director of the Cultural Series at First Parish.

Freda Battle is a Dorchester resident. She composed more than 75 songs and has arranged numerous traditional gospel songs. A self-taught musician, her style has grown out of contemporary, jazz, swing, blues, and a touch of Latin, calypso, and bossa-nova.

The National Convention of Gospel Choirs and Choruses name her "Director of the Year."

Ms. Battle is part owner of Battlefield Production Company and hopes to one day own her own recording company.

Tickets for the live presentation "Gospel Magic" are $5 for adults, $3 for children under 12. They are available at the door or in advance at the United First Church offices, 1306 Hancock St. For information call 328-0677.

Dinosaur Show At Beechwood Center

Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston, will present the Poobley Greegy Puppet Theater Wednesday, Feb. 20 at 1:30 p.m.

The Dinosaur Show will be the program. Admission will be $3 per child.

The Dinosaur Show

tells the story of Yale professor Othniel Marsh, who was determined to find the bones of the most dinosaurs during the 1870's. He and his students and staff succeeded by digging in several sites in the American West, recently opened by the completion of the Transcontinental Railroad.

The Sioux Indian Tribe, angry because of the U.S. Government's treaty violations, threatened to wipe out Marsh's expedition. Marsh, who was sympathetic to the Indians' plight, convinced Chief Red Cloud that he would present them in Washington in return for permission to dig for fossils on their land. Marsh and Chief Red Cloud became lifelong friends and the process of research of dinosaur fossils began in this country.

Quincy Edged By Weymouth, 4-3

The Quincy hockey team turned in one of its finest performances of the season Monday but lost to Weymouth, 4-3. Quincy's record now is 8-8-2.

Weymouth is 16-3, losing only to undefeated Old Colony League champion Barnstable in League play.

The Presidents ended their season Tuesday with a non-league game with Whitman-Hanson and if they won, they would finish with their first winning record in nearly 10 years. They also would have won as many games as in the last three years combined (7-11, 1-18, 1-15-3).

Quincy got off to a great start as it scored the first three goals against Weymouth, but the Presidents were shackled the rest of the way and the Wildcats scored twice in the first period and once each in the next two periods.

Jimmy Smith scored the first two Quincy goals, the first unassisted and the second with Shane Abboud having the assist. Scott MacPherson scored the third, giving him 34 points on the year and Smith and Abboud assisted.

"We pulled the goalie with a minute to play but couldn't score," said coach Bob Sylvia. "We kept the puck at their end a good part of the game but Weymouth, like Barnstable, is just too big and experienced for us. This was an excellent effort for our kids and both goalies were outstanding. Scott Mann had another super game for us."

Last Saturday Barnstable broke open a 2-2 tie with five unanswered goals to defeat Quincy, 7-2.

Jamie Schatzl scored Quincy's first goal with Jeff Craig and Dave Mullen assisting. MacPherson scored the second with Schatzl assisting.

Barnstable outshot the Presidents, 28-16, and Mann had several excellent saves.

Earlier last week Quincy had to settle for a 5-5 tie with North Quincy, after holding a 5-3 edge with 5:17 left in the game.

The Raiders scored two goals in the space of 2:45 to tie the game.

North had a fine chance to win it in the last 30 seconds but Mann came up with two fine saves against Mike DesRoche to preserve the tie.

Quincy took a 1-0 lead in Jeff Craig's goal with MacPherson assisting.

With the score 1-1 MacPherson and Smith scored to put the Presidents ahead, 3-1, but Steve O'Brien scored for North. Craig came back to give Quincy a 4-2 lead.

North made it 4-3 and MacPherson scored his second goal to put the Presidents ahead, 5-3.

North Shoots For .500

After making a stirring late-game comeback to tie Quincy earlier in the week, the North Quincy hockey team lost to Plymouth, 7-3, last Saturday, dropping its record to 6-8-4.

With two games remaining, first-year coach Tom Benson hopes to finish up with a .500 record.

The Raiders faced Marshfield yesterday (Wednesday) and will wind up against Taunton Saturday night at 7:50 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

"We played a fine game against Quincy, but we had a meltdown against Plymouth and it certainly wasn't one of our better games," said Benson.

In the game against Quincy North overcame deficits of 3-1 and 4-2 and, with 5:17 left in the game, the Raiders trailed, 5-3.

Here North scored two goals in the space of 2:45 with DesRoche converting a rebound of a John Gladu (two assists) slapshot and Lydon jumping on a rebound to score for the 5-5 tie.

DesRoche had two chances to win it for North in the last 30 seconds but Quincy goalie Scott Mann made two excellent saves to preserve the tie for the President.

North's first goal was scored when a pass by Jarnis bounced off a Quincy defender's skate. Steve O'Brien had the second goal and Mike Christopherson had the third goal.

Dennis Ruggere had a fine game in goal for North as Quincy out-shot North, 36-21.

Connolly's 37-Second Hat Trick Gives Bantam B's 3-1 Win

With Quincy's Bantam B hockey team losing, 1-0, with 1:33 left in the game, Brian Connolly scored a hat trick in 37 seconds to give Quincy a 3-1 victory over Needham.

His first goal came when coaches Ernie Zimmerman and Dennis Furtado pulled goalie Tim Wassiege. Kevin Boylen won the face off, Quincy kept the play behind Needham's blue line and Jamie Schatzl set up Connolly, whose shot beat the Needham goalie to tie the score.

Seconds later David Pacino set up Connolly with a fine pass and another quick shot gave Quincy the lead.

Needham pulled its goalie in an attempt to tie the game with seconds left but Boylen won the face off and passed to Connolly as he was going up to center ice. He was tripped just over the Needham blue line and as he was falling, he slid a backhand shot into the open net.

Basketball

Magic Number Now 3 For Quincy

The Quincy boys' basketball team cut its magic number to three to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament, but the Presidents failed to move a step closer when they lost to Taunton, 68-63, last Friday.

Quincy, with a 9-7 record, must win three of its last four games to qualify for the tournament for the first time in several years.

The Presidents played at Silver Lake Tuesday, will be at Barnstable Friday at 7 o'clock and they will close out the season by hosting its annual invitational tournament Wednesday and Thursday.

Quincy will face Dom Savio in the second semifinal game at 8 o'clock on Wednesday and Stoughton will meet Revere at 6:30. The championship game will be Thursday night at 8 and the consolation at 6:30.

Joey Crespi scored 17 points and David Jolley 16 for the Presidents against Taunton and the teams were tied at 26 at the half.

But Sean Geer scored 26 points, including 10 or 11 from the free throw line for Taunton, which improved to 12-5 and qualified for the tournament.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Stoughton, 81-59, as sophomore Robbie Kane had his best game of the season with a triple-double, 24 points, 10 rebounds and 10 assists.

Jolley contributed 17 points and E.J. Nordstrom 14 points and 14 rebounds for the Presidents, who led, 39-23, at the intermission.

Whether or not Quincy makes the tournament, this has been a tremendous turnaround for John Franceschini's team, which was winless a year ago.

Things Just Don't Get Better For North

Things don't get any better for the North Quincy boys' basketball team, which lost twice last week, and saw its record fall to 4-18.

The Raiders played Barnstable Tuesday night, will be at Falmouth Friday night at 7, will host their annual Red Raider Tournament next Monday and Wednesday and will host Weymouth Tuesday at 7.

In the tournament North will meet Brookline Monday at 7:30 with B.C. High facing Fitchburg at 6. The championship game will be Wednesday at 7:30 with the consolation game at 6.

B-R used a 10-0 run to start the second half to pull away from North, which trailed by only one point at the intermission.

Capt. Brian Curran, the number two scorer in the Old Colony League, had another outstanding night for North with 21 points and 15 rebounds. Sophomore Sean Donovan, having a fine season, scored 13 points and Bo Smith and Luke Sheets, making their varsity debuts, each scored seven points.

B-R, which had qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament earlier, improved to 13-3.

Earlier in the week North Quincy lost to Silver Lake, 60-48, despite 17 points by Curran. North trailed, 36-22, at halftime.

North Girls Run Win Streak To 7

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, with its eyes on at least a share of the Old Colony League title and bent on improving its Eastern Mass. Tournament seeding, extended its winning streak to seven last Friday with a 40-27 victory over Bridgewater-Raynham. North is 14-2 (11-2 in the league).

It was North's second seven-game winning streak of the year. It opened with a 7-0 record before losing its only two games.

The North girls played at Barnstable Tuesday, will host Falmouth Friday at 5:30 and will play at Weymouth next Tuesday night at 7 o'clock. They will wind up the regular season next Thursday at Canton at 7 o'clock.

Joanna Rugnetta and Tricia Hughes each scored 10 points against B-R and Kara Sullivan added eight points.

North led, 16-11, at the half and scored the first six points of the second half to pull away.

Earlier in the week North defeated Silver Lake, 43-34, with free throw shooting a key to the win.

While the North girls were 13 for 16 from the free throw line, The Lakers were only 6 for 18.

Five minutes into the second half the Lakers went on a 10-2 run, cutting North's 26-14 lead to just four points.

Cindy White led North with 12 points, including two 3-pointers. Rugnetta had 10 and Tara Miles contributed five.

"We tried to keep the ball out of Traci Kessel's hands and stop Amy Turner from shooting," said North coach Ken Panaro. "After that, it was a matter of getting our act together."

Quincy Girls Win Third In Row

The Quincy girls' basketball team, which has been playing well of late, improved to 7-10 last week with a 66-39 victory over Arlington, its third win in a row.

Quincy hosted Silver Lake Tuesday and Bob Keuther will complete his first season as coach when the girls finish up against Barnstable Friday at 5 o'clock at the Quincy gym.

Chris Barrett held Lea Wedge, the top scorer in the Greater Boston League, to nine points in the win over Arlington.

Amy Baker had another outstanding game for Quincy with 17 points and Erin Doherty contributed 15.

Quincy increased a 30-

25 halftime lead with a 12-0 run to start the second half.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Taunton, 53-39, as Melanie Sullivan scored 11 points and had 12 rebounds.

Erin Dougherty scored nine points and had four assists as Quincy jumped off to a 34-18 halftime lead.

Wrestling

Quincy Wins 4 Out of 6

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy High wrestling team, which got off to a slow start, won four of its last six meets, bringing its record to 6-12. The Presidents compete next in the South Sectional Championships Friday and Saturday at Weymouth.

Quincy's "Men at Work" were impressive in defeating Bridgewater-Raynham, 41-32, for its first Old Colony League victory, and followed up with a split in a triangular meet, defeating Newton North, 31-28, but losing to a powerful Boston College High team, 50-17.

Following a 35-30 loss to North Quincy, the Presidents defeated Hingham, 41-27, and Braintree, 45-21.

Several Quincy grapplers are having fine seasons. Junior Dave Cahill (103) is 10-8 and has filled in at 112 on occasions, a weight class Quincy regularly forfeits.

An up and coming wrestler is freshman Peter Penwarden (119) who is 9-9 in dual meets.

Senior co-captain Matt Fratolillo (125) is having an outstanding season with a 10-2-2 record and has a legitimate chance of qualifying for the state tournament in Springfield. A wrestler must place in the top four in the sectionals to qualify.

Gaining valuable experience are freshmen Ashley Davis (130) and Ti Dowling (135).

"Watch out for these two in the future," said Coach Lou Venturelli. "They are taking their lumps right now, but I'm expecting that to turn around soon."

The real strength of the Presidents' lineup is in the middle weight classes, where sectional and state titles are within reach.

Junior Greg Souza (140) is 17-1 in dual meets and 27-3 overall. Senior co-captain Bob Stanton (145) is 14-4 with many of his wins coming in the 160-pound class. Junior Ally Sleiman (152) is 15-3.

All three wrestlers have high hopes for a sectional title.

Junior Clint Currie has been trying to fill the gap at 160 pounds, while sophomore Mark Nutley (171) and Guy Schipellite (heavyweight) are completing their first seasons of wrestling.

Another legitimate threat for a sectional title is Tom Burton (189).

"Tom has worked very hard to get to this point," said Venturelli. "I'm hoping it's all going to pay off for him." He is 12-2 and won the heavyweight title in the West Springfield tournament.

Adams Shore Fire Station Studied

The mayor said one of the key concerns the plan raises is the peninsula issue. If the Houghs Neck and Germantown stations are closed in favor of a new facility at the intersection of Palmer and Sea Sts., Sheets and other officials are concerned about those areas being cut off from fire service in the event of a flood or accident blocks those two streets from vehicular traffic.

Two officials strongly opposed to the plan are Councillors Michael Cheney and Peter Kolson.

Cheney, who wrote a letter indicating his opposition to the chief last week, noted Sea St. has been flooded at least four times since the Blizzard of 1978. The street was also blocked off due to a fatal hit and run accident Jan. 24, the same night a three-alarm fire in Houghs Neck killed two small children and fatally injured their 25-year-old aunt.

Cheney also said Palmer

St. has been blocked off by automobile accidents.

In addition, Cheney said the configuration of narrow streets in Houghs Neck and Germantown would make response time longer in those areas if emergency equipment were to respond from the corner of Palmer and Sea Sts.

Kolson, who has discussed the idea with the chief, said, "Unless you increase the fire services, it makes no sense to close any fire station. I understand it's a situation the chief has to look at throughout the entire city because of the financial situation."

However, noting the peninsula issue, Kolson added, "We are a peninsula area. We have special needs. I want things left the way they are."

Instead of a new station, Kolson said he supports acquiring several new multi-functional fire trucks to make the department more efficient. Called Quints, the trucks are a cross between an engine and ladder truck.

Kolson noted he, Gorman and several Quincy firefighters have been invited by fire officials in St. Louis to see quint trucks in action. St. Louis has been a national leader in the quint movement.

"From what I can see, we can design it to fit a particular area," Kolson said.

Before rushing to a decision on a new station, Kolson also said he would like to see how the recently activated Tower 1 at Houghs Neck pans out. It was put back into service late last month.

The 12-week therapy group is for men who were victims of physical, sexual and emotional abuse. The group will be led by Tim Lanham, LICSW.

Festival Parade Committee Meeting

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee, which has begun preparations for its 40th annual parade to be held Dec. 1, will meet Wednesday, Feb. 20 at 7 p.m. at the Patriot Ledger, 400 Crown Colony Dr., South Quincy.

All committee members are urged to attend.

The committee, which hopes this year's parade is the most exciting parade in the event's 40-year history, is seeking public input for this year's parade theme.

Last year, the committee received in the highest number of suggestions from South Shore and Greater Boston residents since the public was invited to suggest parade themes in 1982. As a result, the process to select a theme winner is becoming more difficult.

Since this is the 40th year of the parade, the committee requests themes include the 40th year in the suggested theme.

Sheets Orders 8% Cuts In City Depts.

with Police Chief Frances Mullen and Acting Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Weather could also prove to be factor in the final budget package. "If we don't get any more snow," Sheets said, "we might have some money left in the snow and ice account to get some new (police) cruisers.

"Our police cruisers are just in deplorable shape," the mayor said, adding cruisers cannot be bonded because they are not considered a long-range capital improvement.

Sheets said the eight percent cuts in most other departments will be "heavy."

"Eight percent cuts, in most departments, are heavy cuts. I really cannot go higher than eight percent in many departments without cutting out essential services.

"One or two departments are going to go higher than eight percent." As much as FY 92 is shaping up as a difficult financial year, the mayor warned FY 93 will be worse, unless the state formulates a new fiscal policy and begins restoring local aid.

"(Fiscal) 92 will be difficult, damaging but not devastating. FY 93 will be absolutely devastating unless the state comes through with local aid.

"If we project the annualized costs into FY 93 that we've had, we'll close fire stations and schools.

We could end up with as few as 135 patrolmen on the street.

"Even a Proposition 2 and a half override would have minor impact," the mayor added.

In order for the city to regain its financial footing, Sheets said the state must formulate a new financial plan for cities and towns.

"It has to be something totally new and different. The state is just solving its financial problems on the backs of cities and towns."

Under A Chilling Rain City Rally Shows Support For Troops

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Some 100 city officials, veterans and residents turned out to show their support for U.S. troops at war against Iraq in the Persian Gulf during a 45-minute rally outside the James R. McIntyre Government Center last Thursday.

As a cold, steady rain fell from gray, overcast skies, supporters held American flags and yellow balloons to show their support. Some residents with family members in the gulf huddled and hugged one another, comforting each other from the rain and the absence of their loved ones.

Several speakers, including the mother of one soldier in the gulf, stressed the troops must be supported now and after they return home.

Mary Anne Keegan of Quincy, whose 19-year-old son Joseph is in Operation Desert Storm as a member of the 82nd Airborne Division, said, "I would like everybody to just think of what it must be like to have somebody who you love in harm's way and for every soldier that's over there, to love them and support them." Fighting back tears, she added, "Don't give them negative thoughts, give them the positive thoughts."

Regaining her

composure, Keegan's then focused on Saddam Hussein and the people of Kuwait who he has terrorized since invading the small country last summer.

"(Hussein) and his army have taken away homes, raped women, tortured children in front of parents and we see Saddam filling bomb areas with civilian lives so that we can say 'poor Iraq.'"

"What about Kuwait?," she asked, her angry voice stressing every syllable. "What about the incubators that have no power to run, some which were taken from Kuwaiti babies on purpose? They were thrown

To Raise Needed Revenue Cheney Files City Lottery Petition

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Councillor Michael Cheney introduced a home-rule petition at Tuesday's City Council meeting calling for a city lottery as a means to generate revenue for capital expenditures and personal services related to public safety and education departments.

The Sun obtained a copy of the petition before the paper went to press Tuesday. The proposal could have been voted on by councillors or referred to committee at the meeting.

To take effect, the petition would need approval by the city council, Mayor James Sheets, the state legislature and Gov. William Weld.

If approved, the petition would allow the city to establish and manage a city lottery. It would also establish a "City of Quincy Municipal Lottery Account."

The account would consist of all revenues received from the sale of municipal lottery tickets and all other monies credited or transferred from any another account. Revenues would be expended for three purposes:

•The payment of prizes to the holders of winning lottery tickets.

•The expense of administrating and operating the municipal lottery system and any lottery conducted.

•The balance of said account would be dispersed for public safety and education in the following fiscal year.

The petition calls for the creation of a city lottery commission which would have the authority to conduct municipal lotteries on the behalf of the city. The commission would consist of seven non-compensated members, each appointed by the mayor and subject to the council's confirmation.

Four members would be appointed to a three-year term and three members would be appointed to a two-year term. Each year, the commission would elect a chairman to preside at commission meetings.

The commission, subject to city council approval, would revise rules and regulations concerning the administration and operation of a municipal lottery system and the awarding of cash prizes.

No lottery would take place unless and until rules and regulations were adopted.

Under Cheney's proposal, the commission would regulate the type of lottery to be conducted, price of lottery tickets, locations of lottery ticket sales, procedures governing the appointment, removal and standards governing the conduct of lottery ticket agents and the frequency of drawings or selections of winning tickets.

In addition, the commission would decide the manner and method of payment(s) to winning ticket holders, the manner of

$1.9 Million Bond Issue Before Council

The City Council Finance Committee met Tuesday night to act on two bond issues totaling $1,915,000.

Both issues were sent to the council by Mayor James Sheets. One issue, totaling $1,310,000 was earmarked for repairs to city buildings in the interest of public safety. A second loan order amounting to $605,000 was targeted for departmental equipment for police, fire and civil defense.

One councillor said he supports the bond issues, in particular the items for school repairs.

"We've fallen way behind on school repairs," Council President Ted DeCristofaro said Tuesday morning. "I think this bond will help us at least to make some emergency repairs."

"We've fallen way behind in repairing our schools and I think this is a step in the right direction."

Items on the $1,310,000 bond issue were:

•$60,000 for labeled doors and hardware for occupancy certificate at the center for technical education.

•$75,000 for doors and hardware for occupancy at North Quincy High School.

•$40,000 for glass block replacement and coverage substitution for 22 classrooms at the Snug Harbor Community School.

•$75,000 for a fire alarm at the Wollaston School.

•$35,000 for electrical services at Atherton Hough Elementary and Central Middle School.

•$19,000 worth of electrical distribution, of which $8,000 for fuse box new feeders at Webster School, $7,000 to replace feeders first floor at North

Planning Board Hearing On Home Depot March 6

The Quincy Planning Board will continue a recessed hearing Wednesday, March 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber of the James R. McIntyre Government Center, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Square.

The board will consider the application filed by Home Depot USA, Inc. for a planned unit development special permit to construct a single-story, concrete masonry building consisting of a 102,250 square-foot home improvement retail store and an attached 20, 125 square-foot garden center, with parking for 612 cars.

The hearing was recessed Dec. 10.

The project is proposed on a 11.8-acre parcel located on the permitted numbered 179-189 Willard St. on the site of the former Antonelli Ironworks.

Kearns Reappointed QHA Commissioner

Frank Kearns, a long-time advocate of elder affairs and fair housing, has been appointed to a second five-year term as a commissioner on the Quincy Housing Authority by Mayor James Sheets.

Kearns is one of five commissioners who manage, control and govern the local housing authority. Commissioners also hire an executive director to run the authority. The director and commissioners are responsible for knowing the housing needs of its community.

In addition, commissioners must know the housing market, the quality and type of housing and housing needs within the community as well as the range of housing programs available to meet those needs.

Kearns' involvement with the QHA is only part of the housing work he does in Quincy. He is a member of the Quincy Housing Development Corporation Board of Directors and South Shore Elder Services.

Kearns was one of the original members of the Quincy Housing Development Corporation which formed four years ago.

The corporation helped convert a rooming house on the grounds of St. John's Church after the house was moved from Bigelow St. several years ago. The home, which was donated by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, offers affordable housing for the needy.

As treasurer of South

FRANK KEARNS

Shore Elder Services, Kearns has been instrumental in securing federal grants.

One $20,000 grant secured five or six years ago was used to establish a rooming house 49 Newcomb St. for the Protestant Social Services Bureau. Another $20,000 grant secured by Kearns was used to establish a rooming house at 11 Elm St. near Christ Church.

Kearns became involved in civic affairs after retiring as an accountant with the federal government 19 years ago.

"I wanted to see what made the city of Quincy tick," he said. He started attending various meetings throughout the city to get involved and learn the issues and the needs of the community. Today, he continues to attend as many meetings as he can, including the City Council.

In 1979, he was appointed to the Quincy

Council on Aging by then Mayor Arthur Tobin. As a member of the council, he was appointed to represent Quincy on the South Shore Elder Services. SSES also has representatives from 10 towns south of Boston.

Kearns, a 12 year-member, was reappointed to the Council on Aging by former Mayor Francis McCauley and Sheets.

In addition, he is the treasurer of Quincy Community Action and a member of the Quincy Fair Housing Committee as well as many other civic organizations. He also served as senator in the Silver Hair Legislature for two years six years ago.

Quincy Community Action raises money for the poor and collects food for the hungry.

In recent years, Kearns said it has become more difficult to acquire federal grants for local assistance. "We don't have any money. The funds aren't coming through for elder services."

On the bright side, Kearns pointed out South Shore Elder Services, which has two nutrition sites, when he first joined the organization 10 years ago, now has four sites.

In addition, each of the four sites are now open five days a week. Kearns said the sites had been closed one day a week last year.

The sites are funded by federal dollars generated by the Old America Act under title three nutrition.

Proceeds To Help Rebuild Home Benefit Dance For Cortez Family Saturday

A benefit dance to help the Cortez family of Houghs Neck rebuild their home will be held Saturday, Feb. 23 from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Quincy Yacht Club.

The family, whose home at 85 Mears Ave. was heavily damaged in a fatal fire last month, is planning to rebuild on site. The loss of property has been estimated at $100,000. The home is not fully insured.

Dance organizers hope the event will raise at least $4,000.

According to Dance Chairman Michael Cheney, some 55 individuals and 25 companies are pulling together to help the family. As of Tuesday, 90 percent of the demolition work had been completed and temporary wiring installed.

"There's still a lot of work to be done," Cheney said, noting part of the roof must be removed. He said reconstruction will begin within the next and the goal is to have the Cortez family back living in their home by the end of April.

Until they can return, the family is living in a trailer beside the house.

The Cortez family lost three of its members in a three-alarm fire Jan. 24. Reginann Wall, 2, and her brother, Lawrence Wall Jr., 4 died that night. Their aunt, Margarita Cortez, died two days later at Quincy Hospital.

Fire officials said the fire was started by a quartz space heater placed too close to a mattress. The Wall children had been staying overnight at the home of their grandfather, Hermino Cortez, whose efforts to rescue them were repelled by intense smoke and heat.

Tickets for the benefit dance are $15 per person, $25 per couple. Tickets can be purchased through Pat Ridlen, director of the Houghs Neck Community Council, or by calling Judy Kolson at 773-9386, Peggy Nigro at 471-1336 or Cheney at 471-1493.

They can also be bought at the door and at The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Square.

Cheney said food donations for the dance are being accepted. Someone will be at the Quincy Yacht Club between 2 and 5 p.m. Saturday to accept donations. Food may also be brought to the dance.

Anyone who would like to make a donation but cannot attend the dance can send their contribution to Peggy Nigro, 245 Winthrop St., Quincy.

Quincy Civil Defense Updates Emergency Plan

The Quincy Civil Defense Agency has issued a comprehensive, updated emergency management plan that outlines how city departments would work together in the event of natural or man-made disasters.

The 600-page report doubles the volume and updates the emergency plans drafted in 1986, said Tony Siciliano, deputy director of the city's civil defense department.

The report details how disasters such as hurricanes, earthquakes, massive flooding, chemical and hazardous waste spills as well as water main breaks and radiation fallout from nuclear power plant accidents will be handled.

A copy of the plan has been distributed to various city officials, including Mayor James Sheets, Police Chief Francis Mullen, Acting Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, DPW Commissioner David Colton, Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue, School Supt. Robert Ricci, Quincy Hospital Director Ellen Zane and several local media, including The Quincy Sun.

While the plan includes recent statistics on which schools can double as shelters and how many emergency generators are available, Siciliano said it is missing one important chapter.

Siciliano said he hopes the next edition, issued in 1993, will include information on how to communicate with non-English speaking residents. Quincy has more than 10,000 Asian-Americans, many of whom speak only Chinese or Vietnamese dialects.

He said a person in each section of the city would be designated as a liaison to non-English speakers. The person would be familiar with emergency services and be able to direct people to proper authorities, Siciliano said.

Until such a plan is in place, he said volunteer interpreters from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools will help bridge communication gaps public safety officials encounter.

The emergency plan will be put into practice in the spring during a "surprise" exercise, Siciliano said. The mock disaster would involve almost all city departments, including fire, police, Quincy Hospital and the school department.

Robert Prezioso On Dean's List

Robert A. Prezioso of Quincy has been named to the Suffolk University School of Management Dean's Honors List for the fall semester.

Eventide Home Abandons Plans For Six-Story Tower

Bowing to organized neighborhood opposition, the Board of Directors of the William B. Rice Eventide Home voted last week to abandon its plan to add a six-story, 104-unit tower to its retirement facility at 215 Adams St., Quincy.

Eventide presented a preliminary plan for expansion at a neighborhood meeting in January. At the meeting, residents and several city councillors expressed their opposition to the plan. They said they were concerned the addition would increase traffic, pose flood problems and destroy the neighborhood atmosphere of single-family homes of upper and middle income people.

In a statement released Feb. 15, Eventide Administrator Priscilla Urann said, "Many of Eventide's neighbors and our city councillors expressed concerns about the proposal, and in response to those concerns, we have cancelled the plan.

"We hope to continue discussions with our neighbors and city councillors about the future of Eventide," she added.

In a phone interview last Friday, Urann said the board is not considering any additional plans at this time.

"We have no plans to present another plan. We can't speculate on the next thousand years but there are no plans at this time," she said. "There was enough concern that we just wanted to abandon the plan."

Besides neighborhood opposition, several city councillors also expressed their dissatisfaction with the proposal. Council support was vital to the plan since it involved a zoning change.

Councillor Timothy Cahill, who lives near the Eventide Home and spoke out against the proposal last month, said, "I'm very happy with the Eventide Home's Board of Directors decision to abandon its plan." He added the board's decision will help preserve the integrity of the neighborhood.

Another opponent, Michael Linnane of Anderson Rd., called the decision a "victory" for residents in the Adams St.-Furnace Brook area. Linnane, who noted some 100 residents were organized against the proposal, said, "We will continue to work as a neighborhood to preserve the neighborhood as a neighborhood and keep all parcels zoned as Residence A."

"We look forward to keeping the integrity of the neighborhood as it is now. We would be opposed to any development on the (Eventide) property that would involve any zoning changes," he added.

The home is a non-profit intermediate elder nursing care facility.

LEGISLATORS LECTURE at Lincoln-Hancock Community School-State Representative Steve Tobin, right, and Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio recently presented a program on "Why We Have Laws" to 125 third graders at the school. The guest speakers spoke on their involvement as legislators. They discussed how laws are made at the city and state level and how they affect children. The program is part of the third grade curriculum.

18-Day Liquor Store Suspension

By STEVE KAVANAGH
Dollar Saver Liquors, 321 Quincy Shore Drive, has been given an 18-day suspension by the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

The Quincy License board has been notified that Dollar Saver's license is to be suspended from March 12 to April 2. Dollar Saver owner, Gerson Levine of Westwood, has until Feb. 27 to petition the ABCC to allow him to pay a fine in lieu of the suspension.

The fine would amount to 50 percent of each day's gross receipts during the suspension period.

George McCarthy, the chairman of ABCC, said a decision on whether to close the store or allow the fine to be paid would be made within a day or two upon receiving a request from Levine.

Levine has indicated he will ask to pay a fine instead of having the store closed.

Charges against the Quincy store include sale of alcoholic beverages other than those purchased from a licensee; illegal transportation of alcoholic beverages; and filing an application containing false information.

"THIS, TOO, SHALL PASS"

Perhaps the poet who first penned those immortal words had known the agony of a kidney stone. Certainly they are words to remember when afflicted with this condition. Most stones do pass through the urinary tract unassisted, although accompanied by severe pain. In a few cases, the stone may block the urinary tract, causing an infection with fever and shaking chills. Procedures such as surgery, cystoscopy, or using sound waves to break up the stone may be used. However, a physician should always be consulted if a kidney stone is suspected. There are a number of conditions which are known to cause the formation of kidney stones, and treatment of these underlying conditions may help delay or prevent further stone problems. A lower protein diet may be helpful, as it is increasing the fluid intake so that urine will be more diluted.

P.S. Irritation of the urinary tract may cause microscopic or even visible amounts of blood in the urine.

If you are experiencing any of these disturbing symptoms, don't hesitate to consult your physician promptly. Detected in its earliest stages, a medical problem has the greatest chance of being treated successfully. For more information, give us a call here at COMPREHENSIVE CAR-DIAC CARE at 472-2550. We're located at 101 Adams Street, Suite 24 in Quincy. Hours are by appointment.

He Wasn't Interested

Quincy College President Clayton Johnson has recently received two "are-you-interested?" telephone calls.

One from California regarding the chancellorship of a college there.

The other from Boston regarding the school superintendent's post there.

The California call was a serious one: a career opportunity.

He's not sure how serious the Boston call was.

But it doesn't matter. He's not leaving Quincy. At least not for a couple of years.

"Boston certainly would be a challenging opportunity," he says. "But I'm not seriously considering Boston and I don't think Boston is seriously considering me."

As far as California is concerned, he says: "I had a chance to go."

But he feels if he were to leave now he would be "turning his back" on Quincy College and "the people here who care."

He notes it wasn't too long ago that there were others who thought the odds were against the college's survival.

But the college did survive and its future looks bright. Johnson, however, isn't taking any bows.

"Clayton Johnson didn't do it," he says. "It's the people over here who care. They worked at it. They did it."

He says Quincy College is "on the verge of a great breakthrough."

"We're right on the edge of it now." We have a great opportunity to grow and enhance a great future.

Enrollment is booming. The college has what is a unique problem these days of tough times: having to close admissions while other schools are having trouble filling them.

The School of Nursing, for example, has some 300 applications but room for only 90 students.

IT WASN'T A big deal but it was thoughtful and appreciated. Mayor James Sheets remembered all the women employees at City Hall on Valentine's Day, sending each of them a red and white frosted cupcake with candy hearts.

His secretary, Helen Murphy, distributed some 60 of them on a tray from office to office.

Sheets had said he would like to do something for the women and someone suggested the cupcakes.

"It was really a nice gesture," said one observer. "It's the thought that counts."

EVEN THE COST of fishing has gone up.

The fee for a state license is now $17 City Clerk John Gillis informed a fishing enthusiast who was used to paying $12.

"They say the increase is going toward land acquisition," Gillis said.

The license allows the holder to fish in lakes and ponds anywhere in the state.

And it's still $3 cheaper than a wedding license.

"To Saddam I say you are an unloved person. You cannot love. Let go of Satan's hand so that we can all love."

Keegan, who presented Mayor James Sheets with a USA tee shirt displaying an American flag, Bald Eagle and symbols of the four military service branches, said Americans should not forget the plight of the Allied prisoners of war.

"Can anyone imagine what our POWs might be going through? Why is that the International Red Cross cannot get in and see them?"

"Stop and ask yourself why. Military sites they're being placed on. Those people belong to people and they love them and want them to return."

Other featured speakers included Sheets, State Rep. Steve Tobin, John (Jake) Comer, past national commander of the American Legion, Council President Ted DeCristofaro and Hank Bradley, past commander of the Quincy Veterans Council.

The rally was sponsored by the city through Quincy Veteran Services and Quincy Veterans Council.

Since the Revolutionary War, Sheets said men and women from Quincy have paid the price for freedom.

"If we go down Hancock St. to one of the oldest cemeteries in this country, we find veterans who have fought in the first great war of freedom, the American Revolutionary War and in every war since that time, young men and women from this city have gone forth and when necessary paid the supreme price so that you and I can be free," he said.

Tobin, whose brother, Matthew Tobin, and cousin, Timothy Tobin, were among four friends killed in a car accident in 1987, said, "I know from personal experience that there's no greater fear, no greater loss for a parent than the loss of a child. Someone who may be 20, 22 will still always be to that parent a child."

As for the Quincy service personnel in the gulf, Tobin said, "We honor them for their dedication and service and we honor you, mothers and fathers, for raising them to be service minded and civic minded.

"From the bottom of our hearts, all of us pray for their safe return as soon as possible."

Comer, who said Vietnam taught us never to forget the veteran, called on the city's residents to turn out and greet Quincy's soldiers when they return.

"We shall never, never forget any time in the future any man or woman who took the time to serve this nation and make sure, yes, that freedom is not free.

"When they come home, we want to make sure that they march through this great city thousands strong to welcome them back to a grateful nation."

DeCristofaro said, "Gatherings of this nature have to go on and on to let those people know that we do support them and we will continue supporting them and hopefully this will end soon and they'll all be home where they belong."

After the rally, two Quincy mothers expressed hope that their sons would return home soon.

Terry Hornbrook, whose son Rob has been in the gulf since Aug. 12 with the 82nd Airborne, said, "We've kept a candle in the window which will stay there until he does get home.

City Seeks Use Of Meadow Land As Parking Area

The city was attempting to arrange with Rep. Joseph Grossman, the owner, for continued use of Edwards Meadow between Hancock St. and the New Haven Railroad tracks as a parking area.

The current agreement was due to expire July 1.

"It has served a good purpose," said Mayor Thomas J. McGrath. "A parking space was needed, parking has to be provided." He suggested building a road through the meadow to aid parking.

Meanwhile, 85 downtown merchants said the use of the meadow as a parking area for shoppers' cars was a benefit to them while 45 said it had been no use at all.

Marie's Kitchen

Cindy's Potato Chowder

A couple of weeks ago, my husband surprised our son Dom and his family in Florida. While there, our daughter-in-law Cindy made the most delicious potato chowder and naturally the recipe was brought back to me so I could tell you all about it. My husband raved so much about it, and now I know why and I think you will too!

CINDY'S POTATO CHOWDER

- 6 slices bacon diced
 - 3 Tbsps chopped onion
 - 2 cups water
 - 1 tspn salt
 - 5 medium potatoes, peeled and diced
 - 1 cup carrots, finely diced
 - 1 cup shredded spinach
 - 4 cups scalded milk
- Fry the bacon pieces until crisp. Add onion and saute until tender. Add the water, salt, potatoes, and carrots and bring to a boil. Covr and simmer until vegetables are tender. (about 15 minutes).

Add the spinach and cook until it is limp (about 3 minutes). Add the milk and bring to just below simmer point. Do not boil.

Serve immediately. Feeds six (or three hungry guys!).

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Previtte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Cancer Society's Daffodil Days Set For March 19-20

Volunteers in nine South Shore communities are working toward a March 6 deadline for taking advance orders for the colorful American Cancer Society fundraiser, Daffodil Days, March 19-20, when more than 100,000 of the bright yellow flowers will burst forth to announce spring on the South Shore.

Pauline and Dennis Sweeney of Quincy, co-chairmen of the annual effort, said orders from businesses, professional offices and individuals indicate this year will be bigger and brighter.

"This bright flower has come to be a symbol of hope to cancer patients and their families," Mrs. Sweeney said. "Your daffodil donation helps dedicated people everywhere win the fight against cancer."

Advance orders are taken for a minimum of three 10-bloom bouquets at $4 each, while $200 will buy 50 bundles totaling 500 blossoms.

Daffodils are grown on the West Coast and flown here to arrive the day before Daffodil Days. They are then delivered to purchases by volunteers and will open into bloom after an overnight in water.

Orders may be placed with Mrs. Sweeney at (617) 773-8226, at the Cancer Society unit office in Stoughton (617) 341-4210, or with representatives in the other communities covered by the South Shore unit.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Washington in the flesh is taken from us; we shall never behold him as our fathers did; but his memory remains, and I say, let us hang to his memory. Let us make a national festival and holiday of his birthday; and ever, as the 22nd of February returns, let us remember, that while with these solemn and joyous rites of observance we celebrate the great anniversary, our fellow citizens on the Hudson, on the Potomac, from the southern plains to the western lakes, are engaged in the same offices of gratitude and love" ... Oration by Edward Everett, circa 1856.

Between Washington's death on December 14, 1799, and the outbreak of the Civil War, the Washington legend acquired a cultic character that never had been equaled in American history.

Other heroes have come along to compete for attention in the national mythology. Each generation of Americans has its own candidate for the American pantheon. Yet it can be argued that only Washington and Lincoln truly belong to the ages ...

Basketball

Quincy Needs Just One More Win

The Quincy boys' basketball team, sparked by junior Dave Jolley and E. J. Nordstrom, moved to within one win of qualifying for the Eastern Mass. Tournament with two big wins on the road last week. John Franceschini's Presidents, winless a year ago, defeated Barnstable, 79-64, last Friday to improve to 11-7.

Everything came down to this week's annual Quincy invitational tournament. A win in this event will put Quincy into the tournament for the first time in several years.

Quincy faced a strong Dom Savio team in the tourney opener Wednesday night while Stoughton and Revere met in the other game.

Tonight (Thursday) the championship game will be played at 8 o'clock with the consolation game at 6:30. Quincy already owns an easy win over Stoughton.

Jolley and Nordstrom had big games last week. In Friday's victory over Barnstable, Jolley had 25 points and 14 rebounds.

Nordstrom and Joey Crespi each scored 16 points as the Presidents came back from a 33-24 halftime deficit.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost a nine-point halftime lead, but squeezed out a 72-71 decision over Silver Lake.

Jolley scored 29 points and Nordstrom scored 10 of Quincy's last 14 points, including two free throws with 35 seconds left to provide the margin of victory.

Jolley scored the final two baskets of the first half to give Quincy a 46-37 advantage at the intermission.

He continued his surge by scoring the first six points of the second half. Silver Lake rallied and eventually took the lead, 58-57.

Trailing, 69-64, with 1:30 to play, the Presidents forced three turnovers and converted them into six points to take a 70-69 lead. After Brian Kemp scored to put the Lakers ahead, 71-70, Nordstrom capped the comeback with the game-winning free throws.

"We came up with a big big turnovers when we needed them, and E.J. really pulled us through," said a happy Franceschini.

Tough Times Continue For North

This has been a tough year for North Quincy boys' basketball coach Ted Stevenson.

First, he had to play all season without standout Desmond Bellott, sidelined with a broken leg suffered in football. Then, veteran starter Chris Olsen was lost for the year after a few games.

Last Friday night at Falmouth he had to play without Capt. Brian Curran, the second leading scorer in the Old Colony League, and then he lost another starter, Matt Flynn.

"It has been tough on the kids, playing short-handed all year," Stevenson said. "They have played their hearts out and have lost some tough games. It is going to be real hard in our last three games."

The Raiders (5-12) hosted their annual Red Raider Tournament Monday night and last night (Wednesday), and Tuesday they played their final league game against Weymouth.

There was a good deal of interest in the Raider tournament as North faced Bay State League powerhouse Brookline in the opening round while B.C. High, coached by Quincy's Brian Buckley, met Fitchburg, the No. 1 team in Central Mass and coached by former Raider star and Hall of Fame member Doug Grutchfield.

Last Friday North lost at Falmouth, 73-58, with sophomore Sean Donovan, who has had an outstanding year, scoring 19 points.

Earlier in the week North Quincy defeated Barnstable, 78-66.

Donovan had his best game of the season with 26 points, including six three-pointers. Curran had another big game with 20 points and 11 rebounds, Mark Kelliher had 10 points and Evan Kiley chipped in with nine for the Raiders, who led, 38-29, at halftime.

Five of Donovan's three-pointers came in the first half, helping North build their halftime lead.

North Defeats Taunton In Finale

The North Quincy hockey team finished a hot and cold season with a 5-2 victory over Taunton last Saturday to wind up with a 7-9-4 record.

Bill Lydon, the Raiders' top scorer, finished with a bang as he scored four goals against Taunton.

Mike DesRoche and

Sean Vermette assisted on Lydon's first goal, Duane Keegan had the assist on the second, his third was unassisted and DesRoche and Dave Pacino assisted on his fourth.

In between freshman Jim Sapienza scored North's fifth goal unassisted.

Earlier in the week North lost to Marshfield, 5-1, with Mark Zych scoring the goal and Lydon having the assist.

Three North players, goalie Pat O'Donoghue, DesRoche and defenseman Richie Brooks were selected to the Old Colony League all-star team.

Hockey

A Remarkable Turnaround For Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy hockey team completed a remarkable turnaround last week with a 6-2 victory over Whitman - Hanson that gave the Presidents its first winning season in 10 years.

Quincy finished at 9-8-2, giving it as many wins as it had during the last three years combined. The Presidents were 7-11, 1-18, 1-15-3 during those years.

"I'm very happy for the kids and it is a result of their hard work," said coach Bob Sylvia. "In all my years as coach I've never enjoyed working with a group more than I enjoyed this team.

"We had the youngest team in the Old Colony League (14 underclassmen, two seniors playing regularly) and the smallest physically. Most of the other teams, particularly Barnstable and Weymouth, were much bigger and more experienced than us, but these kids never backed down and gave me all they had at all times."

In the finale junior Scott MacPherson, last year's top scorer, finished an outstanding season as he scored four goals and had an assist, giving him 39 points (24 goals, 15 assists) on the year. He was the number three scorer in the league and was named to the league all-star team.

Steve Miller assisted on MacPherson's first goal and Mark Gilmore assisted on his second.

Miller scored Quincy's third goal with MacPherson and Dan Morrell having the assists.

Dave Mullen scored the fourth goal unassisted and MacPherson scored the last two, the first unassisted and the second with the other Scott MacPherson having an assist.

Scott Mann, who was also named to the league all-star team, had another outstanding game in goal.

The Presidents' defense had a strong game with Capt. Shane Abboud, Chris Lewis, Gilmore and Morrell having outstanding games.

"Lewis had one of his most solid games of the season," said Sylvia.

Continental Cablevision Raising Money For Trailside Museum

Continental Cablevision in Quincy, Milton and Randolph is donating part of its revenue from new cable subscriptions to the financially beleaguered Trailside Museum through the end of February.

For the remainder of the month, Continental will donate $10 to the museum for every customer who signs up for Basic Supercable with pay services Showtime and the Movie Channel. New subscribers will receive installation at half price, saving $20 and the first month of Showtime and The Movie Channel free, for a total savings of approximately $35.

The campaign is part of Continental's ongoing efforts to help save the Museum, an educational institution in the Greater Boston area for more than 30 years, which is threatened with closure due to state budget cuts.

"We're the only museum in Massachusetts that offers the kinds of programs we do, yet we were completely cut from the 1991 state budget," said Norman Smith, acting director of the Museum. "At this point we've raised enough to stay open through April; we'll have to close then if we can't raise more support in the next few months."

"Many valuable public resources are being threatened by our state's fiscal crisis, and the Trailside is one that's right in our backyard," said Kathy Taraschi, marketing manager for Continental in Quincy. "We're committed to working with the Museum and with concerned local residents to help keep the Museum open, for the good of our communities."

Continental's Jean Enright, community programming director in Milton, ran a live weekend telethon which aired in December in Quincy, Milton and Randolph and raised $4,000 for the Museum. Enright is also working on a documentary on the Museum which will air on local cable channels later this month. Along with Quincy, Milton and Randolph, several nearby Continental systems have also been airing ongoing public service announcements to raise additional funds.

To subscribe to Basic Supercable, Showtime and The Movie Channel for half price installation, with $10 donated to the Museum, Milton and Randolph residents can call Continental Cablevision at 986-7505. Quincy residents can call Continental at 471-3200, ext. 3044.

Contributions can also be made by sending checks payable to The Museum directly to The Trailside Museum, 1904 CAnton Ave., Milton, MA 02186.

The VNA: Providing Good Health Care At Home

By PRISCILLA MERIOT

Associate Director

What does a baby born with severe breathing problems, an 89-year-old woman recovering from a stroke, a 45-year-old father recuperating from surgery and a 65-year-old man trying to rebound from cancer all have in common?

Like more than a million others, they are staying at home, not in hospitals, receiving the treatment and care they need and deserve from their Visiting Nurse Association, such as the Quincy VNA.

National Visiting Nurse Association's Week, proclaimed by President Bush, is Feb. 17-23. We at the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association wish to bring to the public's attention that home health care services, such as ours, offers a wonderful opportunity for people to receive highly skilled, humane and personalized health care at home while they live amongst their loved ones and comfortable surroundings.

There are times when hospital or nursing home care is necessary, but technology has now been developed to the point where almost any service which is available in a hospital can be offered at home. Infants and children whose survival once depended on constant and very expensive hospital treatment can now grow and thrive at home with their families because breathing and feeding equipment that parents can be taught to use.

Elderly people can retain their independence and dignity, living in their own "castles," assisted by one or many health care providers. With the support of our services, adult children of these seniors can continue working without disruption knowing their parents are receiving help.

Some of the many services of Quincy VNA offers are skilled nursing, maternal-child health care, social services, nutrition counseling, physical, speech and occupational therapies, personal care and hospice. Since our goal is to improve the quality of life, we work closely with community agencies to provide additional services, such as Meals-on-Wheels. Since health problems visit all ages, we do too.

Here are some other reasons why we suggest "staying home is good for you."

• Home health care promotes healing. There is scientific evidence that patients heal more quickly at home and with less risk of developing infection or other problems associated with hospitalization.

• Home health care is personalized, tailored to the needs of each individual, delivered on a one-to-one basis. It involves the participation of the patient and family in health care. We teach people how to get better and stay that way.

• Health care at home reduces stress. Unlike most forms of health care, which can increase anxiety and stress, home care has the opposite effect.

• Home health care is less expensive than other forms of care. It costs only one-tenth as much as hospitalization and only one-fourth as much as a nursing home placement to deal with comparable health problems.

• Home health care keeps families together. What is more important than this, especially in times of illness?

• Home health care prevents or postpones institutionalization. None of us wants to go to a nursing home unless it is the only place where we can obtain the total 24-hour care we need.

• Home health care improves the quality and quantity of life. It has been established beyond doubt that those people receiving home care not only adds years to life but life to years.

• Home health care is given by special people. Employees of the VNA's and those of the Quincy VNA in particular, view their work not as a job or profession, but as a calling. They are highly trained, but it is their devotion, commitment, professionalism and caring souls that make up the very heart of the QVNA.

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association was started in 1905 by a group of far-sighted compassionate members of the Quincy Women's Club. Their first meeting was held in a train station. During the first year, our first visiting nurse, Mrs. William Hatch, made 682 visits. Last year, we rang doorbells almost 60,000 times, serving more than 1,600 patients.

People are needier...for more intense and complicated services, for more support services and for more coordination of care. Making sure people received what they needed was harder and is getting even more difficult relative to the financial status to our economy and the trend to cut down or cut out payment by the government and insurers.

During this National Visiting Nurse Associations Week, we are proud to say we are committed to continuing the mission of bringing home quality health care to those who need it and will dedicate all our resources to help people live at home. For we know, there's no place like home.

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association is a private, non-profit agency serving the people of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Milton. We welcome calls about our services.

Cheney Files Petition For City Lottery

HONORABLE COMPANY - Former Quincy resident Charles MacGillivray, now of Braintree, (far right), recently met with President George Bush and First-Lady Barbara Bush at the White House. MacGillivray is a Congressional Medal of Honor recipient of World War II, and past president of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society of the United States of America. Next to MacGillivray is Medal of Honor recipient (Korean War), Gen. Ray Davis, United States Marine Corps (Ret.), of Stockbridge, Ga.

selecting winning tickets, the designation of city employees to operate the municipal lottery system and the precautions in place to deter fraud or abuse in the administration and operation of the municipal lottery system and in any single lottery conducted.

The city treasurer would serve as the executive director of the municipal lottery system without further compensation. The ex-officio member would assist the commission in performing its duties. He or she would not vote on the commission.

The commission, with the help of the city treasurer, would report to the mayor and city council its estimate of the costs needed to initiate a municipal lottery system.

In addition, the commission would report monthly to the council on the lottery's total revenues, prize disbursements and other expenses for the preceding month. It would also issue a yearly report on revenues, prize disbursements and other expenses and recommend how much money could be earmarked for public safety and the school system.

A public official's liability insurance policy covering the city, commission and municipal lottery officials would be secured to protect the city and officials from and against claims against them arising out of or in connection with the operation or administration of the municipal lottery system.

Cheney said the city lottery would start small with a minimal of costs to cover the printing of tickets. From there, the lottery could grow.

"Anything you started off with would have to be small. You could never compete with the millions of dollars given away with the Massachusetts State Lottery.

"But my feeling ... is people want to support their local community and I think for that reason alone, they would probably buy a lottery ticket.

"They want local dollars to stay here and be used to serve the local people and city services."

Cheney said he would start small for another reason. He does not want city dollars used.

"I want to avoid at all costs the use of city funds and taxpayer dollars to start this off. The program is designed to supplement the budget so that we won't be looking for additional tax dollars."

Cheney, who realizes the odds in establishing a city lottery are stacked against him because Treasurer Joseph Malone is against the idea, said he hopes to improve his chances by recruiting other cities and towns to support the concept.

Two weeks ago, he met with George Cataldo, assistant to Brockton Mayor Carl Pitaro. In recent years, the Brockton City Council has approved a lottery petition four times, only to be stonewalled by the state legislature.

But Cheney sees strength in numbers.

"What I'm really anticipating is communities the size of Quincy all wanting to have their own lottery. I think they ought to be able to"

Noting Quincy will lose a projected $3.2 million in state aid next fiscal year, Cheney said, "They're tying our hands in terms of raising revenue without going to the taxpayer and I think that's unfair."

Storm Drains Seen Pollution Contributor Illegal Sewer Hookups City Target

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy and the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority have begun a joint effort to identify sources of contamination which officials hope will resolve the Wollaston Beach-Quincy Bay pollution problem.

During a recent meeting, city officials and staff members of the MWRA sought to define the causes of existing problems, which might include illegal sewer hookups to the city's storm drains along with breaks and cross connections within the sewer system.

Boston and the MWRA eliminated one significant source of contamination of Quincy Bay with the virtual closure of Calf Pasture-Moon Island outfall system.

The huge amount of sewerage discharged from Moon Island was a focal point of Quincy's 1982 lawsuit which resulted in the court-ordered cleanup of the harbor.

The MWRA has made major improvements at Nut Island, will terminate sludge discharges into the harbor by the end of the year, and will permanently close the Nut Island plant and the Quincy Bay outfalls in 1995.

Recent water sampling done by the MWRA combined with results of beach monitoring by the city and MDC, suggested that sources of beach fecal coliform contamination were primarily nearshore than offshore, indicating storm drains were source of contamination.

As a result, officials have turned their attention to what they consider to be two major contamination contributors: illegal sewer hookups and breaks and cross connections within the sewer system.

DPW Commissioner David Colton said the city

At Snug Harbor School: They're Close To Gulf War

By STEVE KAVANAGH
Snug Harbor Community School students are doing their part to help out the U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

And many of the students have an extra incentive.

More than 40 Snug Harbor students have a relative in active duty either in the Persian Gulf or stationed in Europe or the U.S. The majority are overseas in the Gulf.

The school PTO sponsored the Operation Desert Storm Collection which produced nine large boxes of items for the servicemen and women.

The Weymouth Support Group then shipped the packages free of charge.

Items collected included powdered drink mixes, bandannas, toiletries, batteries, hand held games, gum, skin lotion and flea collars. Kindergarten student Corey Bjork saved his allowance to purchase a hand-held game and razor blades for the soldiers.

Molly Connolly, of the three-year old class, made up a special bag of items, with help from her younger brother, and sent a greeting card.

Students at Snug Harbor have also replaced decorations from three Christmas trees with yellow ribbons.

Snug Harbor pupils with relatives serving in active duty include:

Sheets, Council Differ Over Quint Fire Truck

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Despite some concerns raised by city councillors last week regarding a proposal to buy a new $385,000 multi-purpose fire truck, Mayor James Sheets maintains the purchase is a "step in the right direction."

Faced with budget cutbacks and the prospect of more layoffs due to state reductions in local aid, Sheets said he is trying to provide the maximum level of fire protection "now, not three years from now, not five years from now, not 10 years from now."

At last week's City Council meeting, some councillors questioned whether the new truck, called a 'quint,' is worth the cost. The proposal is the largest item of a $605,000 bond issue for departmental equipment for police, fire and civil defense.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, who visited the Neponset station which houses a quint, said firefighters there have criticized the apparatus for having a short ladder and inadequate hoses. He also said the combination piece cannot be used without at least eight men.

Acting Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, who proposed purchasing the quint several weeks ago, said today's models are vastly improved than the one Boston bought in 1983.

Other councillors, including Charles Phelan and Michael Cheney, said city needs more firefighters, not new equipment. Cheney noted seven pieces have been sidelined in the past because of budget cutbacks or repairs.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson expressed his support for the purchase.

He said the quint would bolster the city's firefighting capabilities with less manpower.

After some discussion, the issue was put into committee and will likely be brought up at the March 3 council meeting.

Gorman said the quint, which would be placed at the Houghs Neck station, would give firefighters more flexibility in fighting fires since it can act as both an engine and a ladder.

An engine usually responds first to a fire and the task of those firefighters

Downtown Plan Due In March

The long-awaited plan for the future development of Downtown Quincy will be released sometime during March, Mayor James Sheets said Monday.

Sheets said the plan, which members of his administration and business community have been working on since last August, should be released to the public within two to four weeks.

Originally, the mayor had set a February deadline on the plan to be issued. However, he said the final report, called an action plan for the revitalization and redevelopment of Downtown Quincy, has been delayed because of the city's budget problems brought on by Gov. William Weld's proposal to cut local aid by 10 percent.

As of Monday, Sheets said his administration has a "pretty good outline" of the plan but added some revisions will be made.

"We're working on it steadily. It is going exceptionally well. We have a pretty good idea of where we are and where we're going in every area.

"It's a matter of getting it all committed to paper. We also want to talk to the business community extensively before we write the rough draft and final draft and that will take place over the next two to three weeks," Sheets said.

"We are at the point where we feel we have enough to sit down and really talk intelligently and constructively and listen creatively to the response to where we are. I am pleased with the progress with have made on it and I am pleased with the quality of it," he added.

Sheets and his administration have been working on the plan since the mayor's Downtown Development Committee issued its report and recommendations last August.

According to the mayor, the plan's "cornerstone" is the Quincy Partnership, made up of laborers, business people, community associations and other interested organizations.

"The partnership will drive the whole downtown plan and that's why it's important for me to be able to spend a couple of weeks just talking with labor unions, business organizations and entrepreneurs to make sure the plan has its input before it's put into final form," Sheets said.

The mayor said he has not yet decided how the plan will be released to the public. He said he may call a press conference, present it to the City Council or do a combination of both.

Sheets, DeCristofaro Oppose T Buses For Point Students

A proposal to require middle school children in Quincy Point to use MBTA buses instead of school buses to get to the Sterling Middle School is opposed by Mayor James Sheets and Council President Ted DeCristofaro.

There was a possibility the proposal would appear before the Quincy School Committee at its meeting Wednesday night.

In a letter written by DeCristofaro to Sheets dated

Feb. 26, the council president said he is "absolutely and adamantly opposed to this change in transportation."

"These children have been subject to more inconveniences that the children in any other school within the city of Quincy. I feel it is about time we let these children get their education without being inconvenienced any further."

"I am also very concerned relative to the issue of public safety in this proposed change of transportation," DeCristofaro added.

As Ward 2 councillor, DeCristofaro represents the Quincy Point area.

Responding to the letter, Sheets said he supports DeCristofaro "100 percent."

The mayor noted the issue of school bus transportation in Quincy Point dates back to 1988 when the School Committee voted to consolidate the Point

Webster and Sterling Middle Schools. As a result, middle school students in Quincy Point were transferred to the Sterling Middle School located in West Quincy.

At the time, Sheets said a commitment was made to Quincy Point students and parents to provide transportation to the Sterling School.

"I think we have to keep our commitment on that," the mayor said.

New Director For Father Bill's

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition has hired Joseph Finn, a former Franciscan priest, as the new Executive Director for Father Bill's Place Shelter, according to Coalition spokesperson, Janice Whalen.

He will begin his new duties Monday.

Finn replaces Nancy Powers, who resigned as Executive Director last month to take a job in Pennsylvania as a human services training and development specialist.

Powers, who had also worked with the Salvation Army and helped to establish its homeless shelter in 1984, had overseen Father Bill's Place from its beginnings in St. John's Church to its permanent home at the former Registry Building.

She decided to resign, she told the Coalition board of directors last month, because she and her husband could not afford to buy a home in Massachusetts.

Finn, who is currently Assistant Director of the Overflow Shelter for Positive Lifestyles in Mattapan, was chosen as Powers' successor from a field of 45 candidates, Whalen said, and is looking forward to his duties as Executive Director of the 65-bed facility.

"He's very enthusiastic about it," Whalen said, "I can't wait for him to start."

PNEUMONIA

There are three reasons for pneumonia, none of them related to wet feet or going out in cold weather without a hat. Pneumonia is caused by a bacterial, viral, or chemical irritant. There are at least fifty different irritants which can cause various types of pneumonia, but by far the most common are the bacterial forms: pneumococcal, streptococcal, staphylococcal, and klebsiella pneumonia. The patient is severely ill, with a high fever. Bacterial pneumonias respond to antibiotics. Viral pneumonias ("walking pneumonia") are usually less severe. They are most often caused by the Mycoplasma organism, and can be treated with tetracycline.

Convalescence is lengthy. Aspiration pneumonia is caused by foreign matter in the lung. Oily nose drops are a prime offender. A secondary infection often develops because of the irritation, and antibiotics are generally given.

P.S. About 95 percent of those who contract pneumonia survive it.

Because a serious infection like pneumonia can travel quickly and worsen very swiftly, the warning signs should never be ignored. High fever and other signs of illness are your body's way of indicating that it is fighting infection and needs help. Form a partnership for health when you visit us here at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE. We're located at 101 Adams Street, Suite 24 in Quincy. For an appointment, please call 472-2550. Condon Close To Run Joanne Condon is moving closer to a run for her old Ward 6 City Council seat.

"I'm very seriously considering it," she says. "I have just about made my decision."

She says she will be making an announcement after March 20.

It sounds like "yes." But she says she isn't going to say anything more until after March 20.

March 20, incidentally, is the date of the Quincy Fire Chief's civil service exam. Her husband, Deputy Joseph Walsh, is one of those who will be taking that exam.

"He has been studying hard," she says. "And I don't think it would be fair for me to make any kind of announcement until after the exam."

When Walsh isn't studying, he is telling everyone that she is going to run.

"He wants me to run," she says. "He is very supportive."

In the recent federal census she was registered as Joanne Condon Walsh. She married Walsh a year ago. That's how her name will appear on the ballot if she runs.

"But maybe the bumper stickers will just say 'Joanne,'" she laughs.

She sounds very much like a candidate.

CONDON

City Clerk John Gillis will ask the City Council at its March 4 meeting to raise the male fees to $10.

And at the same time will ask that the fees for spayed females and neutered males also be increased from $7 to $10.

GILLIS

"From now on," says Gillis, "there will be no discrimination among the dogs in the city."

There are approximately 2100 licensed dogs in Quincy, he says.

The receipts from the dog license fees go to a good cause: the purchase of new books for the Thomas Crane public libraries.

QUINCY'S FRANK KEARNS, also known as the Claude Pepper of the South Shore, for his work with senior citizens and the needy, is as spry a 79-year old as you'll ever meet.

How does he stay in shape? He credits giving up cigars and alcohol 19 years ago. Hasn't touched either since.

And he swims a half hour every day.

KEARNS

SPECULATION PERSISTS that former Mayor Frank McCauley will get a state appointment.

McCauley worked for both Gov. William Weld and Treasurer Joseph Malone in last fall's election campaign.

McCauley says those speculating about an appointment for him are more convinced than he is. He insists he isn't sitting by the telephone and waiting for a call.

McCAULEY

If McCauley should get that call he would be the second Quincy resident tapped for a state appointment.

Paul Anderson, former Quincy Public Works Commissioner who was with James Rappaport, unsuccessful candidate for U.S. Senator, is now Under Secretary of Transportation.

ANDERSON

WOMEN HAVE COME a long way in the equal rights department.

And now, you might say, female dogs apparently are going to get their fair share of equality.

Female dog licenses in Quincy are $10. But male licenses are now only $7.

THE COST OF panhandling is going up. Hugo (Flip) Fabrizio was approached by a man near City Hall the other day who asked him if he could have a dollar so he could pay his way to Boston on the T.

Fabrizio felt sorry for him, reached into his pocket and came up with a bill.

As the guy rushed off, Fabrizio checked his pocket and realized had given him a $20 bill instead of a $1. Too late.

The next time he is asked, Fabrizio is going to be sure he has his glasses on before he reaches into his pocket.

HAD A BAD DAY? It could be worse. How would you like to be locked in a room with Howard Cosell?

City Targets Illegal Hookups

and MWRA have begun the effort by first examining the city's drainage system in the Milton Rd. area. Colton said the program was started there "because it is small and manageable."

City workers using equipment supplied by the MWRA are videotaping pipes. The equipment can record the pipes' condition and can detect breaks and illegal connections. Video tapes of potential problem areas are being turned over to the city.

Of the 3,000 feet of pipe recorded as of last Friday, Colton said only one illegal hookup is suspected in the Milton Rd. area. He declined to give its location, preferring to wait to see whether the illegal hookup is confirmed within the next week.

Homes suspected of illegal hookups will be logged. To confirm the illegal connection, a liquid die will be flushed down the toilet. If the die is spotted in the storm drains, the illegal connection is confirmed.

The only connections in the drainage system should be catch basins and street tie-ins, Colton said.

The cost to correct an illegal sewer hookup could run from $1,000 to $4,000, Colton said, depending on the length of pipe required to make the proper hookup to the sewerage system. He said excavation work alone costs $1,000.

Payment will likely be handled on a case by case basis, the commissioner said. However, he believes most illegal connections would probably be found in older homes.

In that case, the city would have to pay for the correction because the city did the illegal hookup when the home was built many years ago.

Referring to connections in older homes, Colton said, "If they were not installed wrong, they were installed wrong by the city and the city would have to pay to correct it."

Colton said the program calls for the inspection of some 100 miles of drainage pipe over the next three to four years in the Quincy Bay area from the tip of Houghs Neck to the tip of Squantum.

"We're focusing on the Wollaston Beach area first because that's where most of the attention is. That's where everybody knows there is pollution," Colton said, adding neighborhood beaches will be examined.

Besides evaluating the drainage system, the city is also focusing in on its sanitary sewers in the Wollaston Beach area. Quincy has contracted Weston and Sampson Engineers, Inc., to evaluate and test the sewer lines for leaks from Fenno St. north to Atlantic.

A portion of the $250,000 contract to Weston and Sampson is funded in part by the Department of Environmental Protection.

Once a popular swimming and recreational area, Quincy Bay and pollution have become virtually synonymous over the last decade or so. By rectifying the contamination problem now, officials hope one of the city's largest natural resources is cleaned up soon.

"Our ultimate goal is to bring the number of beach closings to zero or as close to zero as possible. We want people to be able to swim and dig clams again," Colton said.

Asked whether the goal is possible, the commissioner replied, "It's possible within limits. We have to remember (Wollaston) is an urban beach. It's not a rural beach like Chatham.

"It's in a high traffic and densely populated area," he said, adding there are other pollution contributors besides leaky sewer pipes and illegal connections.

For instance, he noted oil and other hazardous waste materials from automobiles can be found on Quincy Shore Dr., a heavily-traveled route. Those materials can wash away in heavy rains and eventually flow through storm pipes and into the bay.

Colton also noted oxygen found in rain water can accelerate the growth of bacteria in pipes. The bacteria can also seep into the bay.

"My biggest fear regarding this project is solving the wrong problem," Colton said, referring to illegal sewer connections. "There's a million theories as to what is polluting Quincy Bay."

However, the commissioner said he believes illegal hookups are probably one of the biggest pollution contributors.

"One illegal sewer connection can do a lot of damage to the beach," he added.

City Council Bars Raises Granted By School Committee

The City Council, in an unprecedented action, voted to instruct the City Auditor not to honor the $200 salary increases granted to School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard and Asst. Supt. Albert H. Cochrane by the School Committee.

Feb. 28-Mar. 5 1947
44 Years Ago

Councillor Russell T. Bates led the attack on the raises that would have made Dr. Gossard's salary $8,200 and Cochrane's $5,400.

But Bates failed in a bid to forestall a $500 raise for Dr. Ensio K. F. Ronka, director of City Hospital, and a $200 increase for Public Works Commissioner James P. Donovan.

Councillor Thomas F. Gilmartin succeeded in getting the Council to reject a $4,500 for creation of the new school post of assistant superintendent for maintenance and business affairs.

New Fire Station Proposal Foolishness

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Quincy Sun on Feb. 14 had an article on planned or suggested actions to eliminate two fire stations, one in Germantown - one in Houghs Neck - and to build a new station at Palmer and Sea Streets, inferring the library would be eliminated.

Such a foolishness for a City that has no money to destroy three buildings and build another - at what cost? The present locations are central to the community they serve. To place a fire station at such a busy intersection is foolhardy - to eliminate the library is thoughtless. It's the best looking building in Adams Shore and serves its purpose well.

The silliest part is the declared acquiring of two "Quints" at $380,000 each, when the problem of fire service is not location or equipment - but manpower. Each piece of equipment, I understand, requires three men to man it. Houghs Neck has two pieces of equipment. Only one piece can be used as they have only three men.

Asks Mayor To Reconsider Adams Shore Fire Station

(The writer of the following letter submitted a copy to The Quincy Sun for publication).

Dear Mayor Sheets:

I am writing to you in regards to the articles in the Quincy papers about putting a new fire station in Adams Shore, where our library is located.

I hope you reconsider your thinking about this. The Adams Shore Library means a lot to many people in this area.

First and foremost, is the elderly people, who can't get to the main library. Many others of us who have tried to go to the main library have trouble finding a parking place nearby. (Last year, I got a $15.00 fine for parking too close to a corner!) This building has a big sentimental factor also for many of us residents. It has many memories of earlier days when we brought our children there for various programs. We made and met many friends and neighbors in this building. We have had community and civic gatherings here.

I know sentiment doesn't stand much of a chance in this fast paced, budget-cutting age, so here's the practical side.

Wouldn't it be cheaper to hire a couple of more firemen at each fire station in Houghs Neck and Germantown, than to go the expense of building a new fire station?

Thank you for reading my letter.

String Bean Fritters

Recently, when I had guests for dinner and served a variety of foods, the one that received the most raves were string bean fritters, a family favorite.

Our friends Shirley and John had never tasted them before and the next day Shirley called for the recipe. With this recipe any vegetable can be used in place of the string beans. They include, zucchini, asparagus, cauliflower, artichoke hearts, shredded potato, etc. Some vegetables have to be precooked if not already done so. (Not potato) flours and the water. Crush the string beans a bit, so they mix well with the flour mixture. Blend well, and if you wish you can add salt and pepper.

In a heated frying pan with about half an inch of oil in the pan, (I mix olive oil with vegetable oil), drop the mixture with a teaspoon or tablespoon, depending on the size you wish. Fry and brown on each side until crispy and drain on a paper towel. Put in platter and keep in warming oven if you're not planning to serve them immediately. Great for appetizers!

STRING BEAN FRITTERS

- 1 large can string beans
(French style are the best)
 - 1 egg
 - About 1/3 cup of grated cheese
 - A couple Tbsp flour
 - About the same amount of pancake flour
 - Water (just enough so the mixture resembles pancake batter)
- In a bowl, beat the egg, cheese, both

Spotlight On HEALTH AND FITNESS

The Best Way To Lose Weight

Well, that time of year is right around the corner. Spring is in the air and bikinis are on the rocks!

If you are faced with a few extra pounds which need to be eliminated, let me assure you that you are not alone.

like to focus on cardiovascular exercise today. Cardiovascular or aerobic exercise can be any exercise which entails increasing your heart rate along with breathing and muscle function.

Fitness doesn't have to be done at any certain time or place. It doesn't come from a pill or a shake, and it doesn't have to be expensive. All you need is your favorite pair of sweats and some good old fashioned motivation.

Fitness can be achieved through a proper diet and a good exercise program. I'd

You can start at any time, put on your comfy clothes and appropriate footwear, if necessary, and go for a walk, jog, bike ride, aerobic class or swim.

When starting your fitness regime, keep in mind for best results you need to take sensible, safe, long range approaches to reaching and maintaining your ideal fitness results.

Whether you want to lose 10 pounds or 100 pounds, the formula is simple. Forget all the fads and concoctions you have heard about in the past and just remember this: "The best way to lose weight is to combine a modest reduction in calories with a low to moderate aerobic exercise of 20 minutes at least three times per week".

If you plan to start your aerobic program soon, remember it's always beneficial to check with a doctor first.

Nutrition Hotline In March

How can I feed my family well with the least money? What is the best fat to eat to help lower blood cholesterol?

Should I be concerned about uncooked eggs? What are good sources of fiber?

This and other questions on nutrition and food safety will be answered by the University of Massachusetts Cooperative Extension Nutrition Hotline during March 1991 to celebrate National Nutrition Month. Massachusetts residents may call (800) 622-3637 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday. Home economists and dietitians with Cooperative Extension will answer questions on food budgeting, fats and cholesterol, fiber, food safety and general dietary guidance. Questions on individual diets should be referred to a consulting dietitian or physician.

Cooperative Extension

offers informal education in nutrition, family economics, youth development, and agriculture. Information is available through conferences, home study courses, media and bulletins.

For more information about Cooperative Extension, and to ask nutrition questions, call the Nutrition Hotline (800) 622-3637 during March and "bite into a healthy lifestyle".

For Most Ibuprofen Should Not Be A Problem

By Steven M. Bunick
R.Ph.

One of the most popular over-the-counter (O.T.C.) pain relievers, Ibuprofen, has recently become the subject of consumer concern.

Ibuprofen is the active ingredient in Motrin IB®, Advil®, Nurpin®, Medipren®, and others. Ibuprofen is used to relieve aches, pain, fever, inflammation and the pain of menstrual cramps.

The propensity of Ibuprofen to aggravate or induce stomach pain and ulcers is well documented. For most consumers, however, the proper use of O.T.C. Ibuprofen should not present a problem.

The first step in choosing an O.T.C. pain reliever is to assess your particular condition with an eye towards symptoms, allergies and medication history. Consulting your pharmacist or physician can be helpful in choosing and safely using an O.T.C. pain reliever. If you choose to take Ibuprofen, a few measures can be taken to assure you get a maximum benefit with a minimum of side effects:

- Read the enclosed patient information sheet.
- Do not take Ibuprofen if you are allergic to aspirin or other pain relievers or if you have a history of any stomach problems.
- Take Ibuprofen with at least 8 ounces (1 full glass) of water.
- Take Ibuprofen with food or with an antacid containing Magnesium and Aluminum Hydroxide (e.g. Maalox®, Mylanta®).
- Avoid drinking alcohol which can increase the likelihood of stomach problems.
- Do not lay down for 15-30 minutes after taking Ibuprofen to prevent swallowing difficulties or esophageal irritation.
- Follow dosage instructions on the package. Do not overuse this medication.
- Do not use in pregnancy without the approval of your physician.

- Tell your doctor or dentist you are taking Ibuprofen before undergoing any surgical procedure.
- Avoid taking Ibuprofen with Acetaminophen (i.e. Tylenol®). Aspirin or other pain relievers without consulting your pharmacist or physician.
- Do not use in children under 12 years of age.

The recent availability of new and stronger O.T.C. products has increased the risks of side effects and drug interactions. The safe use of Ibuprofen and other potent O.T.C. medications can be accomplished by reading and following directions for use, patient information sheets and consulting your pharmacist or physician for information and assistance.

(Steven Bunick, R.Ph. and Thomas Libby, R.Ph. of Baxter Pharmacy, 385 Washington St., Quincy, an independent, community pharmacy, are available at 773-7733 to answer any of your questions about O.T.C. and prescription medications.)

How To Deal With Sports Injuries

By Daniel S. Karp
Lic. Ac.

The last few years have seen a tremendous increase in the popularity of running. With this increase come thousands upon thousands of running-related injuries. Aside from sprains and strains, shin splints are the second most common form of injury, according Runner's World magazine. Sports-related injuries can take many forms. They include bruising of various severity, muscle tears, tendon injuries and tendon inflammation. Acupuncture is an effective method of treating all these conditions.

Besides acupuncture, other measures are also important, such as resting the injured part, and the use of ice packs which cool the tissues. Acupuncture for tennis elbow has shown itself to be an excellent alternative to steroid injections.

Here is a case report: An All-American quarterback with Brigham Young University, now with the Chicago Bears, was suffering with a sore passing arm and unable to play against the University of Hawaii. A single acupuncture treatment on the day before the game helped him to play the entire game where he threw sixty passes, breaking two WAC records. He said: "I'll always appreciate your help and will forever remember it."

With acupuncture, in many cases tissue swelling (known as edema) disappears within minutes. In practice this means that the injury is dealt with more effectively, and therefore recovery time is shortened.

Acupuncture is an important therapeutic modality that can be of great help in the prevention and treatment of athletic injuries.

Chiropractic Update

by Mark C. Jaehnic D.C.

CAN CHIROPRACTIC CARE HELP ARTHRITIS?

In order to answer this very commonly asked question it is important to understand that arthritis is a disease or condition that actually means an "inflammation or irritation of a joint." There are several different types of arthritis such as Gouty Arthritis, which typically affects the big toe, and Rheumatoid Arthritis, in which one usually suffers swelling of numerous joints and deformed hands and/or feet. The most common type, however, is called Degenerative or Osteoarthritis, in which the "wear and tear" on a joint causes increasing pain and stiffness. It is important to note that this "wear and tear arthritis" will often occur faster in a joint after it has been injured, such as with a football player who has hurt his knee or a person who has suffered a whiplash injury to his or her neck.

While there is no absolute cure for arthritis, chiropractic care has proven to be helpful in overcoming the pain and crippling effects of this disabling disease. The Doctor of Chiropractic uses a number of techniques which can provide significant relief such as manipulation, ultrasound, heat and ice therapy, and carefully programmed mild exercise. Arthritis patients should consider chiropractic as a drug free alternative to easing their joint pain and stiffness.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark C. Jaehnic, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock Street, N. Quincy 773-4400.

Measles, Mumps Rubella Immunization Clinics Scheduled For Sixth Graders

Quincy public school nurses will conduct measles, mumps and Rubella (MMR) immunization clinics during the first week of March for public school students entering grade seven next year, announces Health Services Coordinator Rosalie Barry.

Outbreaks of measles have been occurring nationwide among children, adolescents and young adults despite the fact that a great majority had previously received the MMR vaccine. The outbreaks have prompted the American Academy of Pediatrics and the Immunization Practices Committee to recommend that a second dose of MMR be given.

Accordingly, the state Public Health Council has put forth revised state immunization regulations which state: "No student shall be admitted to grade seven (or in case of ungraded classroom, beyond the 12th birthday) without a second dose of MMR (effective Aug. 1, 1991.)

Notification of the new mandate was recently sent home to parents and guardians of all grade six students. Since only a few of the present six graders have had a second dose, the vaccine will be administered to students, free of charge, by Quincy school nurses at each middle school during the first week of March.

All clinics will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. The schedule is: Monday, March 4, at Broad Meadows; Tuesday, March 5, Atlantic; Wednesday, March 6, Central; and Thursday, March 7, Sterling.

No vaccine will be administered without written parental permission.

Six graders lacking a second MMR are urged to take advantage of the service. It is important for the protection of students and is a state mandate for entrance to the seventh grade.

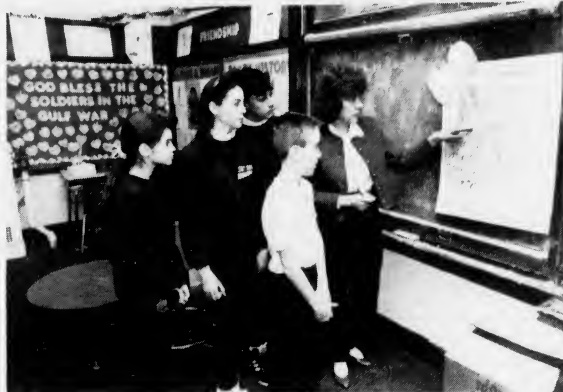

Parents must return permission slips to their child's school before Friday, March 1.

D. Scott Deware

Not too many days ago, we ushered in a New Year. With age old custom many people mullied over personal faults in the closing days of the old and resolved and do certain things better, or at least differently, in the new year. If a tabulation was made, it would probably be proved that multitudes of people resolved to stop smoking. An enormous number of people pledged to indulge in more leg exercise with less hand tomouth action to cut down on calories and lose weight. Again, if tabulations were made, it would probably be proved that most of these, and other well intentioned resolutions have by now been broken or forgotten.

There is one resolution every one can make EVERY day - and keep. Make it a daily habit to think of TWO of your blessings for every ONE gripe or complaint. Since the good things in life far outnumber the bad breaks, this can be an easy resolution to keep. Fact is, instead of just thinking about the two for one; give silent thanks. Nothing is ever so bad in life that it can't be worse and that in itself is a good thing in life to be thankful for. This easy to keep daily resolution can change an entire view of life. Try it and see ...

Tourney A 10-Year Turnaround For Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN

When John Franceschini took over as Quincy boys' basketball coach six years ago, he inaugurated a Presidents' youth program which saw many future Quincy players come up under the coaching of Bob Cochrane and Ron Mariano.

Franceschini also saw most of his players take part in summer leagues to gain experience.

It was a long, hard struggle for him, but this year, after five losing seasons, his hard work and perseverance finally paid off and, following a winless (0-20) season, the Presidents qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the first time in 10 years.

Quincy's 79-57 victory over Revere last week in the consolation game of the annual Quincy Invitational Tournament put it into the tournament with a 12-8 record, the minimum qualifying figure.

It not only is the first tournament appearance in 10 years, but it is Franceschini's first winning record. The Presidents' records over the past four years were 0-20, 8-12, 2-18 and 0-20.

"This has been a six-year quest by a great coaching staff," the Quincy coach said. "These kids played together under Bob Cochrane and Ron Mariano in the youth leagues and then came here and coaches Ray Papile, Mike Dracchio and Shawn Burns worked with them to make them better players."

Quincy had a chance to qualify for the tournament a night sooner but a poor start cost it a 69-66 loss to tourney champion Dom Savio in the opening round.

"We wanted to win our tournament but our main goal was to make it to the tournament," Franceschini said.

Revere, a 57-54 loser to Stoughton in the opening round, stayed with the Presidents early but Quincy got rolling and took a 49-29 halftime advantage.

Quincy's pressure defense, which was outstanding throughout the season, held Revere to 35 percent shooting in the first half, while the Presidents hit 54 percent from the floor.

"The defense was superb," said Franceschini. "We did a fine job of containing their big scorer (Matt Fueruello) and holding him to 13 points. It was a real team effort."

Quincy's front court of E.J. Nordstrom, David Jolley and Joey Crespi was outstanding and combined for 33 of the team's first half points.

Quincy got off to a ragged start against Dom Savio, which defeated Stoughton, 65-49, for the tournament title, and the Presidents trailed, 23-7, before waking up.

They came back strong and trailed by only three, 32-29, at the half.

Quincy took a 50-49 lead and, after the lead changed hands the next three times down court, Quincy widened its lead to four points.

However, Don Savio rebounded behind sharpshooter Tim Hallahan (25 points), who had been on the bench for five minutes with four fouls, and took the lead for good.

"We just played poorly and you can't play like that in a game that meant so much," said Franceschini.

Nordstrom paced the Presidents with 23 points, Jolley had 14, Ralph Bevilacqua 11 and Joey Crespi nine.

Despite the loss of outstanding senior co-captains Bevilacqua, Nordstrom and Mike Norton, next year's prospects look good.

Franceschini will have several varsity returnees and Dracchio's freshman team had an excellent season. Several of his players look ready to move into the varsity picture.

Quincy Faces Somerset, North Girls Meet S-L

The Quincy boys' and North Quincy girls' basketball teams opened Eastern Mass. Tournament play last night (Wednesday). The Quincy boys, in the tournament for the first time in 10 years, were seeded last at 12-8 and faced four-seeded Somerset (16-4) of Somerset. If they win, the Presidents will play the Durfee (16-4) - New Bedford (12-7) winner Saturday at a time and place to be announced.

The North Quincy girls (17-3), in the tourney for the seventh time in 11 years and seeded fifth, played Silver Lake (13-7), a team they defeated twice during the season. If they win, the North girls will meet the Dartmouth (9-11) - Dennis Yarmouth (18-2) winner Friday night at 7 at the site of the highest seed.

Manganaro Receives Full B.C. Scholarship

Sal Manganaro, who completed an outstanding hockey career at North Quincy High last year when he led the Raiders in scoring with 45 points, has accepted a full scholarship to Boston College.

Manganaro will sign his letter of intent on April 10. The former Raider star, whose family is steeped in hockey tradition and who came up through the Quincy Youth Hockey Association program, is leading the Worcester Academy team in scoring this year. Manganaro was approached by several other colleges, including the University of Connecticut.

North Ends Agonizing Season

The North Quincy boys' basketball team completed a frustrating season last week when it lost both of its games in the annual Red Raider Tournament to finish up with a 5-15 record.

It was a tough season for coach Ted Stevenson, who was forced to go the entire season without standout Desmond Bellot, who broke his leg in football, then lost starter Chris Lewis early in the season and, finally, lost another starter, Matt Flynn, late in the year.

The Raiders were led by Capt. Brian Curran, the number three scorer in the Old Colony League with a 21-point average, and Sean Donovan, an outstanding sophomore, who had an average of over 17 points a game and had several three-point shots.

North brought down the curtain on the regular season when it lost to Boston college High for the second time, 77-62, in the consolation game of the Red Raider Tournament.

Donovan had a big night for North with 24 points. Curran added 15 and Mark Kelleher had 13.

In the opening round of the tournament North was defeated by Bay State League power Brookline, 85-55.

Donovan had another big game with 23 points and Even Kiley added 10 for the Raiders.

The tournament was won by Brookline, which defeated Fitchburg, 86-66, in the title game.

In the opening round Fitchburg had defeated B.C. High, 74-69.

There was considerable Quincy interest in the tournament with B.C. High being coached by Quincy's Brian Buckley and Fitchburg by former North Quincy all-scholastic and Hall of Fame member

Quincy Families Host Newfoundland Players

The 18th annual Quincy Kiwanis International Youth Hockey Tournament provided the usual excitement last week despite the number of teams dropping from 52 to 33 because of economic conditions.

However, several out-of-state teams were able to make the trip including those from California, Michigan and Newfoundland.

Beverly Reinhardt, manager of the host Quincy Youth Arena, commended the many parents who played host to the players from Mount Pearl, Newfoundland.

"Quincy people are the most hospitable in the world," said Beverly. "The Newfoundland boys made a banner and put it in the Arena Sunday. It read "Thank You Quincy from Mt. Pearl Blades."

David and Zita cooper hosted the party for the parents and coaches. Zita is from Newfoundland and still has family up there.

The following parents hosted the Newfoundland players:

Paul and Louise Nolan, Kevin and Patricia Flaherty, Virginia Koceniak, Bill Boylen, Sal and Claire Manganaro, Brian and Pat Connolly, David and Zita Cooper, Dennis and Michelle Pateras, Louis and Fran Bertucci, Tom and Linda Glennon, Bob and Pam Craig, Terry and Pete MacPherson and Ann and Steve DesRoche.

The Newfoundland parents and coaches stayed at the Days Inn in Braintree.

Mrs. Reinhardt also thanked Paul McCabe, who devotes many hours setting up a suitable schedule for everyone taking part.

The money raised by the tournament is donated by the Kiwanis Club to the New England Medical Center, Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center of which Mrs. Reinhardt's granddaughter, Kassi Nogler, is a patient. She is recovering from heart surgery and is doing well.

Mrs. Reinhardt is the tournament director and a member of the Kiwanis Club.

North Ends Agonizing Season

Doug Grutchfield.

It was Grutchfield's first visit to his alma mater in many years. He had been a three-year varsity player at North and scored 1257 points. He also played end for the Raiders in football for three years and was named the outstanding North player in the Quincy game in his senior year. He also ran track and was senior class president.

He renewed acquaintances with LaRoy 'Curley' Rogers, his first high school physical education instructor, and athletic coordinator Martin Finnegan, among others.

Grutchfield received a four-year scholarship to the University of Mass., Amherst, where he held 13 scoring records which were later broken, some by the famous Julius Erving. He also played on several semi-pro teams.

Despite the loss to Brookline in the tournament finale, it has been a successful year for Grutchfield, who has been a coach for 30 years, the last 21 at Fitchburg. His team was 14-4 after the North tournament and had already qualified for the Western Mass. tournament.

Doug's son, D.P., is an assistant coach at Fitchburg and his daughter, Karen, is head coach at Wakefield High, which is 16-2 and headed for the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

Basketball

North Girls Finish 17-3

The North Quincy girls' basketball team did not get its wish of at least tying for the Old Colony League championship, but it did finish with an impressive 17-3 record (14-3 in the league) and should be one of the top seeds in the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

After losing to league champion Weymouth (19-1), 51-44, the North girls completed the regular season with a 36-23 non-league victory over Canton last Thursday night.

Tricia Hughes and Joanna Rugnetta had 10 points each to pace North over Canton. North, defeating Canton for the second time, had a big 22-9 lead at halftime.

Earlier in the week Weymouth avenged its only loss of the season with its victory over North Quincy.

Weymouth had only a 27-24 edge early in the second half, but a 21-4 burst put the game out of North's reach.

Cindy White and Kara Sullivan scored 11 points apiece for North Quincy.

This will be North Quincy's seventh trip to the tournament in 11 years. Coach Ken Panaro has brought his team into the post-season event in both of his years as head coach.

Previously, coach Paul Bregoli had taken five of his nine teams into the tournament.

In an earlier game North defeated Falmouth, 43-20, for its ninth win in a row.

Hughes had 11 points and Tara Miles nine, while Regina Murphy came off the bench and grabbed 12 rebounds.

Previously the North girls had defeated Barnstable, 45-32, after leading by only 19-17 at the half.

Rugnetta had 10 points and Sullivan scored six of her eight points on free throws in the final two minutes of the game.

Quincy Girls In Strong Finish

The Quincy girls' basketball team had a hot and cold season but finished up strong with four wins in its last five games to wind up with an 8-11 record.

Quincy, under first-year coach Bob Keuther, defeated Barnstable, 56-43, in its finale last Friday night.

Amy Baker, completing an outstanding season, scored seven of her 11 points to spark a 12-0 run midway through the first half.

The surge gave the Quincy girls a 24-12 lead and they led, 35-23, at the half.

Erin Doherty scored 10 points and Melanie Sullivan had nine points and nine rebounds.

Wrestling

Quincy, North Go To State Semi-Finals

The Quincy and North Quincy wrestling teams qualified seven for the state championships at Springfield Central High School, but only two went as far as the semifinals.

Quincy had six wrestlers win medals in the South Sectional championships at Weymouth, four qualifying for the states with two alternates. North qualified three for the states.

Quincy's Ally Sleiman lost to Mike Mazzeo of Pittsfield by decision in the 152-pound semifinals and finished fifth in the tournament.

North's Derek Colantonio was dethroned by Dan Alicia of Methuen in the 112-pound semis and placed fourth.

Quincy's Bob Stanton placed fifth in the 145-pound class. Quincy's Greg Souza, who won the sectional title in the 140-pound division, was unable to compete due to a knee injury.

Randolph, which had won the sectional title, added the state crown to its list.

Quincy junior Greg Souza won the sectionals in the 140-pound division, defeating Bridgewater-Raynham's Jim Kish, 12-2, in the finals.

Senior Matt Fratolio (125), senior Bob Stanton (145) and junior Ally Sleiman (152) all placed third, picking up valuable points as the Presidents finished sixth among the 15 teams entered.

Junior Dave Cahill (103) and freshman Ashley Davis (130) won sixth place medals.

For North Quincy, which finished eighth, senior Derek Colantonio (112) was edged by Randolph's Matt Kagana, 4-3, in the finals. Colantonio had defeated Kagan two weeks earlier, 7-1.

Seniors Jim O'Toole (135) and Rick McVarish (171) placed fourth for the Raiders.

Senior Brian Mannering (189) placed sixth in his first year of competition.

is to set up hoses and get them inside the burning structure so they can clear a pathway for the rescue team.

Firefighters on a ladder basically serve as a search and rescue crew.

Sheets emphasized purchasing the quint is an effort to maintain fire services, not reduce manpower.

"Obviously, I would rather have the manpower. When the economy turns up and we begin to get our local aid back once again I certainly intend to replace the manpower that's been lost."

Fourteen firefighters were laid off last year because of budget cuts.

"If we were to purchase a quint," the mayor said, "it would be a very valuable addition to the fire department. I don't think there's any need for the fire department to feel if we were to purchase a quint or quints that that's a threat to their numbers."

"I think we need more manpower. I have thought that for a long time and it's my objective to secure as much manpower as the budget allows."

The level of fire service in the city has been a key issue with city officials since a fatal fire claimed the lives of three people, including two children, in Houghts Neck in January.

Compounding the fire service issue is the likely reduction of $2 million in state local aid. Because of the cut, Sheets has ordered the city's three largest departments, school, police and fire, to undergo a two percent cut for FY 92 which will begin July 1.

As a result, the fire department will be cut $198,000. Since 96 percent of the fire budget funds personnel, Sheets said the city may have to lay off as many as seven firefighters next year. He noted the "rule of thumb" is for every $33,000 in red ink in personnel services, one position must be eliminated or left vacant.

The mayor hopes to avoid layoffs through a retirement incentive program. If six or seven vacancies are created by retirements, Sheets said the department would be spared from layoffs by not filling the vacancies.

As of Monday, there were no vacancies in the department, according to Personnel Director Kathy Yaeger. One fire department employee is away on military leave while two or three men may take early retirement, Sheets said Monday.

The mayor said he understands equipment cannot replace manpower. However, he said the city does not have the financial means to hire more firefighters. He also said personnel services cannot be bonded, unlike equipment.

Furthermore, all city departments, with the exception of the schools, do not have a capital outlay budget. As a result, the mayor said the city cannot transfer money from capital outlay to personnel.

In light of budget restraints, the mayor said the quint would allow the city to combine the functions of an engine and ladder, thereby substituting two ladder companies. Presently, a total of eight fire personnel are required to man one engine and one ladder since each piece has a complement of one officer and three men.

If the city laid off one or more men, it is likely a piece of apparatus would have to be sidelined because of insufficient manning. However, the mayor pointed out the multi-functional quint could operate with a minimum of one officer and four firefighters. He said he prefers one officer and five firefighters.

If the city council rejects the quint bond issue, Sheets said Gorman would have to make other recommendations. Among them could be a proposal to change the command structure within the department.

"I simply do not know what happens if we're down another four or six firefighters. The question you have to look at is, we've been losing frontline firefighters and maybe you have to look at the command structure."

"The chief is going to look at all the options. Even if the quint were purchased, that would still not prevent the layoffs but I think it would enable us to deal with the reduction better," Sheets said.

A CHECK FOR 'UNCLE SANDY'-Bob Colman, owner of Colman's Sporting Goods in Quincy and a Navy veteran, presents a $300 check to Sandy "Uncle Sandy" Rounseville, project chairman for "A Hero's Welcome Fund," a private fundraising campaign set up to provide cash bonuses to Massachusetts residents serving in Operation Desert Storm.

For Baystate Gulf War Vets 'Uncle Sandy' Needs You For Hero's Fund

His red, white and blue "Uncle Sam" outfit may bring smiles from the public, but Sandy Rounseville's costume is not part of a comedy routine.

Rounseville, who has dubbed himself "Uncle Sandy," is very serious about his patriotic attire. In fact, the Quincy resident is not looking for laughs, he's looking for donations.

Rounseville is project chairman of a "Hero's Welcome," a private fundraising drive set up to provide bonuses to approximately 12,000 Massachusetts residents serving in Operation Desert Storm.

As chairman, Rounseville is in charge of soliciting donations from businesses and private citizens. He secured a $1,000 donation from Red Sox Ace Pitcher Roger Clemens during a recent visit to the club's spring training site in Winter Haven, Florida. He also participated in WRKO's recent radiothon which raised $350,000 for the fund.

"It is a very serious thing. We're trying to raise money for the veterans coming home. It's nothing we want to kid around with.

"People think I am kidding around with the Uncle Sam costume but it cuts a lot of red tape," he said, explaining the red, white and blue tuxedo and star spangled hat help him meet bank presidents and other company executives for donations.

In addition, Rounseville is responsible for booking entertainment for benefit concerts at the Wang Center for the Performing Arts and Foxboro Stadium. The concerts, which have not been scheduled yet, will raise money for the fund.

The veterans' bonus campaign was recently launched at the State House by State Treasurer Joseph Malone, who fund chairman. The drive is designed to supplant the need for a bill filed earlier this year by House Speaker Charles Flaherty and Senate President William Bulger that would have appropriated state money for Gulf war veterans.

The bill would have entitled each veteran of the Gulf War to a $500 bonus and each activated reservist who did not go overseas a $300 bonus. After it was filed,

Estimated Tax Rates: $10.74 Residential $24.07 Commercial

The Board of Assessors will announce the 1991 tax rates next week.

The board is nearing completion of its work required to set the new rates.

Acting Chairman Marion Fantucchio presented the City Council with tentative figures Monday night for both residential and commercial-industrial-commercial rates.

The 1991 tax rate will be higher than 1990.

Fantucchio's tentative estimates were $10.74 for residential and $24.07 for CIP. She said the actual number will probably be slightly different.

The 1990 tax rates are $10.18 for residential and $22.90 for CIP.

Committee To Discuss Bond Issue

The City Council Finance Committee will meet April 1 at 6:30 p.m. at City Hall to discuss the $605,000 bond issue proposed by Mayor James Sheets.

The bond would provide funds for equipment for the police and fire departments and civil defense.

The mayor's proposal earmarks $385,000 for the controversial Quint fire truck.

Set For March 20

5 To Take Fire Chief Exam

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy's five eligible fire department deputy chiefs, including the acting chief, have signed up to take the Civil Service chief's examination to be conducted in Boston Wednesday, March 20.

The five are:

Acting Chief Thomas Gorman, Joseph Jackson, Joseph Walsh, Anthony Innello and Gerald Galvin Jr. Paul O'Connell, who last year stepped down as chief to become an acting deputy until a successor was named, will not take the exam.

O'Connell is ineligible because Civil Service still considers him the head of the department. When he stepped down, O'Connell said he was not happy heading the department. Instead, he said wanted to become a deputy chief again.

When O'Connell stepped down, Gorman was appointed acting chief.

The exam is only open to deputies in the Quincy fire department, City Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger said.

With the exception of Galvin who lives in Norwell, the other four deputies reside in Quincy.

Jackson, who turned 63 last month, is the senior deputy on the department. He has been on the department 40 years.

After Jackson, the seniority list is as follows:

Gorman, age 53, with 27 years on the department; O'Connell; Walsh, age 41, 16 years on department; Galvin, 43, 19 years on department; and Innello, age 44, with 21 years on the department.

Signing up for the exam only indicates an intent to take the test. She said it is possible for someone who has signed up for the exam to withdraw.

There was some speculation that Gorman would not take the test. However, he told The Sun Tuesday that he will take it.

After the exam is administered, Yaeger said it would be probably 30 to 90 days before results are known.

From the new list, Mayor James Sheets will select a new chief.

US Census Shows 242 Gain

City's Population 84,985

The United States Bureau of the Census released its 1990 population totals for the city of Quincy Tuesday.

Quincy has gained 242 persons overall since the last US Census in 1984, according to former Quincy resident, John Connolly of the US Bureau of Census in Washington, D.C.

Quincy's population of 84,985 ranks it ninth in Massachusetts, just behind Fall River and ahead of Newton. The last federal census showed Quincy with 84,743 citizens.

The 1990 census shows the following racial breakdown in Quincy:

- 77,915 white
- 928 black

- 5,577 Asian or Pacific Islander
- 358 other race

Connolly also stated that 1,197 people were reported separately as being of Hispanic origin.

The census figures were reported to Gov. William Weld and the Massachusetts state legislature Tuesday.

QNHS For Ward 1

Councillor Peter Kolson announces Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services will be offering assistance to residents in Ward 1 in the near future.

QNHS offers low-interest loans to homeowners seeking to rehabilitate and repair their homes. Since beginning in 1975, the non-profit organization has loaned $2 million to 175 homeowners, Kolson said.

Last year, the service granted 27 loans totaling $243,000.

"They make funds available to homeowners who in some cases are not eligible for bank loans. They sponsor a wide-range of rehabilitation services," Kolson said.

"It's a great program. I'm anxious to bring the

A Notice To Our Readers

We hate to do, it but...

Due to increased production, mailing, materials and other costs, the price of The Quincy Sun will be increased beginning with the Thursday, March 14 issue.

The newsstand and carrier delivery price will be increased a nickel - from 25 to 30 cents.

Mail subscription rates will also be increased beginning with the Thursday, April 4 issue.

It will be the first carrier and newsstand increase in six years and only the fourth for The Sun which is now in its 23rd year.

Part of the increase will go to our news carriers who faithfully bring The Sun to homes each week and to newsstand vendors.

The Sun has absorbed the increased costs for sometime now but finds it impossible to continue to do so.

The cost of producing a community newspaper - like everything else these days - is up considerably from what it was 23 years ago.

We hope our readers who have been so faithful to us - many of them starting with the very first issue in 1968 - will understand this reluctant but necessary move.

Thank you.

MWRA Inspection Petitions Approved

The City Council approved three home rule petitions Monday which, if approved by the state legislature, would give the city's building, plumbing and wire inspectors the authority to review work done in Quincy by the MWRA.

Councillor Michael Cheney was alone in voting against the three petitions. Cheney proposed an amendment which would require that the MWRA pay for any cost incurred by the city for staffing inspectors at the MWRA site.

Cheney estimated that the cost to the city would be at least $140,000 per year.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey and City Solicitor Steve McGrath urged the council not to amend the home rule petitions. Mulvey said the city went to court asking for the right of inspection and was emphatic that Quincy is concerned that the work be done right. To attach permit fees or seek revenue could jeopardize the city's chance to gain the authority to inspect, Mulvey said.

Ward 5 Councillor Charlie Phelan argued that "Quincy taxpayers should not pay for the MWRA's responsibility".

McGrath said the city has established credibility as being "genuinely concerned with public safety".

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley agreed with McGrath and Mulvey. "Revenue should not compromise this. The overriding issue is public safety."

The amendment was defeated, 5-4, with Nutley,

Patricia Toland, Peter Kolson, Larry Chretien and Ted DeCristofaro in opposition and Cheney, Phelan, Thomas Fabrizio and Tim Cahill voting yes.

Kolson said the "time will come" to ask for compensation, but it would be unwise to jeopardize the legislation.

Fabrizio suggested submitting at a later date, a separate home rule petition seeking compensation for costs incurred by the city.

McGrath repeated that it may not be in the best interest of the city to compromise the position it has already established.

Nutley agreed, by stating that in the overall scope of the city's dealing with the MWRA and the courts, Mayor James Sheets continues to seek mitigative funds for the city.

UNFURLED -- Kevin Markham, right, a third grade student at Saug Harbor Community School, and art-music specialist Nancy Sheehan, left, display the flag Markham designed which will fly in Washington, D.C. this week and next as part of Youth Art Month.

Flag With 3rd Grader's Artwork To Fly Over Washington

By STEVE KAVANAGH

What Betsy Ross did with a needle and thread, Kevin Markham, a third grader at Snug Harbor Community School, has done with some paper, scissors and glue.

A collage by Markham, "Owl Landing On A Tree," has been selected to be depicted on the flag of the Massachusetts Art Education Association which will fly over the Old Post Office in Washington, D.C. for two weeks as part of National Youth Art Month.

Markham and students, families and friends from other states, will be guests at a reception at the Rayburn House Office Building this week. Kevin and his family and two friends will also be treated to a tour of the National Portrait Gallery. Visits with Congressman Brian Donnelly and Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry are also planned.

Markham's teacher, Nancy Sheehan, art and music specialist at Snug Harbor, transferred Kevin's design to two flags. The second flag is now flying at Snug Harbor. The first flag will go to Atlanta later this month to fly at the National Art Education Association conference.

Kevin said he "felt surprised" when he learned his collage had been selected for the state flag.

His mother, Jane Markham, said the family is "very proud".

"Kevin is very good visually. He is creative and artistically talented," Sheehan said.

The collage, which depicts an owl landing on the branch of a tree, was put together entirely with shapes Kevin cut out. He did not draw any part of the collage.

Kevin was honored last week at an assembly at Snug Harbor which his mother, grandmother and younger sister attended.

Sheehan explained that she brought the artwork of many Snug Harbor students to the MAEA fall conference. Kevin's collage was selected to represent Massachusetts out of many projects submitted from students statewide.

'Uncle Sandy' Needs You

Malone pitched his alternative to Flaherty and the speaker agreed to support it. The Weld administration anticipated the veterans bonus bill would have cost the state $1.7 million and incorporated it into its deficit projection.

At the kick off, Gov. William Weld, Malone and Flaherty praised the campaign and made personal donations to get the fund started.

Quincy resident John (Jake) Comer, past national commander of the American Legion, is president of the fund. Retired U.S. Navy officer Tom Hudner, a winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor, is co-chairing the campaign.

BayBank, Inc. has joined the effort and citizens can donate to the fund at any one of the bank's 215 offices in Massachusetts or by sending a check or money order to "A Hero's Welcome," c/o BayBank, P.O. Box 50900, Woburn, MA 01815.

Cahill Against Dept. Study

Cheney, Kolson Oppose Closing 2 Fire Stations

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The discussion of fire station closings is a hot topic in Quincy.

The City Council briefly debated closing the Houghs Neck and Germantown stations and a proposed study of the fire department at Monday night's council meeting.

The two resolves, one opposing the station closings, and the other calling for a study, were sent to the Public Safety Committee for future discussion.

Councillors Michael Cheney and Peter Kolson introduced a resolve asking the council to go on record as opposing a proposal to close the Houghs Neck and Germantown fire stations.

The resolve is in response to recent discussions between Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and Mayor James Sheets in which Gorman suggested the possibility of closing the two stations and building a larger station at Palmer and Sea Sts. to serve both communities.

Sheets said he doesn't believe the station closings will happen.

"Before I would support the idea I would have to be convinced that the peninsulas of Germantown and Houghs Neck would be adequately protected should the causeway be closed by an act of weather or as the result of an accident," Sheets said.

"To me, this option has the very real weakness of possibly denying a particular area complete fire services at a given point in time," he added.

"I think what the Chief (Gorman) has been doing is looking at all possibilities. But I have not received any information that would indicate to me that Germantown and Houghs Neck would be protected in times when (Sea or Palmer) streets are closed for whatever reason," Sheets said.

Sheets has also said there is little chance a new station will be built in Adams Shore.

Councillor Tim Cahill said the council may be faced with some tough decisions including the possibility of closing a station. Cahill said he is opposed to hiring an outside firm to do a study on the fire department.

"Hiring an outside firm would be an added expense that we can't afford right now. Our fire officials are experts and they should recommend to us how to fight fires in the city," Cahill said.

Cahill said that Quincy firefighters live and work here and would know best what recommendations to make in the event the city is forced to make decisions regarding station closings, or consolidations, equipment and manpower.

"We get elected to make decisions. A study puts off a decision until after the election. I question whether the councillors who support a study would go along with the recommendations of an outside firm if the study called for closing a station in their ward," Cahill said.

The entire City Council will be up for re-election this fall. Cahill said he feels there is a direct correlation between the election and the proposal for a study which would put off any tough decisions regarding the fire department.

Fabrizio Suggests Commissary Be Moved From Lincoln School

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio has asked the Quincy School Committee to take under advisement the preparation of a study regarding the feasibility of removing the commissary facilities from the Lincoln School.

At a recent meeting, Fabrizio cited complaints from neighbors, including early hours of operation, and traffic and noise in the early morning.

Fabrizio has asked the School Committee to look into a long-term plan for the former Lincoln School.

"The building is deteriorating and becoming an eyesore for the community. I believe it is time we work towards resolving this issue," Fabrizio said.

He also said it is unfair to the neighborhood to continue to carry the burden of the negative impact resulting from the commissary services.

Public Safety Committee To Meet March 18

Ward 5 City Councillor Chuck Phelan has called a meeting of the council's Public Safety Committee for March 18 at 6:30 p.m. at City Hall.

Phelan, as committee chairman, scheduled the meeting to discuss fire safety issues including the proposed Quint fire truck purchase.

ADDISON'S DISEASE

In 1855, London physician Thomas Addison first recognized the pattern of symptoms which came to be known as Addison's Disease, or adrenal insufficiency. The disease is caused by underactive adrenal glands, and may result from tuberculosis, or from a tumor or infection of the glands. Failure of the pituitary may also bring on a secondary adrenal insufficiency. Prolonged use of steroids by body builders and athletes is another cause of which, unfortunately, we are seeing more. Symptoms include easy fatigue, fainting spells, loss of appetite and weight, nausea, and abdominal pain. Patients may become irritable, depressed and emotionally unstable. Dark pigment collects over the knees, elbows and knuckles. Many patients report a craving for salt. Treatment involves replacing the missing hormone with daily adrenal supplements.

P.S. The late President Kennedy is said to have suffered from Addison's Disease.

Irregular, persistent symptoms should never be ignored. Modern medical technology has developed many astonishing diagnostic and healing tools, but the will to heal begins with you. We believe in preventive care here at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE and will give you important information on how to stay "heart-smart." We're located at 101 Adams Street, Suite 24 in Quincy. Hours are by appointment when you call 472-2550.

No Preliminary Election?

Quincy's political front is so ho-hum quiet that City Clerk John Gillis thinks this could be an election year without a preliminary election.

Or, maybe a preliminary run-off in just one ward.

It will be 51 years since a scheduled preliminary election was called off for lack of players. That was 1940.

And, it will be eight years — 1983 — since a one contest only preliminary election.

Gillis, at the moment, doesn't see enough sure candidates for a preliminary this September.

The number of candidates needed for a preliminary election:

Three for mayor; seven for the three city council at-large seats; seven for the three school committee seats and three for each of the ward council seats.

A best bet for a preliminary fight is in Ward 6 where there are three potential challengers for the seat now occupied by Thomas Nutley.

The three are former Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon, Bruce Ayers and Sal Giarratani.

If two of them officially get to challenge Nutley, there will be a Ward 6 preliminary. If they don't, there won't be.

Ward 6 was also the setting for the last one-contest preliminary election in 1983. And Condon, as the Ward 6 incumbent, was involved in that. She was challenged by Mary Collins — now a school committee member and Norfolk County commissioner and Jens Thornton.

Condon and Collins were nominated and Condon won in the final.

In 1979, a one-contest preliminary election contest — if you can call it a contest — was held for mayor.

Incumbent Arthur Tobin faced Abe Itkin and Michael Jovanovic. Tobin polled 6,367 votes to Itkin's 1,144 and Jovanovic's 585.

Only 8,691 — or 18.5 percent — of Quincy's then 47,205 voters bothered to cast ballots.

Back in the 1930's and early 1940's, the mayor, and councillors at-large were elected on even years and the ward councillors on odd years and the school committee annually.

In 1940 there weren't enough candidates for mayor, councillor at-large and school committee so the preliminary election scheduled for Nov. 12 was called off.

Preliminary elections back then were held in November, and final elections in December.

Thomas Burgin was the the mayor in 1940 and became the first in the city's history to run for that office unopposed. The next mayor to get that free-ride honor was Frank McCauley in 1983.

Ironically, in that 1940 final election, one of Quincy's future all-time political powers was an also-ran.

BURGIN

Amelio Della Chiesa, who went on to serve 12 years as mayor under Plan A and Plan E, finished a distant fifth in the city council at-large race. The winners were Neil McDonald (3,901 votes), Josh Kendrick (3,798) and Lawrence Curtin (3,706). Della Chiesa polled only 1,604.

James Sheets this year could become Quincy's third mayor to run unopposed.

"There's certainly no one in the City Council planning to run against him," says Gillis.

"The only possibility is a token candidates or someone who just wants to get his name and picture in the newspapers.

But this doesn't seem to be the year for even that.

DELLA CHIESA

SHEETS

JOHN (JAKE) COMER, Quincy Housing Authority executive director and past national commander of the American Legion, is still expected to be tapped by Treasurer Joseph Malone for a state post.

Comer, who played an active role in Malone's successful campaign last year, probably will be named to an executive position in the State Lottery. Like personnel director.

COMER

IT WON'T COME as much of a surprise, but Ward 6 Councillor Tom Nutley is a definite candidate for reelection.

A pre-election fund raiser is set for April 4 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Walsh's Restaurant, Billings Rd., North Quincy.

NUTLEY

NICE TO SEE Quincy's Paul Feldman doing so well in journalism's big time. Feldman, son of Marion and the late Jason Feldman, who owned Jason's Music and Luggage Shop in downtown Quincy, has been turning out some impressive investigative articles as a staffer for the Los Angeles Times.

Feldman got his start here at The Quincy Sun as a youngster in the 1970's when we were located on the second floor of the old Kincaide Building which burned down several years ago.

Feldman showed a lot of early talent — and enthusiasm — while at The Sun.

And it still shows in L.A.

Superintendent Stepping Down Ricci Calls His Tenure 'Productive, Satisfying'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Upset by a lack of support by the Quincy School Committee and frustrated by dwindling revenue for school programs, School Superintendent Dr. Robert Ricci last week announced he will leave his $80,467-a-year-position probably by the end of the year.

Ricci, 54, was appointed superintendent in July, 1987. A former police officer and a retired Providence school superintendent, he was the first Quincy superintendent hired from outside the system in decades.

In a letter to school committee members dated March 3, the superintendent said his decision to step down "is personal and mainly involves my desire to spend more time with my family."

He and his wife, Josephine, have a home in southern Rhode Island near the Connecticut border. Ricci spends the weekend there and the school week in an apartment in Quincy.

In an interview with The Sun Monday, Ricci said he made his decision to resign last year after the school committee voted to reduce his contract from three to two years. Six months earlier, the committee had voted to appoint Ricci to another three year contract after an open review process gave his job performance high marks.

However, Ricci said support for him on the committee changed after the 1989 committee elections. Three supporters, former Mayor Francis McCauley, the late Christopher Kennedy and Margaret Nigro, were no longer on the committee.

Looking back at the vote to reconsider his contract, Ricci said he was insulted by the board's action. He decided his present contract would be his last.

"Receiving the highest rating probably that could have been received by a committee and then having the second committee come on and tell me that they're going to rescind the contract that was given by the old committee was an insult.

"I made up my mind that I was not going to accept any contract rather than three years because they had given me a three-year contract," Ricci said.

"I was convinced then to just take the two years and if I wanted to do something within the last two years let the school committee know," he added.

There is some speculation as to the events leading up to the vote to reconsider. Some believe former School Committeeman Frank Anselmo was put to the task by Quincy College President O. Clayton Johnson who has often battled Ricci over the management of the school.

Anselmo, who had been a long-time Ricci supporter, came out against the superintendent last year and asked that he be fired. Johnson maintains he had nothing to do with Anselmo's change of heart. Ricci declined to elaborate on the issue, saying, "I don't want to take shots at anyone."

Instead of expiring in September, 1993, Ricci's contract will end in September, 1992. He said will leave sometime between this September and January, 1992.

Ricci said he decided to leave before September, 1992 in an attempt to save the school system money. "The need to reduce the school department budget by more than 1.5 million dollars has influenced me to make an earlier than planned decision to leave," Ricci stated in his letter.

By filling his position on an acting basis for five months, Ricci said the system could save $30,000, enough to spare a young teacher from being laid off. To do that, an administrator from within the system would have to be appointed acting superintendent. The administrator's job and salary could be consolidated with the acting position.

Without a three-year contract, Ricci said he did not want to commit himself by buying a home in the area. "With a three-year contract, you could invest. Two years, I'm not so sure about that."

Ricci described his tenure as productive and satisfying "up to this point." He noted the school system has had many accomplishments and achievements.

During the past four years the committee and administrators have implemented a comprehensive health education program, increased the graduation requirements and conducted extensive curriculum review in science, mathematics and social studies.

Other improvements he notes are the introduction of school, community and business partnerships, consolidation of the Sterling and Point Middle Schools, introduction of technology education in several schools and preparing staff to improve teaching of critical thinking and problem solving skills.

The three accomplishments Ricci takes the most pride in are improved affirmative action and civil rights programs and programs which have helped the drop-out rate decrease from 19.8 percent to 12 percent.

"All are working well and we've been recognized (by the state) for all three programs," Ricci said.

The superintendent is also proud of the integration of technology into the classrooms. "I think tech-ed will be looked at in the future, if it's handled right, as a major accomplishment because very few school districts are doing what we're doing."

"It's one of the major accomplishments because you can keep kids in school but you've got to give them more adaptable education. If that doesn't happen, then we'll still go through the same classroom things we've been doing for years and years and years."

On the down side, Ricci said the fiscal grip on the city's school system the past several years has been the most disappointing.

With cutbacks, he said schools are not being maintained as well as they should be. Reduced revenue has also forced some programs to be shelved.

"I think the whole economy is the biggest disappointment because it's not giving you the resources to keep the moral up."

Ricci, who had proposed a $6 million bond issue last year for building maintenance, said he believes budget problems will get worse before they get better. He said a $1.3 bond issue recently approved by the City Council "really won't do anything substantial."

"Somehow, the city is going to come through and say these are the buildings we want to keep and fix them up. You have to invest in your buildings or they're going to be unsafe for habitation."

"Those are the things that really gnaw at me because I don't control them," he added.

As for his future plans, Ricci said he'll study his options.

"I would like to work as a superintendent in either a large system, and I have to be truthful, I was always interested in Boston, and that may never happen, or a smaller system or do something out of education."

"I'll be looking for something to keep me busy."

Quincy's Yesterdays

Captain Stedman Honored By City For Sea Rescues

Capt. Giles Chester Stedman returned to duty aboard the SS Leviathan after being honored by his native Quincy for personally directing two daring sea rescues that saved 49 lives in the past few years.

Some 35,000 people turned out for the Saturday parade in his honor.

Meanwhile, Harry S. Burr was organizing the 20th reunion of Capt. Stedman's Quincy High School Class of 1914, which was called the worst in the school's history since none of its 108 members made the honor roll.

"Chester has redeemed that class at last," said Miss Sally F. Dawes, head of the English Department.

Other class members of the class included Marion Edwards, who reportedly married a Danish prince; Dorothea Brokaw, who wed a missionary to China, and Ruth G. Jones, who became a Broadway actress under the name Ruth Gordon.

RENAMING STREETS

The Board of Survey held a hearing into a proposal to change the names of 14 Quincy streets since many of the city's roadways had the same names. Proposed for changes were:

Atlantic Ave. to Pitts Ave., Beach Rd. to Seaway Rd., Bryant Place to Piper St., Chestnut St. to Myrtle St., Gren St. to Bellevue Rd., Hampden St. to Mayberry Rd., Hanna Place to Odom St.

Highland Ave. to Belmont St., Newcombe Ave. to Follet St., Prilvord St. to Mt. Vernon St. to Oval Rd., River St. to Denmore St., Spring Ave. to Rowley St., Webster St. to Wentworth Rd.

SCHOOL BUDGET CUT SEEN

Three members of the School Committee said it is possible that the school budget can be reduced to $1,029,960.26, or $7,475.13 less than 1932 because of state aid and payroll donations by school personnel.

The three members — Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting, Dr. Daniel B. Reardon and Col. Warren Sweetser — along with Mayor Charles A. Ross constituted a majority of the seven-member board.

Apple Pie Easy

I was sitting at my typewriter on a rainy Saturday morning talking to my daughter, Nancy, who was getting ready to go to work. I was telling her how difficult it gets sometimes to come up with a different recipe for the paper. She suggested I write the recipe for my apple pie saying "people probably don't realize how easy it is to make."

So here goes. I am also enclosing the recipe for pie crust that my mother always made. But I have to confess, lately I've been using the folded, bought kind and they're great! When I make a pie, I always use red and green apples mixed for a better flavor.

APPLE PIE EASY

6 red apples
2 to 3 green apples
2 Tbsps flour
1/2 to 3/4 cup sugar
(depending on how sweet the apples are)

1 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp salt
a sprinkle of nutmeg
a sprinkle of ginger
margarine or butter (for the top before placing the crust)

Peel the apples and cut into slices. In a large bowl, add all the ingredients except the butter and mix until blended. Taste the apple mixture and if you want more of a spicy taste, then add a little to suit your taste. Put in the crusted pie plate and then add a couple of teaspoons of butter or margerine over the top of the apples. Cover the top crust and baste with pastry brush, the mixture of an egg yolk mixed with a little water. This makes a nice, professional looking coating. Bake in 425 degree oven for ten minutes and then a 375 degree oven for about 40 minutes. Cool before cutting. It also tastes great the next day.

PIE CRUST

1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 tsp baking powder
1 tsp salt
1/2 cup margerine (or 4 Tbsps vegetable oil)
4 or 5 Tbsps cold water (or milk)

Mix the flour, salt, baking powder and margerine together. Add the water gradually and stir until blended. Form into two balls and then let stand for a short while. Roll out with a rolling pin on a lightly floured surface into crust about an eighth of an inch thick. This recipe makes two pie crusts or several turnovers.

Siciliano Elected President Mass. Auxiliary Police Assn.

Tony Siciliano of Quincy has been unanimously elected president of the Massachusetts Auxiliary Police Association by its officers and board of directors.

Some 2,000 auxiliary police, special police, constables, civil defense directors and deputy directors from 81 cities and towns across the state are members of the Mass. Auxiliary Police Association.

Siciliano joined the Quincy Auxiliary Police Department in 1968. He has served as Quincy's auxiliary police chief since 1976. In 1981, he was appointed deputy director of Quincy Civil Defense upon the recommendation of former Police Chief and Civil Defense Director Francis Finn.

As deputy director, Siciliano assumes the responsibilities of civil defense director in the absence of the chief of police.

Since 1972, he has been employed by the city's Department of Traffic and Parking, formerly known as General Services Division of the Quincy Police Department. A licensed journeyman, he is the city's general foreman.

He was also appointed special constable in former General Services Division-Quincy Police Department.

As deputy director of civil defense, he has attended many courses and seminars.

TONY SICILIANO

They include: search and rescue, basic skills in effective communication, disaster preparedness workshop and radiological defense. He has participated in a hurricane probability conference, terrorism seminar and a hazardous materials and planning seminar.

In 1984, former Governor Michael Dukakis signed an executive order to develop comprehensive emergency management to deal with major disasters or emergencies in the state. Its goal is to develop a program which seeks to mitigate the effects of a hazard, to respond during emergencies and reduce the impact of the emergency and to establish a recovery system to channel financing and other resources in order to restore the governance and other essential functions of the community.

For two years, Siciliano worked with the state Civil Defense Agency in order to comply with the executive order. As a result, the city of Quincy's Comprehensive Emergency Plan was signed by former Mayor Francis McCauley in 1986 and was used as a model throughout the state.

Siciliano has received more than 40 plaques and citations for distinguished service. In 1984, he was named the mayor's Employee of the Year and in 1985, he was honored as The Quincy Sun's Citizen of the Year.

In 1987, he was selected the Outstanding Municipal Employee of the Year by the Massachusetts Municipal Association and in 1988, he was chosen the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Citizen of the Year.

Siciliano is a member of many committees and organizations, including the Christmas Festival Committee, Quincy Center Business and Professional Downtown Sidewalk Bazaar Committee, Houghs Neck Fourth of July Celebration and Marina Bay Festival Committee. He is also a member of the state and city Auxiliary Police Association Board of Directors and chairman of the state Auxiliary Police Association Task Force.

Daffodil Days Organizers Hope To Raise Over $50,000

More than 100,000 golden daffodils will burst into bloom in nine South Shore communities March 19 and 20 as the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society stages its annual Daffodil Days to benefit the research, education and service programs to cancer patients throughout the area.

"Last year people here bought nearly 130,000 daffodils helping us raise over $50,000 and we hope to do better this year," said Pauline Sweeney of Quincy, who, with her husband Dennis, again heads this year's effort.

"It is a wonderful way to greet spring with the flower of hope and help fight cancer," she said.

Advance orders were taken through Wednesday for the bright yellow blooms and volunteers will be delivering and selling them beginning March 19. Orders can be placed by calling Mrs. Sweeney at 773-8226 or the South Shore Unit office, 341-4210.

A bouquet is $4, and a box of 500 is $200.

The South Shore Unit of the Society carries on a program of help for patients in Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth. Some 1,400 businesses and individuals have been contacted by volunteers for support.

Statewide, it is expected three million blooms will be sold with a goal of raising more than the $800,000 raised last year.

Check Those Windshield Wipers

Windshield wipers are among the most neglected safety items on your automobile.

New England winters can be tough on a car's wipers, and replacing the rubber refill blades is easy and inexpensive.

"Good visibility is critical, particularly at this time of year," said John F. Paul, manager of technical services for AAA. "If your wiper blades fail to clean the glass properly, leaving the glass streaked and your visibility blurred, they're a safety hazard."

A simple check of the windshield wiper blades' condition and their operation should be part of every regular maintenance routine.

"Although streaking can be caused by a worn blade, it can also occur as a result of a buildup of grease, dirt and road salt on the blade," Paul said. "Mild soap and water will usually clean the residue and restore blades to proper working condition.

During winter, AAA suggests you preserve your wiper blades by using a scraper or the defroster to clear your windshield of accumulated ice. Remember to keep a full reservoir of windshield-washer fluid.

Black Ice And Frozen Bridges Dangers

This time of year early morning drivers have to be on the lookout for black ice.

Black ice occurs when water along the roadside or from melting snow flows across the highway and freezes in a thin sheet before morning, according

'Peep-Hole' Driving

"Peep-hole driving" is one of the most dangerous aspects of winter driving, According to AAA.

Drivers who do no more than turn on their windshield wipers to make small holes to peep through after a snowfall are taking a big risk with their own safety as well as that of other motorists, according to AAA Insurance Agency.

Throughout the winter, make a habit of removing all snow from all windows, and from as much of your car as possible - it's essential to be able to see in all directions. Snow left on the hood can blow back against the windshield when you are moving along. Snow on your car's roof or trunk can be blown off and may hit another car.

to AAA Insurance Agency. Often it's hard to see this ice until you're nearly on top of it - sometimes it fools you because it looks like water.

Frozen bridges are another concern for winter early birds. Bridges tend to accumulate frost and ice whenever temperatures go down at night, and by morning they are very slippery.

AAA reminds motorists to take special care when driving under these conditions.

Warning Signs Ordered For Cisco Drink

By JANE ARENA

City Liquor stores which carry Cisco, a wine cooler-like drink but with as much alcohol per bottle as five shots of 80 proof vodka, will be directed to post a sign warning the public that the beverage is not a wine cooler and will also have to stock the drink away from other less potent wine drinks.

Wine coolers typically have between five and seven percent alcohol while Cisco has 20 percent.

There is a label on the bottles which tells consumers it is not a wine cooler, Laracy noted, but the packaging is misleading so that people don't always bother to read the label.

Currently Cisco is packaged to look similar to wine coolers, although the manufacturers, the Canadiagua Wine Company, plan to repackage the drink in dark green bottles with labels similar to other more potent drinks.

The License Board Tuesday directed Quincy Liquor Inspector Sgt. Richard Laracy to advise liquor stores of the new directive.

Laracy submitted information about the beverage to the Board and suggested the need for the directive in case teenagers purchase the drink under the assumption that it is a low alcohol wine cooler.

Ronnie Rivera was elected to succeed Lisa Andre as moderator.

They will be installed at the 10 a.m. worship service at the church Sunday.

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

Grief Causes Guilt

Guilt almost always is present with grief at the loss of a loved one. This is because anger is a natural part of the grief process. This anger can be directed outward as hostility to others or inward upon oneself.

One may become angry and feel guilty for what he or she mistakenly identifies as anger at the deceased. The cycle can continue with unhealthy results.

Children may feel guilt when a parent dies. They don't understand, in most cases, that they didn't cause the death. If this continues, call us or a psychologist.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

One of the fine organizations for youngsters in America is scouting - The Boys Scouts and Girl Scouts. It was in March, on the 12th in 1914, that that Daisy Gordon, and ten other young girls, met in an unused stable of Daisy's aunt, Mrs. Juliette Low, in Savannah, Georgia, and founded the first patrol of Girl Guides in the United States. Mrs. Low had married an Englishman and they lived in London and Savannah. She knew Sir Robert Baden-Powell, the founder of the Boys Scouts, and when she became acquainted with and helped the Girl Guides - which had been founded in Savannah by her sister - she brought the two concepts together. The headquarters of the Girl Scouts was moved to Washington in 1915, after other groups began forming in other cities. Later it was moved to New York and in the span of only a few decades, there had grown up in this country a national Girl Scout organization with members numbered in the millions. Generally speaking, scouting is one of our noblest youth organizations - teaching and stressing doing good deeds - helping others - courtesy, learning and cleanness in word and deed. After a short period of declining interest in scouting, the movement is again vigorous and expanding, which is good and welcome news...

Quincy Bows Out, But It Was A Great Year

The Quincy boys' basketball team's finest season in 10 years came to an end last week when the Presidents lost to Somerset, 73-61, in the opening round of the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

The loss, however, did nothing to take away from Quincy's remarkable turnaround this year. Winless a year ago and without winning record over the past six years, the Presidents finished at 12-8 and made the tournament for the first time in 10 years.

Quincy was seeded 13th and last in Division 1 South while Somerset (16-4) was seeded fourth.

"If a couple of shots had fallen at certain times, it would have been a different game," said coach John Franceschini. "Somerset has a good team and I'll give them credit."

Playing on its home floor, Somerset got away to a 14-6 lead before Quincy started to click. The Blue Raiders' Dave Macedo, who finished with 33 points, had 17 points in the first half.

Led by E. J. Nordstrom (18 points), David Jolley (14) and Ralph Bevilacqua (11), Quincy roared back and trailed by only 39-37 at halftime.

Somerset hit on 54 percent of its shots from the floor in the first half while Quincy hit 48 percent.

Somerset also had the edge from the free throw line, hitting 85 percent while Quincy hit 69 percent.

Quincy took the lead early in the second half as Nordstrom tied it at 39 and Jolley then gave the Presidents a two-point lead. After Somerset had again gone ahead, Nordstrom gave Quincy a 43-42 edge, the last time Quincy led.

"I feel that we gave it our best effort," said Franceschini. "The seniors got us here this year, but the underclassmen will bring us back next year."

Franceschini will have several varsity returnees and several junior varsity players and several freshmen, who had a good year, will be stepping into varsity spots.

North Girls Victim Of Lakers' Revenge

Most coaches dislike playing a team in tournament play that it defeated during the regular season.

You can count North Quincy girls' basketball coach Ken Panaro among that group.

The North girls (17-3 and seeded fifth in the Eastern Mass. Tournament) twice defeated Silver Lake (13-7 and seeded 12th) in regular season play.

However, last week in the first round of the tournament, the Lakers avenged those two defeats by squeezing past North, 39-38.

The game featured seven lead changes in the last five minutes and the North Quincy girls helped defeat themselves as they missed their last six shots, including three from the free throw line, while leading, 38-37.

Melissa Reeder of the Lakers was fouled and hit both free throws to give Silver Lake its big win.

After scoring only 15 points in the first half, the Lakers' Kristina Nickerson (12 points) and Amy Turner combined for 15 points in the first 10 minutes of the second half. When Nickerson hit a three-pointer to tie the score at 31 with 5:34 left in the game, it marked nine second-half points for her.

Turner's six points came on two three-pointers during the critical stretch.

Jen Wizniak's free throw gave the Lakers a 32-31 lead, their first lead since they led, 12-11, early in the game.

Joanna Rugnetta, who had 10 points and seven rebounds for North, hit Cindy White (four steals) open underneath to give North a one-point lead, but Laker freshman center Amy King's two free throws again put her team ahead, 34-33, with 4:05 left.

Tara Miles, who had 13 points for North, hit a three-pointer for a 36-34 lead but King hit a free throw. Reeder took over from that point, beginning when she hit two throws after stealing the ball and being fouled.

Rugnetta scored her only basket of the second half when she followed a miss by Tricia Hughes, who had eight points and four steals, and North led, 38-37, with 1:10 left.

Then North lost its shooting touch with its six missed shots and Reeder again stole the ball, was fouled and she hit both shots.

North had two chances to tie or win it but missed two free throws and a basket to end the game.

It was North's seventh trip to the tournament in 11 years and prospects are bright for next season. In addition to several returning varsity players, several members of the strong junior varsity team (13-5) appear ready to move into varsity spots.

Joanna Rugnetta, Kristina Nickerson of Silver Lake, Beth Dedominici and Kristen Holmes of Bridgewater-Raynham and Aimee Eggleston of Falmouth.

Tricia Hughes and Tara Miles of North Quincy and Amy Baker of Quincy received honorable men-services into Ward 1," he added.

Surveyors from QNHS will visit the Ward 1 area and determine which homes are most deserving of assistance. Kolson said people can apply for assistance after a list of criteria is released at a later date.

"It'll be a few months before (the program) is up and going," he said.

With the weak economy, Kolson said many homeowners are unable to repair and rehabilitate their homes. He said QNHS will give people an opportunity to upgrade their homes.

"In many cases, this affords people to get money to fix up their home," he said.

Kolson will also appoint two Ward 1 residents to serve as liaisons between the ward and QNHS.

City Awarded $1.3M From MWRA For Squantum Traffic Impact

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy and the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority have reached a mitigation agreement which will pay the city $1.3 million for traffic impact created by the authority's staging area in Squantum.

The staging area, located at the end of Marina Bay near the Jordan Marsh distribution warehouse, is being used to ferry workers to Deer Island which will be the site of the new primary sewerage treatment plant.

The agreement was announced by Mayor James Sheets, City Solicitor Stephen McGrath and Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley last week.

Under the terms, Quincy will receive $300,000 for engineering studies and $1 million for reconstruction at two busy and at times dangerous intersections in Squantum: Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum St. and Victory Rd. and East Squantum St. The former is well-travelled during rush hour commutes and the latter intersection is the main route into Marina Bay.

According to Sheets, the city will also negotiate for other mitigation to fund work at other busy intersections in the area, such as Hancock St. and East Squantum St. and Commander Shea Boulevard near the Neponset Bridge which leads to the Southeast Expressway.

He said he hopes the city can secure another $1.7 million for traffic mitigation in Squantum from the MWRA which has begun ferrying workers to Deer Island.

"I'm satisfied with a million three for this project but I'm not satisfied with a million three and we're going to be in there fighting for the balance of the mitigation package," the mayor said. During peak construction periods in 1993 and 1994, as many as 900 workers will be ferried from Squantum to Deer Island. Cars will start arriving at Squantum Point at 5:45 a.m. and the ferry will depart at 6:25 a.m. Workers will return to Squantum at 3:40 p.m.

The main shift will consist of 600 workers, with a second shift of 200 workers and a third shift of 100 workers.

"We've taken on a tremendous burden by taking on these 900 workers to be ferried and relieved the burden on other communities," said Nutley. "We've been cooperative with the MWRA, although we've been stubbornly insisting that we get adequate mitigation monies to do the things that we would like to do out there."

Nutley called the intersection at Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum St. a "thorn in his side."

"This is an opportunity to do something with the MDC and others and upgrade and reconfigure the entire intersection as well as the Victory Rd. intersection."

Sheets emphasized the Squantum staging area is separate from the site of the interim sludge facility in Quincy Point. The city will receive $2.3 million as the host of the interim facility which is expected to be completed and operational in December.

When the facility begins making fertilizer pellets out of sewage, it will end the daily discharge of 51 tons of sludge into Boston Harbor. The $2.3 million will be paid to the city in quarterly payments and begin one quarter after the facility goes on line, Sheets pointed out.

Sheets said the city will also seek mitigation for traffic impact created by the Quincy Point facility.

The board stipulated that no more than 10 cars may be displayed at a time and that they must be separated from the wrecked cars on the property. The applicant must also secure needed permits for any new signs at the site.

'Symbol A Positive Thing' Sioux Indian Approves NQHS 'Yakoo' Mascot

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The controversy over North Quincy High School's "Yakoo" mascot took a new twist this week.

Louella Fallis, a Crow Creek Sioux Indian, spoke in favor of the mascot to students at North Quincy High School Monday.

Last week students heard speakers voice their opposition to the use of the Yakoo during Native American Awareness Week. This week proponents of the mascot are getting a chance to speak with students during Heritage Week.

The educational sessions were the idea of an Ad Hoc Committee on the Yakoo made up of students, faculty, alumni and parents of NQHS, said committee chairman Michael Hurley, Social Studies Dept. Head at North.

North Quincy's nickname is the Red Raiders and the mascot, which appears on yearbooks, prom mugs, t-shirts and sweatshirts, banners and the center of the gym floor, etc., is an Indian carrying a tomahawk and an "NQ" flag.

Last week, Jeff Hamley, director of Harvard University's Native American Program, told students, "A group of people have been reduced to a mascot."

"It perpetuates racial stereotypes," he said. Hamley is a Chippewa Indian from the Turtle Mountain reservation in North Dakota.

Fallis said she doesn't understand why anyone is opposed to the Yakoo.

"The students have so much pride behind the mascot that I can't understand the controversy," Fallis said.

"If the persons who are against the Yakoo could be educated in Indian culture they would not be doing this," she said.

Fallis said her meeting with NQHS students was positive and that they made it clear they would like to keep their mascot.

"Being a native American, I tried to emphasize that the use of an Indian as a school symbol is a positive thing," Fallis said.

Fallis grew up on a Sioux Indian reservation in South Dakota where she lived for 32 years.

Last week speakers, including native Americans, told students the use of the Yakoo is racist.

"I don't find anything derogatory about it. Lots of professional sports teams use Indian symbols and Indians have appeared on money (U.S. currency)," Fallis said.

City May Sue State Over Cuts

By JANE ARENA

Quincy may file a law suit against the state after learning of Gov. William Weld's proposal to cut another $270 million in state aid, according to Mayor James Sheets.

With the additional reductions in local aid, proposed by Weld last week, Quincy stands to lose a total of $2.3 million.

Although voters last November overwhelmingly passed Question 5 on the state ballot, which was meant to guarantee that 40 percent of the income generated by the state's income, sales and corporation taxes would be returned to the cities and towns as local aid, state officials have now said that the vote does not necessarily restrict further aid reductions.

State officials say a loop-hole in the ballot question, stipulating that the local aid return was contingent on legislative appropriation, will allow the additional cuts even after Question 5 passed.

"It seems to me that you have the basis for a lawsuit," Mayor Sheets said Monday. "The state has ignored the will of the people...and there is justification for seriously looking into a legal action. We might be able to retrieve some funding."

Sheets plans to direct City Solicitor Stephen McGrath to look into the possibility of the city filing a suit against state and added he expects several other cities and towns to do consider legal action as well.

Sheets had determined the city's FY 92 $121 million budget based on an earlier Weld proposal to cut 10 percent of local aid from cities and towns. Under that scenario, he said, the city was expected to lose $1.4 million.

Under the latest reduction plan the city stands to lose $2.3 million.

There is a slim possibility of losing about $300,000 more, Sheets noted, if the state legislature passes a law requiring cities and towns to assume ten percent of the retired teachers' pension fund, which is currently funded entirely by the state. Sheets said Monday though that he doubts this will pass.

Sheets must submit the total budget to the City Council at their first meeting in April (April 1), and he will have to wait until the state determines its budget issues before he can determine his own.

Currently the School, Fire and Police Departments have been cut by two percent while all municipal budgets have been cut by eight percent.

In addition, he said, some 36 positions have been cut from full time to part time in an effort to avoid further layoffs.

"I'm going to try and see if there's any way we can get away without additional layoffs," he said, although he added it's impossible at this time to say for certain whether personnel can be spared.

"It could be lay-offs, it could be looking at revenues, it's impossible to tell," he said. "We'll have to wait at least another week to see what happens on Beacon Hill...it's a waiting game...but I think the $2.3 million figure is probably realistic."

It may be realistic, but Sheets doesn't call it fair, and said he doubts other local officials will see things any differently.

"I think people are very upset," he said, "because the state is ignoring the will of the people, and these cuts are affecting every city and every town...you have a very angry group of cities and towns out there against a government trying to balance its budget on the backs of cities and towns."

7 City Workers Face Layoffs

Seven city workers will face layoffs because of cuts in the city budget for fiscal year 1992.

Funding for 33 jobs has been eliminated, Sheets said Monday. Three other employees will have their hours scaled back.

Only seven workers will be let go. The mayor said positions which become open through projected retirements and resignations will go unfilled.

No police or fire personnel will face layoffs, Sheets said.

The three employees who will have their hours trimmed include a library custodian who will go from full-time to half-time and two inspectors in the wiring department who will be reduced from 40 to 32 hours per week.

Sun Now 30 Cents

The price of The Quincy Sun at newsstands and for home delivery by carriers is 30 cents effective with this issue.

The five cent increase, as announced March 7, is due to rising production and other costs.

Mail subscription rates will be increased beginning with the Thursday, April 4 issue.

It will be the first carrier and newsstand increase in six years and only the fourth for The Sun now in its 23rd year.

Part of the increase will go to our news carriers who faithfully bring The Sun to homes each week and to newsstand vendors.

The Sun has absorbed the increased costs for some time now but finds it impossible to continue to do so.

The new price of 30 cents is still less than most weekly newspapers in Massachusetts.

The cost of producing a community newspaper-like everything else these days--is up considerably from what it was in 1968 when The Sun was founded.

We hope our readers who have been so loyal to us--many of them starting with the very first issue in 1968--will understand this reluctant but necessary move.

Thank you.

Sheets QCA Speaker

Mayor James Sheets will be the guest speaker at the March 13 meeting of the Quincy Citizens Association at 8 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Hunt Street, North Quincy. Sheets will discuss problems facing Quincy and be available for a question-and-answer period. Refreshments will be served and all are welcome.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro is the first official candidate in this year's city election, announcing his intention to seek a sixth term.

He said his formal announcement will be made at a campaign reception later at the Fore River Clubhouse.

DeCristofaro is currently serving his second year as City Council President, to which he was elected by his fellow councillors.

DeCristofaro had chaired the Public Works Committee of the City Council for a period of eight years as well as the Public Park & Recreation Committee. He has served as Ward 2 Councillor since 1982.

An early opponent of the siting of a sludge plant at General Dynamics, DeCristofaro pledged to continue working to mitigate the problems that might occur as a result of the MWRA building a sludge plant.

"It simply is not fair", said DeCristofaro, "for the residents of Ward 2 to bear all the burden of cleaning up Boston Harbor."

DeCristofaro is a life-

DeCristofaro To Seek 6th Term

long resident of Quincy Point who is known for speaking out at council meetings only when he has something to say. He is a graduate of Quincy schools and is married to the former Betty Petzoldt. They have four grown children, three sons and a daughter.

Prior to his election to public office, DeCristofaro was actively involved in the community. He is a co-founder of the Ward 3 Civic Association and the recipient of many awards from the community and veterans' organizations. He noted his attendance at zoning and licensing board hearings reflects his view that a councillor's job extends far beyond the Council Chamber.

"As a ward councillor, you must be available to your constituents nearly all of the time," he said. "Remedying the everyday problems people face when dealing with a city administration is a large part of my job, and making sure the views of a particular neighborhood are properly understood by those who sit on our local boards is a responsibility I take very seriously."

DeCristofaro noted that during his term, he has been successful in establishing the Ward 2 Community Center at the Fore River Clubhouse which provides information and services to all the residents of Ward 2. He was further able to obtain a new pumper engine at the Quincy Point Fire Station.

As Chairman of the Park & Recreation Committee of the City Council, he worked to obtain funds for refurbishing Faxon Park, as well as the Pollard, Fore River, Pond Street and Elm Street playgrounds.

DeCristofaro was instrumental in bringing about the new playground at the Daniel Webster School and in having the Quincy Neighborhood Services located in Quincy Point.

He fought for the stationing of a permanent foot patrol on Washington St. to patrol local businesses and to be visible to residents. He also filed an ordinance which imposes a substantial penalty for the illegal dumping of infectious or hazardous waste material within the city limits.

DeCristofaro continues with his ongoing efforts to improve the safety conditions of Fore River Bridge, both structurally and for driving conditions as well. Recently he has coordinated with the State, resulting in the repainting of the lines on the bridge surface, adding higher curbing to specific areas, adding new lighting and signage.

He has also been one of the staunch supporters for the new recycling program within Quincy; providing a two-fold goal of protecting the environment while saving a substantial amount of money for the City.

"The coming two years will bring greater challenges and changes to the Ward and its neighborhoods," DeCristofaro said. "I will continue to do all in my power to protect the quality of life for the community. Perhaps now, more than ever, we need a councillor who knows this Ward, its people, their problems and their preferences."

'It's A Small World' In The Persian Gulf For 2 Quincy Marines

By STEVE KAVANAGH

File this one under, "It's a small world."

Two Quincy men, who had not seen each other since 1977, were reunited recently when they met unexpectedly, half way around the world, while serving in the Persian Gulf War.

Major Thomas Fitzgerald Jr. of the United States Marine Corps and Major Kevin Davis of the United States Marine Corps Reserve got a chance to reminisce about their home town after meeting in the Gulf.

The pair met through their parents. Fitzgerald's father Tom, now retired, was a teacher and coach at North Quincy High School and Davis' mother Gloria works in the Guidance Department at North.

Davis and Fitzgerald entered the Marine Corps together in 1976 and would drive back and forth together between Quincy and Quantico, Va. where they attended Marine Officers Basic Training School.

Fitzgerald decided to make the Marines his career and Davis joined the Marine Reserves in South Weymouth after five years active duty.

Davis, in a letter to The Quincy Sun, explained how the pair met again in the Persian Gulf. Fitzgerald was assigned to Marine Expeditionary MAJOR MEETING - Major Thomas Fitzgerald, USMC, and Major Kevin B. Davis, USMCR, recently met during the Persian Gulf War. The two friends had not seen each other since 1977.

Forces Headquarters and Davis was stationed at Marine Air Support Squadron Three.

"Tom's responsibilities included monitoring the tactical air situation for Headquarters and mine was to supervise and control direct Marine Tactical Close Air Support," Davis wrote.

"You can imagine my surprise when I made my first call to headquarters to give them an update to the current tactical air situation. It has been super for both of us to share stories of home along with copies of The Quincy Sun that my mother sends to me," Davis continued.

"After traveling over 12,000 miles to the opposite side of the world the last thing I expected to do was run into someone from Quincy."

Tommy And John

Now that Tommy Burke is retiring as assistant city clerk some are wondering if his long-time friend City Clerk John Gillis might soon follow.

Don't go looking for the job. Gillis has no intention of retiring now or in the near future.

"I wouldn't know what to do with myself," he says. "As long as my health is good, I'm staying. And, my health is good, Thank God."

Gillis, who is 65, has life tenure as city clerk. He can keep the job as long as he wants it. All the way to 100 - or more.

Gillis and Burke have been a City Hall team for 32 years and have been close friends going on a half-century.

Gillis, who had been assistant clerk under Alan Cole for two years, became city clerk when Cole died in 1958. He was, however, nominated by the City Council.

In 1959, Gillis nominated Burke to be his assistant and Burke also got the unanimous blessing of the City Council. There were 61 applicants for the job which back then paid $5,300 a year. The salary is now over $33,000.

At the next City Council meeting, March 18, Joseph Shea, who was executive secretary to Mayor Walter Hannon, will be elected to succeed Burke. Shea was an unsuccessful candidate for the Ward 4 City Council seat last year.

He reportedly has the votes of all nine city councillors including that of Tom Fabrizio who defeated him for the Ward 4 seat. Friday will be Burke's last day on the job. And it is certain to be a day of mixed feelings.

"Sure, I'm going to miss the place," Burke, who is 67 says. "These have been good years with good friends. But I want to go while my health is good. I want to do a few things."

Burke's office has been one of the most popular spots in City Hall. Just open the door and walk in and you would find him typically holding court with elected officials, political observers and a reporter or two.

Spend a few minutes and a newsman could find out not only what was going on - but what was going to go on.

It was always easy to tell if he liked you. He'd needle you like: "Boy, are you fat! Didn't that suit used to be a tent?"

And he expected to be needled right back. Burke, who was stricken with polio when he was six months old walks with crutches.

Many a close friend has threatened to "dip those crutches in gasoline and burn them" after undergoing a Burke needling.

"And, he would come back with something like: "Go ahead, I've got six more pair. And you're still fat."

Burke was reminiscing the other afternoon about how he and Gillis used to run each other's political campaigns in the 1950's.

Burke ran for state representative three times with Gillis his campaign manager.

Gillis ran a couple of times for the City Council with Burke his campaign manager.

Burke owned an old Oldsmobile back then and had it painted white. When he ran, "Burke, State Representative" would be painted in bright red all over the car.

When Gillis ran, the red would be whitened out and "Gillis For City Council" painted in green.

"In those days," Burke muses, "you could run a campaign for a couple hundred bucks."

And elections were a lot of fun - and rather friendly.

Burke fondly remembers one year when the state representative field he was running in included one of Quincy's future all-time political powers - Amelio Della Chiesa.

"The day after the election," Burke remembers, "he congratulated Della Chiesa who was an easy winner and then said to him:

"You know, Mel, I beat you in your home precinct." Della Chiesa said: "Yes, Tommy I know you did. But I beat you in your home precinct."

And the pair laughed.

Burke is a staunch Democrat and Della Chiesa was a staunch Republican.

Back then, Quincy was a GOP stronghold with all the elective offices - city and county - held by Republicans.

There were so few Democrats around, the joke was that they could hold a rally in a telephone booth.

Gillis and Burke might have been pretty good campaign managers but neither of them ever won an election.

But they both look back on the good old days and the good times.

Friday the team will be broken up. Burke leaves and Gillis stays.

"I'm going to miss him," says Gillis.

Monday will be a hard day for both of them. Gillis walking into City Hall and not seeing Burke. And Burke not going to City Hall and not seeing Gillis.

City Hall won't quite be the same again. Take it easy, Tom.

CP is not a disease itself, but a group of disorders affecting approximately a half a percent of all children born in the United States. The CP child has little control over muscular motions because of damage to the motor centers of the brain. Muscular incoordination can range from barely perceptible difficulty to the most paralyzing handicaps. A high percentage of CP children have other handicaps including epilepsy, speech and hearing defects, learning disorders, and behavior problems. Early diagnosis and therapy offer the best hope for a normal or near normally functioning life. Physical therapy should be combined with speech therapy, psychological counseling and special education, if needed. Parents should be aware that inability to communicate may make traditional IQ tests meaningless. Parental attitudes are important for the child to achieve full potential.

P.S. CP children should not be assumed to be retarded, as many have very superior intelligence.

Your child deserves the best health care possible. We welcome your entire family here at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE. We form a lifetime partnership for health and are always glad to answer any questions you might have. For more information or an appointment, please call 472-2550. An Appeal For 'Heartbeat Bill' Support

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Please support the Heartbeat Bill which has started on its journey through the 1991 Massachusetts Legislature, having been assigned a number (S426) and a Health Care Committee hearing date (March 4).

The language of the bill, which has been filed by Senator Kirby of Whitman, is quite simple: "Every physician and health care provider examining a woman for purposes related to her pregnancy shall advise her that she has a right to know whether or not a fetal heartbeat has been determined."

Your senators and representatives may be reached at the State House, Boston, MA 02133. They need to know of your interest in this bill which should have universal appeal and support. There is nothing more reassuring to a woman in the early stages of pregnancy than to hear the heartbeat of her unseen, unborn child.

Children's Safety Comes First

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Dr. Ricci has submitted the Quincy Public School's Budget for the 1991-92 school year to the School Committee. Amongst his recommendations is a change in the transportation policy.

This affects hundreds of elementary school children across this city. His recommendation consists of a three tier elementary school start time plus the implementation of one mile walking distance. Although staggering start times are not ideal, they can save thousands of dollars in our tight budget. So can busing only students who live more than a mile from their school.

But let's look at some of the main streets 5-11 year olds would have to cross if this policy becomes adopted. Here's a small list of some of those streets: Sea St., Adams St., Quarry St., Independence Ave., Hancock St.,

Southern Artery, Quincy Shore Drive, West and East Squantum Sts., Newport Ave., Washington St. and McGrath Hwy.

I don't know about you, I certainly would not want my young child crossing those streets with today's dangers and traffic situation. This leaves me with three options:

1. I could drive my children to school, thus increasing traffic and congestion at the school and on the roads to school. An unsafe condition would result for all elementary school children, walkers, riders and to all those who travel these roads.

2. I could ask the police department to provide crossing guards at all dangerous intersections but since their budget is also being cut, there will not be the funds to provide all the crossing guards necessary.

3. I could call my school committee members and urge them not to vote to increase the mileage for busing students.

Last year the School Committee voted to implement a 3/4 mile distance for busing students. After much public outrage, they reconsidered their vote and the 1/2 mile limit stayed in effect. The most important reason for not increasing the mileage was and still is, the safety of the children. Nothing has changed in the city of Quincy over the last year. We still have the dangerous intersections and crowded streets. Let's not make them more congested and dangerous by adding more cars to the roads. Another problem would be for those families who do not have any other means to transport their children. How many more days will children have to miss school because the weather makes walking long distances too difficult? These must be considered if the school committee is going to increase the walking distance.

Unfortunately, all the streets are much more dangerous than they once were. Children are being abducted and molested every day. Don't think it can't happen here, it happens all over the country every day. This leads me back to my options. I think my third option will be my best choice. I hope you will join me in calling your school committee members to vote against increasing the distance to over 1 mile. Let's not punish the innocent children who happen to live in a neighborhood that once had a school around the corner.

Let's not punish those who have to travel via Quincy streets to get to their jobs by adding more traffic to our streets. Let's look for cost-effective means to deal with our school budget problems.

Yakoo Should Take Its Place In History

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Thirty years ago the image of a black woman with a handkerchief over her hair was an acceptable symbol for pancake mix. No more! Derogatory terms for ethnic groups were used freely. No more! Ethnic jokes were told, and laughed at by some caring, intelligent people. No more!

During these last 30 or so years the Civil Rights struggle has made us aware of the hurt and stigma attached to these symbols, jokes and terms. People of good will have accepted the fact that if such things hurt, they should not be used.

When the little Indian symbol, Yakoo - a caricature of an Armenian resident, was created it was a different time, a different era. The thought that it might be unacceptable to any ethnic group was furthest from people's minds. Today, we are more sensitive to how such symbols may be perceived. Yakoo is not a symbol to generate pride in American Indians and their culture. It was created to be cute and funny. And it is! But it's use as a symbol of the North Quincy High School should be over.

The young people at North Quincy High School are bright, creative individuals who are not clinging to Yakoo because they can't come up with a better one, but because it's traditional. I don't believe they want to perpetuate a derogatory stereotype and the hurt it brings to American Indians. I believe that they are capable of thinking up a newer, better symbol that all can be proud of. This is a challenge for them and for those of us in the area who believe in them and their desire to do what is right.

The symbol for the Massachusetts Turnpike was a Pilgrim hat with an arrow through it. A second grade class was responsible for making adults aware of the lack of sensitivity in this and the sign was changed. North Quincy High School can do no less!

Minnesota's State Department of Education has banned the use of Indian symbols and names for school teams and yearbooks. Can Massachusetts do less!

It's up to those of us who consider ourselves caring, thinking adults to see that Yakoo takes its place in history. The new North Quincy High School symbol will, I'm sure, reflect the pride and responsibility of the students it represents.

Go, North Quincy, you can do it!

Dependable Cleaners Continuing Free Flag Cleaning Policy

C. Fredrick Fawcett, president of Dependable Cleaners, reminds customers of the company's policy of cleaning American flags free of charge.

Fawcett noted the offer is not new to the company. "My father, (the late Donald C. Fawcett, Sr., founder of the company), never charged anyone for cleaning their flag and we've never changed that policy," said Fawcett.

The company has no idea of the number of flags cleaned over the 49 years in business.

"Probably ten thousand," he guessed.

Dependable Cleaners

has been listing the policy in their latest newspaper ads under the theme Project Welcome Home, an obvious invitation to honor the troops returning from the Persian Gulf.

Dependable Cleaners will accept American flags for free cleaning in any of its 13 locations.

The event is being sponsored by Colman's Sporting Goods, Barrett Restaurants at Marina Bay, Montilio's Bakeries and BayBank South. Barrett Restaurants also sponsored the event's kick-off party.

Chairman Tim O'Laughlin, from the corporate office of BayBank South, said, "Local businesses, organizations, clubs and schools are invited to form groups of five or more persons to walk in WalkAmerica.

"This is a great way to show the community that your company really cares about the future of our children, while bringing people together outside the office to work for a great cause."

Individuals and smaller groups are also encouraged to participate.

Quincy was one of some 1,400 communities nationwide which raised more than $50 million last year for March of Dimes. The proceeds benefited research, public and private education and community outreach designed to ensure a healthy start for all children.

Welcome Wagon

We want to tell you how things are progressing at the bank. The process of identifying prospective buyers for Bank of New England, The Connecticut Bank and Trust Company and Maine National Bank is well underway, and bids are due shortly. Until a sale occurs, each remains FDIC-owned. Many of our customers have asked how this affects them and their relationship with us. The simple answer is that it's definitely business as usual at the bank. We'd like you to know just what that means.

WE CONTINUE TO MEET CHANGING CUSTOMER NEEDS

Meeting customer needs means keeping our products and services competitive. We have joined other major banks in lowering interest rates on loans. We have responded to customer demand for competitive mortgage products, including first-time homebuyer programs and innovative refinancing plans. And we are providing consistently good rates of return on our money market, NOW, and savings accounts.

We know we are meeting your needs because our business is rapidly returning to earlier levels. Government and business money market deposits have risen 45% in Massachusetts and have more than doubled in Connecticut. The rollover rate for maturing corporate and personal CDs is strong and customer activity at our branches and ATMs is growing as well.

YES, WE ARE MAKING LOANS

The business of banking is making loans, not just taking deposits. We're making loans every day to individuals and businesses through mortgages, lines of credit, and other loan programs.

In fact, since January we have extended more than $100 million of new commercial credit and over $100 million of new consumer credit, including $25 million to finance student loans.

ONLY A HANDFUL OF PEOPLE UNDERSTAND WHAT'S HAPPENING AT BANK OF NEW ENGLAND. HERE'S YOUR CHANCE TO BECOME ONE OF THEM.

FAMILIAR PEOPLE TO BANK WITH, CONVENIENT PLACES TO BANK

We are very proud of the 12,000 people working at Bank of New England, Connecticut Bank and Trust, and Maine National Bank. You, our customers, have told us that the single most important reason for banking with us is our people and the way they deliver services with pride and integrity every day. All of our loan officers, customer service representatives, branch managers and support staff are committed to meeting your total banking needs. Nothing has changed. Our people are at the same convenient 323 offices, supported by nearly 4,500 ATMs throughout New England.

LET US KNOW IF YOU WOULD LIKE TO KNOW MORE

We hope this information answers your questions. If there is something more you would like to know, or if questions arise, we encourage you to talk with your local branch manager or account officer.

Smoking And Lung Health Program At St. Mary's

St. Mary's School students in grade 3-5 were recently presented a discussion and video "Octopuff" on lung health and smoking sponsored by the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

Because the average age of smoking experimentation is 10 in the United States, and because studies show that children armed with objective facts about smoking make better health decisions, the Lung Association feels early intervention is the best deterrence to children smoking.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

One of the ways we can measure the quality of life in a community is by the number and quality of volunteers. Those who travel countrywide and study communities all agree that "the best communities seem to be those who have quality people volunteering for community programs. And, in almost all cases, they suggest that practically all of the four- and five-star volunteers manage to stay in the background and get little recognition.

Maybe some local organization, club, association or an agency of government recognizes some of our own local volunteers, but wouldn't it be nice if, in addition to what is being done, we could recognize one person "volunteer-of-the-month" and then at the close of a year select a "Volunteer of the Year."

Restaurant License Amended

Kelly's In The Square, 19 Cottage Ave., has agreed to beef up its crowd control personnel and will be allowed to maintain its present capacity.

The Quincy License Board voted to amend the license for Kelly's In The Square by adopting 13 recommendations proposed by Sgt. Richard Laracy, Liquor Inspector for the City.

Many of the recommendations, agreed to by Kelly's owner, Peter Kelly, have already been implemented.

North Finishes With Quincy Win

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy boys' track team finished its dual meet season with an easy 76-15 victory over undermanned Quincy to post a 3-6 record, its best in several years.

North's winners were Mike Yee in the hurdles, Wayne Sit in the dash, Josh O'Donnell in the 600, Adam Chanski in the 1000, Greg Buck in the mile, Eric Torvi in the two-mile, John O'Donnell in the high jump, the sprint relay team of Sit, Hiep Ngo, Chris Murray and Mike Sweeney and the mile relay team of O'Donnell, Chansky, Yee, and Mark Sinclair.

Quincy's winners were John Fahey in the 300 and Mike Tempesta in the shotput.

Second place finishers for North were Ngo in the dash, Marc Larson in the hurdles, Murray in the 300, Sinclair in the 600, John Laing in the 1,000, Hugh Meighan in the mile, Chris Ballum in the two-mile, and Scott Kohler in the shotput.

Finishing second for Quincy was Dan

Thackeray in the high jump.

Finishing third for North were Edwin Chin, dash; Dave Chan, 300; Keith Deschler, 600; Matt Groom, 1,000; Sam Kwan, mile; Ken Duncan, two-mile, and Sweeney, high jump.

Gary Collins placed third for Quincy in the hurdles and shotput.

Although no Raiders placed in the State Relays, the 4 x 800 team of Josh O'Donnell, Buck, Chansky and Ballum ran a state qualifying time of 8:44.4. Chansky and O'Donnell then teamed up with Sinclair and Yee to run a near-qualifying time of 3:46.0 in the 4 x 400 thanks to a great 54.9 leg by Chansky. He also had a 2:09.7 leg in the 4 x 800.

Although the boys needed a 3:45.0 to qualify the 4 x 400 team for the state tournament, Coach Geoff Hennessy planned to appeal to the state director for admittance.

"All four will be in the states anyway, having qualified as individuals," he said. "We won our heat easily and we have a chance to run on such a fast track as BU's as those in the Tri-County and Bay State Leagues do. They run all their meets there."

In the annual Red Auerbach development meet for freshmen and sophomores, Chan (37.4) and Jim Georgaklis (39.0) ran personal bests in the 300. Sinclair qualified for the states with a 1:22.1 in the 600, Duncan ran his best mile ever in 6:07.5, Groom had his best mile time of 5:44.1, Kevin Price and Laing ran their best times in the hurdles.

The mile relay team of Chin (58.8), Josh O'Donnell (56.5) Deschler (60.5) and Sinclair (56.6) placed in the top 10 in 3:52.3, winning its heat.

Another bright light for the Raiders was freshman Tony Liciardi, who played basketball for Jet Pheal's junior varsity team.

In Old Colony League's championship meet North's only winner was John O'Donnell in the high jump at 6-2.

Yee placed fifth in the hurdles at 7.0.

Sioux Indian Approves Mascot

this issue and put it under a microscope... I'm just appalled," she said.

Fallis said that Indian mascots and symbols are a reminder of history. Instead of eliminating the Yakoo the school could institute a cultural class into the curriculum, she suggested, so that people can learn about different Indian cultures and not stereotype them.

Fallis' journey to North Quincy began when she met 1984 North Quincy graduate Annette Bradley. The pair became friends while Bradley, a student at Northeastern University, was working a co-op job at the IHS Hospital on a Navajo Indian reservation in Chinle, Az. Fallis worked in the emergency room at the hospital.

Dr. Allan Yacubian, a 1958 NQ grad and the model for the original Yakoo, learned that Bradley was working on the reservation and asked if she would find out how the Navajo Indians felt about the mascot. Yacubian sent a supply of sweatshirts and t-shirts to Chinle for residents to view.

Bradley said she received a positive reaction from the Navajo Indians and that they were not offended by the Yakoo.

Bradley contacted Fallis to tell her about the committee's program and Fallis volunteered to come to North Quincy to speak.

Fallis is staying with Bradley and her parents, Hank and Rose Marie. Hank Bradley is the city's Director of Veterans Services.

Hurley said that the committee will meet March 19 to plan its next course of action which may be a non-binding student referendum or a student council vote on whether or not to keep the Yakoo.

Hurley said the committee will make a recommendation to NQHS principal Peter Chrisom following the student input. Chrisom, in turn, will make a report to Superintendent of Schools Dr. Robert Ricci. At that time a decision will likely be made concerning the fate of the popular Yakoo.

Despite Small Business Pleas

Tax Rates: Homes $10.72 Business $24.02

JOSEPH SHEA is sworn in as assistant city clerk by City Clerk John Gillis as City Council President Ted DeCristofaro looks on. Shea succeeds Thomas Burke who retired March 15 after 32 years of service with the city. (Quincy Sun photo by Tom Gorman)

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Despite pleas by small business owners the City Council voted 8-1 Monday night to approve a change in the tax classification percentage for fiscal year 1991 recommended by Mayor James Sheets.

The residential rate will be $10.72 and the Commercial, Industrial and Personal Property rate will be $24.02. The residential rate is up 54 cents over FY 1990 and the C.I.P.P. rate increases by $1.12.

Both rates will reflect an approximate increase of 4.9% on both business and residential tax bills.

Homeowners will pay 60%, and business owners 40%, of the $69.5 million tax levy for FY 91.

Residential taxpayers will pay an average of $1,686, an increase of $78. The average home in Quincy is valued at $157,300 this year.

Marion Fantucchio, acting chairman of the Board of Assessors, said tax bills will be mailed by April 1 and will be due May 1.

The new C.I.P.P. classification is at 174%. Last year it was at 175%—the highest allowed by law. However, property values are down and the tax levy is up from $66 million to $69.5 million, creating a higher tax rate and increased tax bill.

The total valuation of taxable property in the city is $5,038,500,330 for FY 91. This is about $5 million less than last year. Sheets said the new classification will not adversely impact small business.

"Their concern is legitimate, but I don't think (the high classification) poses any more of a risk than was there last year or the year before. I don't think it will impact business any more than it has in the past," Sheets said.

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien said the classification was fair because both residential and business tax bills would be increased by about 4.9%.

Chretien said the recession is a national problem and not unique to Quincy. He said small businesses everywhere are facing the same problems.

During a public hearing prior to the council vote, about a half-dozen small business owners spoke out against the tax increase.

QCBPA Drops Miss Quincy Bay Pageant

The Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant, a long-time summer tradition, may be a thing of the past.

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association has decided not to sponsor the pageant this year.

QCBPA President Charles Ryder said the association's Board of Directors voted to suspend sponsorship because of declining interest in the pageant.

"Interest has declined the past few years among contestants, the general public and the sponsoring membership," Ryder said.

"It is the feeling of the QCBPA Board of Directors that it is time to move on to a different type of event in conjunction with the annual Sidewalk Bazaar."

Ryder said that the association's Promotion's

Committee is now looking into alternatives.

The Sidewalk Bazaar, sponsored by the QCBPA will go on as usual this year on July 18, 19 and 20.

The QCBPA has sponsored the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant in downtown Quincy for 20 years as it has the Sidewalk Bazaar.

The number of contestants has been getting smaller. Entries have been as high as 38 in the past. Two years ago there were 30. Last year, they were down to 18.

The pageant has also been an expensive event but the declining interest was singled out as the main reason for suspending the sponsorship for this year anyway.

No Funding For 97 City Jobs

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With the municipal and school budgets nearly finalized, Mayor James Sheets projects as many as 97 city jobs, including 25 teaching positions, will go unfunded in Fiscal 1992 which will begin July 1.

The two budgets, which Sheets projects will add up to approximately $121,837,070, will reflect an increase of about $1.2 million over FY 91.

"That's not really much of an increase when you consider we have more than $5 million in fixed cost increases," Sheets said Tuesday.

To balance the budget, the mayor ordered two percent cuts in fire, police and schools and eight percent reductions in all other sizeable departments.

Of the 97 positions, 60 of them are from the school department and 37 from the municipal side of the budget.

According to Sheets, most of the 60 school positions, including 20 to 25 teachers, are occupied. The remaining jobs are in administration, clerical, maintenance, custodial, lunch attendants, aides and bus drivers.

School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci recommended a $1,491,000 cut in the school budget over this year to meet a two percent reduction ordered by the mayor as well as to make funding available for collective bargaining.

The two percent cut totaled $756,000, leaving $735,000 available for raises to school employees whose contracts are up for negotiation.

The school budget was expected to be voted on at the School Committee's meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the Quincy High (Cont'd on Page 3)

Registrar Resigns Over Asst. Clerk Appointment

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Saying he has "unmitigated personal and philosophical differences" with the city's newly appointed assistant city clerk, Michael Cronin has resigned from the Quincy Board of Registrars.

Cronin, 20, who was appointed to the board in 1989 by former Mayor Francis McCauley, resigned in a letter to Mayor James Sheets Tuesday. He said his resignation stems from differences with new Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Shea lost the race for Ward 4 councillor to Thomas Fabrizio in 1989. Following the election, Shea considered filing for a recount amid allegations of improper voter registration drives.

The Board of Registrars overrode the list of registered voters and voter registration in Quincy.

Shea's appointment was approved 9-0 without discussion by the City Council Monday night. He succeeds Thomas Burke who retired last Friday. His appointment was recommended by City Clerk John Gillis.

Regardless of his own personal sentiments concerning Shea, Cronin said the "fact that this position was filled in the first place indicates a serious lack of judgement by the elected leadership in this city."

"This job was left vacant only after the preceding assistant city clerk opted to capitalize on a citywide 'Employee Retirement Incentive' plan, the goal of which appeared to be to create vacancies that could then be eliminated through attrition.

"While the city has found it expedient to eliminate countless vital city positions, through layoffs, attrition and an alleged hiring freeze, the opportunity to eliminate a non-essential yet high paying position has been conveniently squandered," Cronin told the mayor.

According to Assistant City Solicitor James Timmons, the city clerk is required to appoint an assistant city clerk. The section on the assistant city clerk states:

"The city clerk shall appoint, subject to confirmation by the city council, an assistant city clerk, as provided in General Laws, Chapter 41, who shall under the direction of the city clerk and shall assist in the performance of his duties. In the absence of the city clerk, or a vacancy in the office, he shall perform the duties of the city clerk."

However, the council could delete the position by amending the ordinance.

Gillis said the assistant city clerk is vital to his department. He pointed out the assistant runs the election department and attests all legal documents in the city clerk's office.

"It's a tremendous job with a lot of responsibilities," Gillis said.

The assistant city clerk's job pays $33,124 annually.

Responding to Cronin's resignation, Sheets said, "I'm sorry he is resigning. I think he's an outstanding young man. He was very conscientious in his job."

Helicopter Pad Hearing At Atlantic

A meeting concerning the proposed helicopter pad at 2 Hancock St. will be held Wednesday March 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St.

The meeting has been scheduled by Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley and the Atlantic Neighborhood Association. "This proposed helicopter pad presents some very serious issues of safety and noise considering the location between the Neponset and MBTA bridges and the plans for about five landings and take offs on each of the three shifts, 8 a.m., 4 p.m. and midnight-1:30 a.m.," Nutley said.

Nutley said he would like to provide the proponent of the idea, Jay Cashman, of J.M. Cashman Inc., with an opportunity to discuss the proposal and to answer the resident's concerns.

All North Quincy residents and business people are welcome to attend.

Sheets will submit the city's FY 92 budget to the City Council at its April 1 meeting. The council, which can cut but cannot add to the budget, must act on the fiscal package within 45 days.

Of the 37 municipal jobs, Sheets predicts only seven layoffs. Of the remaining 30 positions, 17 employees will take advantage of an early retirement program, three will have the total hours they work reduced, and 10 jobs which have been vacant will remain unfilled.

The retirement program will give retiring workers $250 for each year employed by the city.

Sheets said the budget "reflects the state of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the fiscal condition of the country at this time.

"It's a budget that balanced by cuts," he continued. "Until such time as the issue of local aid is solved in the best interest of cities and towns, we will continue to have a budget balanced by cutting."

Over the last two years, Sheets has been forced to cut $9 million from the city's budget. Last year, cuts totaled $6 million; this year, the reductions amount to $3 million.

The two biggest factors in the budget have been the drop in local aid and the increase in fixed costs.

For FY 92, the city is banking on $31.8 million in local aid, a decrease of $2.3 million from FY 91 when the state distributed $34.1 million in aid to Quincy. Sheets said the FY 92 aid is the same as 1985 levels.

As for fixed costs, the mayor noted those items have shot up $5 million over last year. He said health premiums are up $2.5 million while pensions are up $1 million.

In addition, the cost for special education mandated by the state has risen $750,000. Temporary borrowing to pay salaries will cost Quincy another $750,000.

The tax levy, which can increase by two and a half percent, will give the city $2.9 million in new revenue.

Sheets also announced that Local 1139 representing 122 public works, parks, forestry and cemetery workers have signed a one-year contract that includes no pay raises.

Last week, the 147-member police patrolmen's union ratified a two-year contract with no pay hikes the first year. Contract negotiations can reopen next year if city finances improve.

In addition, the mayor said the city is "very close" to an agreement with the firefighters union.

Council Opposes MWRA Shipyard Cogeneration Plant

The City Council unanimously passed a resolve opposing the building of a cogeneration plant by the MWRA at the Fore River Shipyard site.

The resolve, introduced by Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, states that Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth have already been impacted in a negative manner by facilities at the site, and the proposal would add to the existing pollution in the Fore River Basin.

A power plant was not part of the original agreement between the MWRA and the City of Quincy.

"It's disheartening," said Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney. "The MWRA is lying to us again. They have done an 180-degree turnabout. They told us they would not put this facility at Fore River and now they are proposing it."

The council agreed to draft a letter of opposition and send it to MWRA boss Paul Levy.

THAT PESKY PROSTATE

One in three men over age 50 has an enlarged prostate gland. Nearly half of those over age 60 have developed the problem and half of these exhibit symptoms. Although the enlargement may be either benign or malignant, there is no connection between them. A benign prostate enlargement doesn't turn malignant. Among the suspected cause of prostate problems are overuse of diuretic drugs, and prolonged retention of urine common to pilots, truck and taxi drivers, and those in similar situations requiring long periods of sitting with no access to a restroom. If untreated, prostatism can lead to kidney or bladder stones, bladder inflammation, and kidney disease. Removal of an enlarged prostate is a common and relatively uncomplicated surgical procedure. Symptoms of prostate problems include frequent, urgent urination, straining to urinate, and passing blood or semen in the urine.

P.S. If you have prostate trouble, avoid antihistamines and anticholinergic drugs such as atropine, belladonna and scopolamine.

There Goes A Little Election Oomph

Frank McCauley's appointment as executive director of the State Retirement Board, makes what is shaping up to be a dull city election year even duller.

McCauley was seriously considering running for City Council at-large and if Treasurer Joe Malone hadn't tapped him for the $65,000 a year state job chances are he would have done so.

And put a little oomph into election year 1991.

He had said he would someday like to return to the city council in the role of "elder statesman." And this is the year he was prepared to make that move if Malone or Gov. William Weld forgot his telephone number.

McCauley had campaigned for both last year. There were indications that McCauley, who served four terms as mayor and called it a career in 1989, was missing City Hall. He seemed to be getting restless although he was staying busy as a consultant.

His new job eliminates him as a candidate this year. And if he ever returns to City Hall as "elder statesman" he will be somewhat older than his present 61.

McCauley, who built a reputation as a penny-pinching mayor and was president of the former Shipbuilders Cooperative Bank before that, has respect for his own and other people's money. He should do a good job overseeing the state and disability pension system involving 94,000 present state employees and nearly 40,000 retirees.

As a candidate this year, he would have sparked considerable interest trying to wrest a city council at-large seat away from one of the three incumbents: Tim Cahill, Mike Cheney, Patricia Toland.

ANOTHER FORMER MAYOR, Joseph LaRaia, is still a possible at-large candidate.

LA RAIA

Some observers think they are beginning to see signs LaRaia might run. One sign: he is getting around more than he had. Or, so it seems.

MCCAULEY

MEANWHILE, FORMER Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly looks more and more like a certain candidate for councillor at-large.

As reported here earlier, two political observers bet him he wouldn't run when it came down to a final decision. And he took both bets.

Asked point-blank the other day if he really was going to run, he said: "I'm running but I'm not announcing—not yet."

There's the right time to make an announcement, he says. And this is not it.

KELLY

AND, FORMER NORFOLK County Treasurer Dan Raymond appears to be inching his way toward this year's political ring.

He reportedly is considering a run for city council at-large or the school committee—seats he has occupied in the past.

He seems to be leaning more to a School Committee run.

ASST. CITY CLERK Tom Burke was given a retirement "send off" party at City Hall Friday—his last day after nearly 32 years on the job. He was presented with a "License To Retire for Weekdays Only" with stipulations including that he must delete from his vocabulary a four-letter word: WORK.

BURKE

More formal honors will come May 17 with a retirement dinner headed by his long-time friend, City Clerk John Gillis, at the Morrisette Legion Post.

Fight To Save The 'Yakoo'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I am a parent with children that attend North Quincy High School. I am disgusted with the controversy over the symbol of this school, the Yakoo.

I have been listening very patiently for several months to both sides of the issue, and have, uncharacteristically, overall I, kept my mouth shut, and my ears open, most of the time. I can no longer do this in good conscience.

In think it is time some of us adults defended our youth, their school, and their symbol. The charge, brought against this great school's symbol, is as phony as a $3 bill. Until all this ballyhoo, the general student population considered this symbol to represent all that is good in pride, excellence, dignity, and determination. This is an insult?

The important thing about any symbol, is what it stands for, by those who use it, and more importantly, by those who create it. Anyone can find fault in any symbol, if they so wish.

The originator of the Yakoo was a student in high school, looking for an idea that embodied what was good about the school, and could be used for good thoughts, not bad ones!

To twist this around to something derogatory, is in itself, an insult to our youth and their school. The adult(s) that brought all of this about, seem to have little else to do, but search for a miserable excuse to destroy something of value that represents something good to our youth in Quincy.

Indian culture, language, symbols, customs, and names are inbred into our entire American society. As an American, I accept this with pride, just as I accept every other cultures that contribute to our society. I'm proud of my heritage and all that it has done - good or bad - but I endeavor to follow that which is good.

I certainly do not attempt to change the history of my heritage, for what was done is done. By attempting to deny our actual heritage is to tell an untruth. I find this being done, more and more, and this is just one example of this type of tinkering with history to change the image of the past.

We are a nation of one people, made up of many different people, who are guaranteed certain rights - one of which is freedom of expression. We are allowed to destroy our flag, shun our Pledge of Allegiance, and put filth in front of our youth in their everyday lives, but our children are now castigated because of a symbol that stands for all that is good in their eyes.

It is called an insult to a race of people, and consider this - the caricature of a person not even a member of that race. The name "Yakoo" is an abbreviation of a name that isn't related to that race that is supposed to be insulted.

How odd that we have the Cleveland Indians, Washington Redskins, Atlanta Braves, etc. and no one complains, but a small high school in Quincy becomes the target of a campaign of slander.

Could it be that the big fish have more money to fight, and the poor taxpayer in Quincy isn't as strong and will be able to foot the bill of these demanded changes? Hmmmm, I find this quite odd indeed.

To the youth of NQHS, I support you to the rafters. Fight for your symbol of excellence, and don't let anyone make it what it is not.

The Yakoo is yours and yours alone. Go forth and protect its true meaning, and do it with the dignity, the pride, the determination and the excellence that your great symbol stands for.

It's your symbol, not their symbol. Go fight for it and save the Yakoo.

Wants Flag Burners Prosecuted To The Limit

Editor, The Quincy Sun: I am responding to the article "Quincy City Council wants to ban Flag Burning."

This issue has been a bone of contention for several years. The First Amendment has been the source of many a citizen to live a full and clean life after taking it using it in the name of justice. While the First Amendment when used and four to be used for the purpose of expression at the same instance committing an unlawful act in my judgment the citizen can live some part of his life paying dearly for the crime.

May I respectfully suggest to the advocates of defending the First Amendment at all costs (as I am) and to the people who wish an amendment to correct this act (flag burning, which is possible but not probable) of such despicable action work together. I suggest we alert the people who have the legal right of arrest, access to the courts and legislators to look into the actions of the perpetrator (flag burner) during and after the act. Scrutinize these actions until an unlawful act or acts can be lodged against this displayer of expression. When the unlawful act or act has been alleged, prosecute to the limit. The "don't get mad get even" can satisfy most and probably eliminate the sneeze from engaging in his moron action.

Thanks Rep. Tobin For Replacing Flag

Editor, The Quincy Sun: During the week after the general offensive began in the Middle East, our flag was taken from the pole in front of the Woodward School.

With the help of parents we repaired the pole last year and had a light mounted on the streetside telephone pole to illuminate the flag and the building facade. We were proud of how it looked. I mentioned this loss at a recent parent meeting. As a result, one of our parents contacted Rep. Steve Tobin. The following day, Representative Tobin delivered a new flag. I'd like to say thank you to him in a public way.

They Are Not Just Accidents

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Throughout the last decade, MADD has insisted that drunk driving and the overwhelming number of injuries and deaths caused by drunk driving are not just "accidents".

Webster's dictionary defines "accident" as "an unpleasant and unintentional happening, sometimes resulting from negligence" and "accidental" as "happening by chance, outside the normal course of events". "Crash" is defined as "to fall or land violently out of control so as to be damaged or smashed".

While a person who chooses to drink and drive may not intentionally choose to cause harm or destruction, they do make two very clear choices: (1) to use alcohol or other drugs and (2) to get in a vehicle and drive. These two choices are not made accidentally or by chance.

In 1989 alone 22,415 persons were killed in alcohol-related traffic crashes and approximately 345,000 suffered injuries. About 80,000 of those injuries were serious and life changing. With those numbers in mind, please remember that they were not "accidents". MADD's mission is to stop drunk driving and to support victims of this violent crime. You can help us achieve our mission by refraining from use of the word "accident" and using the words "crash" or "collision" when referring to drunk driving.

Hospital Addition Loan Order Passes

The City Council passed a $1,525,000 loan order for a new building, including $850,000 for a hospital addition to house the X-ray department, the nursery and the special care unit.

In all, the hospital addition would cost $1.2 million but it was expected that the city would get a federal grant of $400,000 under the Hill Burton Act to make up the difference.

Also included in the bond issue were $225,000 for a North Quincy branch library, $150,000 for a new Atlantic Fire Station, $150,000 for streets and $150,000 for sewers.

The only vote against the hospital addition was cast by Councillor George G. Burke, who explained that he thought other projects, like a new City Hall, were more pressing.

Esther's Fat Free Spice Cake

With so many foods being labeled "fat free" today's recipe for a spice cake my friend Esther makes could very well fit into that category.

It has no eggs or milk and it is quite delicious and always a nice surprise when she calls and tells me she has baked for one of our family. She said the name of the cake was "Poor Man's or Depression Cake," but with today's prices, those names don't seem to fit. This cake can be made days in advance like a fruit cake and kept just as long.

ESTHER'S FAT FREE SPICE CAKE

- 2 cups brown sugar
- 2 cups hot water
- 2 Tbsps shortening
- About 1/2 package of raisins (more or less to your own taste)
- 1 tsp salt
- 1 tsp cinnamon
- 1 tsp ground cloves

- 3 cups flour
- 1 tsp baking soda

Mix together the sugar, water, shortening, raisins, salt, cinnamon and cloves. Boil all of these ingredients for about five minutes or until mixture begins to bubble.

Cool the mixture, and then add the flour and baking soda. (Dissolve the soda in a couple of teaspoons of hot water).

Bake in a small greased tube pan in a 350 degree oven for about an hour. Test if done and bake accordingly.

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Preville's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Virginia Konish Quincy Hospital Employee Of Month

Virginia Konish of Weymouth has been selected the January Employee of the Month at Quincy Hospital.

Konish has worked as a nursing technician on A-6, a medical-surgical unit at the hospital, since December, 1989.

She came to Quincy Hospital with more than 20 years experience in the medical field. Although she enjoyed her previous job as head of the laboratory at Pembroke Hospital, Konish says her work at Quincy as a nursing technician is far more rewarding. It combines the technical aspects of laboratory and EKG work with a large amount of patient contact and care.

Her supervisor, Betty Cifuni, nurse manager on A-6, said, "Because Ginny is an expert in everything that she does, she has been a fine role model...She has helped (the staff on A-6 and other units) improve their standards of practice by continually offering assistance and caring support."

Cifuni commended Konish for her outstanding contribution to the Nurse Leader Program. "Her participation on the nursing/laboratory task force has resulted in the phase two expert training for more than 60 of our Quincy Hospital nursing technicians.

"In working with our RNs in staff development, Ginny has carried out a training series that has assured that our technicians would provide quality care to all of our patients," Cifuni said.

The nurse technician program is unique to Quincy Hospital. In this program, nursing technicians on each unit are trained in blood drawing and other laboratory and EKG techniques. They perform these duties as well as those of the traditional nurse, thereby giving each nursing unit skilled technicians who are responsible for a broad range of patient care. Consequently, they learn to know each patient in the unit in an in-depth and personal way.

Konish said this makes the patients "feel more comfortable. The care is better, and there is a real sense of team work on the unit."

She and her husband John have three children and a one-year-old grandchild named Joshua. They enjoy skiing, hiking and fishing.

Parents Of Son

John and Lisa Sullivan, of 64 Turner St., Quincy, are parents of a son, born Feb. 14 at South Shore Hospital in South Weymouth.

Scarborough Fair Highlights Sterling Medieval Project

By KATHY HAYES ADAMS

"Welcome to the Middle Ages at Sterling Middle School" read the medieval letters in the building's foyer. The illuminated (hand-colored) letters and banners depicting Castle Sterling and courtly love welcomed visitors to the medieval world Sterling eighth graders studied and recreated this winter.

The culminating activity was a Scarborough Fair held in the school's gym. All eighth graders dressed in medieval attire for the day, the girls in long gowns and the boys in tunics. The walls were covered with a variety of student-done stained-glass windows and pictures illustrating scenes from daily life as well as written descriptions of guild activities which affected much medieval life.

At the colorful booths, visitors could sample medieval foods, watch weaving and glassmaking demonstrations, or play a medieval shell game. Customized tumblers and a juggler also demonstrated their skills. Most of the eighth grade boys participated in a jousting tournament.

Visitors also had an opportunity to enjoy typical medieval entertainment. First, the King and Queen welcomed costumed representatives from three sixth grade "castles." Then the choral speaking group presented a poem, a Punch and Judy show featured student-made puppets, and both sixth and eighth grade students enacted skits on medieval themes.

As the girls changed back into their jeans at the end of the school day, they expressed relief they did not have to wear such uncomfortable clothes all the time, or live in the drafty, small castles which they studied.

Coordinators for the interdisciplinary unit, Stasia Toomey and Kathy Adams, lauded the students for their excellent effort and products.

What did the students think of the six-week unit? "It was fun learning and doing so many different things in regular classes." And not too surprisingly the eighth graders agreed unanimously, "The food and the jousting were great!"

Ted, Betty DeCristofaro Honorary Chairpersons For Food Center Benefit

City Council President Ted DeCristofaro and his wife, Betty, have been selected by the Quincy Community Action Program Board of Directors to be honorary chairpersons of the Emergency Food Center Benefit.

Sponsored by Quincy Community Action and the South Shore Coalition of Human Rights, the benefit will be held Friday, April 26 at the Fore River Clubhouse.

The DeCristofaros were chosen honorary chairpersons of the event because of their long-term commitment to the community.

The Emergency Food Center, housed by QCAP's SouthWest Community Center, provides food assistance to low-income families of Quincy and surrounding towns. In an average month, 340 households receive free food, budget and nutrition counseling, advocacy, information and referrals to other programs.

Seventy five percent of those served come from Quincy. They are the working poor, single parents and the unemployed. Some are physically disabled, others have mental illness.

More and more are families who never expected to rely on a food bank, but because of the tough times, find themselves unable to afford their basic needs.

The Emergency Food

Center, considered the largest food center of its kind in Massachusetts, has been featured on the national television program Frontline as well as local Channel 5's Chronicle. Last year, the center was honored by Project Bread for outstanding efforts in the annual Walk for Hunger. It was also featured in the Channel 7 documentary Hunger at Home.

Sources of funding for operation include the city of Quincy, Project Bread and the federal government; however, much of the support stems from individuals and businesses in the community, which have demonstrated their caring for their less fortunate neighbors.

The April 26th benefit will include musical and comedy entertainment, refreshment and drawings. Advertising space is available in the program booklet which will be distributed to everyone who attends the event. Deadline to reserve space is April 3.

Tickets are $10. For more information, to order advertising space or reserve tickets call 479-8181.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Much has been written about friendship: "Friendship is love with understanding..." "Make friendship a habit and you will always have friends..." "Friendship is a responsibility, not an opportunity..."

"A friend is one who comes in when the whole world has gone out."

One of the finest descriptions of a "friend" was given to us by one of our own friends. It is called "PORTRAIT OF A FRIEND"... Read it. We're sure you will like it as much as we did. ... When things don't come out right, he comes right in ... When none of your dreams come true, he is ... He never looks for your money except when you've lost it ... He never gets in the way except to clear it for you ... He is in your corner when you're cornered ... He turns up when you get turned down ... All he wants in return for his helping hand is your handshake ... You can do anything you want to with his friendship except buy it or sell it ... He makes you realize that having a real friend is like having an extra life ... Many thanks to our friend ...

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

"I Don't know what to say . . ."

Does knowing the "proper" thing to say keep you from going to a wake or funeral? It shouldn't!

Your appearance can be a support and expression of love to the bereaved. Words you express as you embrace or extend your hand can add feelings of warmth and concern — words aren't as important as your "just being there."

Try practicing what you wish to say beforehand, when you are alone. Sometimes just hearing yourself say the words out loud makes them easier to express to others.

North Girls De feat Quincy, Weymouth

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy girls' track team finished a successful dual meet with wins over Quincy and Weymouth to finish 5-2, tying for second place in the Old Colony League.

The North girls completed their dual meet season with a 75-16 win over Quincy.

The undermanned Quincy team's efforts were paced by Amy Dunn with second place in the 300 and high jump. Sarah Edwards placed second in the mile. The sprint relay team of Dunn, Heidi Daggett, Michelle Civitarese and Amy Galman won for Quincy's only victory of the meet.

In the 50, North's Amy Wong won with North's Katy Deady second and Quincy's Civitarese third.

North's Tristen Mastrogioacomo, Aimee Chin and Cheryl Kelly swept the hurdles. Suzanne Lewis and Jenn Flynn took first and second places in the 1,000 with Quincy's Fanny Chung third. Ilana Cobban, Melanie Graziano and Heather Rendle swept the 600.

Julie Tangney and Karen Leary took first and third in the mile. Erin Duggan, Kristy Kabilian and Chrissy Herman, all freshmen, swept the two-mile.

Rebecca Squires won the high jump with Kelly third and Mastrogioacomo, Soyon Park, and Trish McNamara sweeping the shotput.

North's all-rookie mile relay team of Lisa Flynn, Stacy Flynn, Kabilian and Leary took first place.

Earlier North had defeated Weymouth, 53-33, with Weymouth being undermanned due to injuries to strong performers.

Wong broke an 11-year-old record in winning the 50. Lewis won the 1000. Coban took the 600. Jenn Nutley won the 300. Jenn Flynn won the two mile.

The sprint relay team of Wong, Deady, Hamilton and Nutley won due to a tremendous come-from-behind leg by Nutley, who made up nearly 30 yards.

Taking second places were Kabilian in the one-mile, Melanie Gaziano in the 600, Tangney in the two-mile, and Mastrogioacomo in the shotput.

Placing third were Deady in the 50, Chrissy Herman in the one-mile, Leary in the 1,000, Hamilton in the 300, Erin Duggan in the two-mile, Park in the shot, Rendle in the 600 and Squires in the high jump.

North made a good showing in the State Relays at Boston University with 11.5 points, good for eighth place in a field of 21 schools.

The shuttle dash relay team of Wong, Deady, Hamilton and Nutley tied for fifth, the shotput relay of Mastrogioacomo, Park and McNamara placed third and the sprint medley team of Lewis, Wong, Nutley and Cobban took fourth.

Lewis' 800-meter leg of 2:24.4 and Cobban's 400-meter leg of 65.9 were personal bests.

In the annual Red Auerbach development meet for freshmen and sophomores, of which former North Coach Lou Tozzi is director, several North girls had a chance to shine.

Lewis ran an 11:53.2 for second place in the two-mile. Although she was the only to take a medal for North, all but four of the 28 North girls set or tied personal bests.

Squires and Rendle both cleared 4'8" in the high jump to place in the top 10. Rendle also ran a best time of 1:45.9 in the 600, Duggan ran 13:10.4 to place seventh in the two-mile, just missing a medal. Nutley (41.8) and Hamilton (42.1) ran their best times in the 300, Coban ran 1:41.1 in the 600 for her best of the year.

Leary (3:23.4 at 1000 yards), Kabilian (6:27.8 mile) and Herman (6:47.2 mile) were outstanding.

The mile relay team of Nutley, Cobban, Rendle and Lewis ran 4:32.0 for seventh place, being barely edged out by Reading and Braintree.

The meeting will be held at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex Quincy's Pee Wee B hockey team had the luck of the Irish with it as it blanked Belmont, 7-0, on St. Patrick's Day.

Quincy raced out to a 4-0 lead in the first period as Tom Moriarty scored the first of his two goals, Chris Grant scored the first of his two and John Manning and Chris McArdle had a goal each.

Moriarty scored the only goal of the middle period and Pat Tevenan and Grant finished off the scoring in the final frame. Bill Barron had two assists and Tevenan, Grant and John Healy one each.

The previous day the Pee Wee B's tied Brookline, 3-3. Moriarty, McArdle and Shawn McTomney scored the goals and Dan O'Donnell and Manning had two assists apiece.

Goalie John Masone of the Squirt A team moved up to the Pee Wees and played well.
